

COAST WILL SEE NO FAST RETURN TO PRE-WAR NORM

Eugene, Ore., June 30—(U.P.)—Attorney-General Robert W. Kenny of California sees no chance of a blissful return to pre-war "normalcy" for the Pacific coast in population, employment, income levels, or industrial production.

Furthermore, he told delegates to the 58th annual conference of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers' association, Saturday, an attempted return would "step up all our headaches to the incurable stage." He observed that such recapturing of the past had been tried before—without appreciable benefit.

He advised in the interest of future security, that the new norms of jobs, wages, manufacturing and thinking be accepted, after the war.

He predicted that long before that time national policies, both of government and enterprise, must be made if far west development in relation to the national economy are to be stabilized.

He invited other regions to present to the west their problems, so that fair play and co-operation could develop.

Tom Purcell, of the Gresham Outlook, was elected president of the association, succeeding E. Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Portland Oregonian.

SHORTAGES FORCE BAKERY CLOSURES

Los Angeles, June 30—(U.P.)—A cut in supplies of shortening and sugar may force the rationing of bread and other baked goods in southern California, Secretary-Manager William Francis Ireland of Associated Bakers of Southern California, warned tonight.

Federal rationing officials computed the amounts of sugar and shortening consumed by bakeries in a 1941 to 1942 period and took this as a base for their needs although southern California's population has increased by three-fourths of a million in recent years, Ireland said.

Alaskans Prepare For Big Increase In Tourist Trade

Anchorage, Alaska (U.P.)—The fish and wildlife service is preparing to increase the game population of Alaska to compensate for expected inroads against the resource when sports-minded servicemen invade the area after the war.

Charles E. Jackson, assistant director of the service, expects a 50 per cent increase in the number of hunting and fishing licenses issued in Alaska immediately after V-J day. He said the increase after World War I was 30 per cent.

Jackson warned that although tourist travel may be the territory's No. 1 industry in early post-war years, it also will present a threat against Alaska's wild life resources.

He said that to implement the service's policy of conserving the resource while also allowing reasonable use, a program has been adopted for the construction of more hatcheries, stocking of lakes, studies for improving fur facilities, the removal of obstructions to spawning grounds and the opening of new spawning areas.

Belgium has been one of the main and earliest victims of two modern wars.

Eagle Point Boy Champion Judge In 4-H Contest

Grand champion livestock judge at the 1945 4-H club summer school is the title bestowed on Wayne Russell, 16, of Eagle Point. Wayne has been a club member for five years and was high scoring judge in the county livestock judging contest last fall. He owns a dairy project consisting of two purebred Jersey calves and a purebred Jersey cow in production.

In addition to topping the livestock judging contest, Wayne was president of the group living in his fraternity house and was a member of the executive council.

Henry Padgham, Jr. of Roxy Ann placed third in the livestock judging contest. Both boys received an Oregon state pennant as a prize for their excellent work. Nearly 300 boys from Oregon 4-H clubs competed.

Medford Man Slays Big Bear In Exciting Hillside Battle

Fred Baker, taxi driver, of 1122 West 4th street, had a day off Wednesday, so he bundled his wife, mother and two children into the family car and, totally unsuspecting, rode straight into an adventure such as the Rogue valley pioneers tell about.

Baker's plan was to look at a mining property near the Applegate divide and, incidentally do a bit of fishing en route. Being a gun lover, he loaded in with the lunch and other picnic items, a .32 caliber rifle and a .30 caliber Luger pistol—just in case.

Near their destination one of the children spied a huge brown bear on a ridge high above the road. Hastily grabbing his rifle, Brown jumped out of the car and threw a shot at the beast, over 150 yards away. The bullet broke one of its hind legs and the animal started spinning and thrashing about, snapping at its wound and emitting blood-curdling snarls. Suddenly the frenzied bruin rolled himself into a ball and came hurtling down through the hillside brush, winding up in a thicket.

Baker, advancing to the spot, was nearly caught when the animal, thought dead, started for him in a series of clumsy three-legged lurches. Although handicapped by the leg wound, its claws came too close for comfort as it swung its mighty forepaws like a boxer "hooking" at an opponent.

Baker fired three times while sidestepping the rushes, none of the bullets doing more than further enrage the bear. On his next attempt to get in a fatal shot, the gun merely "clicked" on an empty chamber. He called to his wife to bring more shells. However, she was too late to classify.
