

LIBERATED PARIS IMPOVERISHED AND INFLATION RIDDEN

Pair of Shoes Costs $130, Kitchen Chair $20; Poor Fare Badly in Food Marts.

By Dudley Ann Harmon
United Press Correspondent
Paris, June 21—(U.P.)—Liberated Paris, once the fashion and life center of the world, is an impoverished city today, ridden by inflation and gouging black-marketers.

It is a city where a pair of leather shoes costs $130, a bathtub $500 and an ordinary kitchen chair $20. And where a disconsolate chambermaid says sadly:

Tough For Rich Now
"The only difference in ten months of liberation is that now it's even getting tough for the rich."

Today, even wealthy engaged couples haunt the famous Parisian "flea markets" in search of second-hand linen, furniture and table ware. To equip a five-room apartment even modestly would cost a honeymooning couple $10,000.

All last winter a man with money could eat black market food every night, whereas the poor frequently went for six weeks and more without even a morsel of horseflesh. The results were apparent in the April elections, which showed a marked swing to the left.

Now there are many in Paris who fear the communists will take over the government. And there are as many more who fear they won't.

Food Situation Bad
Meanwhile, the ordinary Parisian housewife teeters to market on her uncomfortable wooden shoes to find that the food situation is no better than ever, with the exception of fats.

The average stenographer earning perhaps $60 a month, cannot afford strawberries priced at $1.60 a pound. But her chief complaint is not over such luxuries as strawberries.

She is irritated by the irregularity of her standard rations. She may be able to get two pounds of potatoes this week and then none at all for a month.

On the other hand, there is plenty of bread and meat ration has gone up from nothing at all to enough for one meal per week. Last week Parisians received two-fifths of a pound of American lard and government hopes to increase this allotment.

Black Mart Worries
The government, too, is trying hard to stamp out the black market. The food ministry now has ordered restaurants to serve only one meat meal weekly and steps are being taken to force farmers to sell their produce — many farmers had been holding back supplies on the claim that prices weren't high enough to pay for their fodder.

But most Frenchmen are skeptical of the new program. They are convinced there will be no real improvement until more meat, sugar and fats are imported, along with machinery and fertilizer for the farmers.

Returning prisoners of war who found the rich were getting suits for $300 apiece, whereas the government was unable to outfit them, simply raided the department stores and took what they needed.

S-T-R-E-T-C-H-I!
Now the government has taken over the clothing stores in Paris, but the liberated prisoners still are dissatisfied because they can't draw the double meat rations to which their special ration cards entitle them.

GIRL SCOUT CAMP HAS COOPERATION

"Because of the splendid cooperation with the Red Cross swimming program, the Rogue River Transit company and Dodge's Riding academy the Girl Scout day camp program schedule has been possible," Mrs. Marjorie Hopkins, Scout executive secretary, stated today.

"Over 160 different girls have registered. The average daily attendance, in spite of the unusually hot weather has been over 140."

"With this large attendance several additional counselors have been added to the staff and others are needed. In checking the registrations it has been found that one-fourth of the campers are not Girl Scouts, which proves the program is an 'all girls' day camp."

"Other girls in the community who are not Girl Scouts may still register for the second week of day camp," the secretary concluded.

Frisco Hotels To Banish Civilians

San Francisco, June 21—(U.P.) Anticipating a tremendous demand by the army and navy for hotel accommodations, San Francisco's major hotels plan to inaugurate, at the close of the United Nation's conference, a policy whereby civilians will be refused to all civilians except those directly supporting the war effort.

Joseph D. Sullivan, president of the Hotel Employer's association, said today he understands the military demand will be "unprecedented." To aid the program, the hotels will advertise in major cities, urging non-essential civilians to stay away from San Francisco, he added.

S. P. MAN DIES
San Francisco, June 21—(U.P.)—Funeral services probably will be held at Sacramento for W. L. Hack, 64, former Sacramento division manager of Southern Pacific railway, friends said today. Hack died in a hospital here yesterday of a heart ailment.

GAULT RECEIVES SUPPORT PLEDGES

Howard C. Gault, sworn in as sheriff of Jackson county yesterday afternoon following appointment by the county court, has been the recipient of scores of pledges of support and well wishes from all over the county. The oath of office was given by County Clerk George R. Carter.

Sheriff Gault said the present deputy force would be retained in both the tax collection and departmental work, but that Jailer Harry Ingling, and wife, the jail matron, had resigned effective July 1. Their successors were picked by the late Sheriff, Syd I. Brown and will be named. The Inglings resigned several weeks ago.

The new sheriff said no appointment would be made for the present, to his former berth as chief clerical clerk but this work would be handled by himself and deputies.
