THE CAUSE OF APPENDICITIS

It is careless of me, perhaps, but I do not carry a card or a tag on a cord around my waist to protect myself from an emergency operation in case I am found unconscious, that is, more so than ordinarily. I am confident any doctor viewing my case will recognize at once that I have already had my appendix removed or else a Caesarian section removed or an encounter with an angry bull.

Before we get serious about appendicitis, folks, it seems only fair that I state my opinion concerning its management, and then you can do as you wish about it if or when it happens to you.

I believe there is only one treatment for acute appendicitis, and that is immediate operation. The direct cause of acute appendicitis is of course infection. The notorious Streptococcus is found in the more serious or more dangerous cases, but the ordinary harmless Bacillus coli (colon bacillus), a normal inhabitant of the intestine and probably concerned in good digestion, undergoes some change in character in the unnatural environment of our ultra-refined, nambypamby "civilized" diet, acquiring pathogenic (disease-producing) properties and causing nearly three-fourths of all cases of acute appendicitis. Then still a third bacterial strain, called Staphylococcus, is generally implicated especially in pus cases.

Even the Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde colon bacillus invades the tissues, the wall of the appendix (not just the lumen or passage-way) through the blood stream.

just as the Streptococcus, the Staphylococcus or the Pneumococcus does.

In a good many cases the history of the attack of acute appendicitis is suggestive—first the young person has one or more attacks of acute tonsillitis or perhaps quinsy (abscess around tonsil) or even an attack of rheumatic fever or just vague "sore throat" or acute sinus trouble, and presently develops acute appendicitis. The Pneumococcus, Streptococcus, Staphylococcus, or combinations thereof, get a foothold in the nose or throat, or sometimes in a silent (painless) abscess in gum or about the roots of a neglected decayed tooth, and then a vigorous young colony of the germs from this focus travel through the blood stream and lodge in the appendix. I hate to talk like this but after all we can't have safety if we refuse to recognize danger. The truth is that acute appendicitis is one of the hazards that may complicate or follow the cri you know, kres, any acute respiratory infection in the early hours or days of the illness before you or the doctor can tell just what is coming on).

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Saccharin
Because of the sugar shortage we have been using saccharin instead of sugar. Some people tell us saccharin will eventually cause serious trouble, even cancer. (K. V. T.)
Answer—The chemical substance used to give a sweet taste like the taste of sugar is called saccharin. The word saccharin is an adjective meaning sugary, sickeningly sweet, such as a saccharine smile or saccharine poetry. In my opinion anybody may use up to five grains of saccharin a day with impunity. There is no ground for the fancy that it may eventually injure health in any way. Ordinarily a quarter-grain to one-half grain of saccharin in tea or coffee gives approximately the sweet taste of a teaspoonful of sugar.
Bow Legs
Will any tonic, exercise, massage or other treatment correct bow legs?
Answer—Only orthopedic surgery (on the bent bones) will correct bow-legs in a person over six years of age. (Copyright 1945 by John F. Dille Co.)

Americans Double Quota In Seventh War Bond Campaign

Washington, July 12—(U.P.)—Final returns in the nation's seventh war loan drive showed today that the American people bought nearly twice the amount of bonds they were asked to purchase. Total sales were $26,313,000,000, compared with a goal of $14,000,000,000. Outgoing Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., called the drive a demonstration of faith in America. He said the war bond program would stand as "a powerful bulwark to the economy of the nation both now and in the future."

bombs released over Wakayama started intense fires. The resulting updrafts then caused incendiaries released later to fly back into the bombs bay where they ripped off the door and damaged the horizontal stabilizer. The B-29 did a half-loop and headed again over the burning city.

Lt. Richard R. Baskett, bombardier, Holto, Kans., said it was "like the middle of a horror movie—turmoil raged inside the plane as loose equipment began to hit the crew."

Millionaire Field Fears Race Strife

Portland, Ore., July 12—(U.P.)—Marshall Field, publisher of the Chicago Sun and New York PM, in Portland today on behalf of the American Council on race relations, said he is concerned about the attitude of white persons toward members of other races.

"If drives against a particular group get started, they get out of control quickly. Then there's no telling what the outcome will be," he said. Field reiterated statements that he is not interested in buying a northwest paper.
