PREVENTION OF CEREBRAL HEMORRHAGE

Cerebral hemorrhage, apoplexy, "stroke" of paralysis, is a bleeding into the brain substance usually the base of the left cerebral lobe or hemisphere, from rupture or breaking of a minute artery as a consequence or an incident of long existing degeneration of the artery, atherosclerosis.

Dr. Brady

In most instances the artery that breaks or ruptures is a branch from the middle cerebral branch of the internal carotid artery. The bleeding, it must be remembered, is deep within the cerebral lobe, into the tissue. It should not be confused with the bleeding that may occur in the meningeal membranes covering the brain, following an injury to the head or fracture of the skull with gradual loss of consciousness from pressure of the clot on the brain, coming many hours after the accident.

Contrary to popular fancy, there are no significant premonitory or warning symptoms in most cases of cerebral hemorrhage.

With loss of consciousness paralysis of one or both limbs on one side of the body occurs. If the paralysis is on the right side, there is loss of speech, too, as a rule, because the brain center for speech is situated in the left side of the cerebrum close to the centers for control of such movements as those of writing, and hence it is affected or damaged by the hemorrhage in that part of the brain. Consciousness returns on the third or fourth day, in cases in which recovery is to occur.

What I don't know about the cause and prevention of cerebral hemorrhage, apoplexy, stroke of paralysis, hemiplegia, fills many chapters in medical books. The medical authorities generally agree that it is due to hardening

- 1. Be a teetotaler. Anyway be temperate. 2. Regulate the quality of your food in an intelligent way and you will find it fairly easy to avoid overeating. Most overeating is simply stuffing with excessive quantities of refined carbohydrates - flour, sugar, and things made from them - which never quite satisfy normal hunger. Use plain wheat in your everyday diet. 3. Prevention of syphilis, chronic lead poisoning and poor inheritance - at this rate it would take weeks to tell about that.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Addict
I am a nervous wreck through the behavior of my husband who is a heavy drinker. The harder I fight against it the worse he gets. When he is sober he is a man... It seems to get hold of him like a drug. (Mrs. C. A.)
Answer-Alcohol is a narcotic drug if the term can be applied to any drug. The best I can offer is the booklet "Dipsomania" for copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope. It might be the saving of the man if he will get in touch with your local group of Alcoholics Anonymous. Pading, Fat and Forty Mine is stubborn, solid fat. I'm forty pounds overweight, forty years old and gray as a bat. I enjoy your column with your down to earth horse sense. We need more men like you. (Edna B.)
Answer-Come, come, now, young lady, what's forty pounds more or less between friends? I'll bet a complete 44 course of Little Lessons in the Ways of Health against an honest record of your present height, weight, and measurements that you are not so far from what you should weigh as you think. In any case, don't go at it hammer and tongs with the determination to get rid of the superfluous all in a month. Rather adopt a sane, physiological and not too difficult regimen or plan to follow for a year and get rid of the superfluous as you acquired it - a pound a week, no faster. (Copyright 1945 by John F. U. S. SKIMPING AID CHIANG COMPLAINS

Chungking, June 29 - (UP) - Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, in his first press conference since 1941, said today that the United States was not giving China enough economic help. Chiang also said that a Chinese soldier, given training and equipment, can fight as well as any three soldiers from abroad, and that if it took foreign soldiers two years to defeat Japan, Chinese troops could do it in one year. The generalissimo complained

Japan's "Stupid" Bomb Is Studied After Capture By Okinawa Marines

Johnsville, Pa., June 29 - (UP) - The "Baka" bomb - diminutive rocket-propelled Japanese suicide plane discovered on Okinawa - is being dissected here at the naval aircraft modification unit to see what makes it tick.

"It is the perfect missile - one with a human brain to guide it," Cmdr. Charles E. Kirkbride, executive officer, said in disclosing for the first time the full details of the suicide plane. Because of its simple and cheap construction, he estimated Japan can produce thousands.

The plane now under technical study, from which the navy hopes to discover an efficient counter-measure, is one of 14 captured by marines on Okinawa.

The interior of the bomb-plane is complete with joy stick, directional compass, air speed indicator, altimeter and inclinometer. The bubble canopy-type cockpit is protected with armor plate 5-16ths of an inch thick.

Square-tailed, with a fuselage nearly 20 feet long and a wing spread of 16 feet, the plane in operation is attached to a medium bomber, flown near the target and cut loose.

Then the pilot, a member of the "divine wind special attack corps" glides near the target to aim himself through a rifle-sight at his objective. Three tall rockets hurl the plane and its 2,645 pound nose-bomb in a forward dive that reaches 630 miles per hour.

Recently 6,000 pairs of G.I. shoes which were lying at the bottom of Naples harbor in a sunken army supply vessel were fished up, cleaned up and repaired for use by prisoners of war.
