POLE INDUSTRY FACING LACK OF TRANSPORTATION

Lack of Facilities Paralyzes Poland's Chance of Industrial Strength.

By M. S. Handler
(United Press Correspondent)
Kattowice, Polish Silesia, July 5.—(Delayed)—(U.P.)—Poland has emerged from the war with the greatest industrial potential of any country between Russia and the Atlantic—but her national economy today virtually is paralyzed.

The paralysis is primarily due to lack of road transport. Unofficial estimates indicate that it would take 100,000 vehicles, delivered over a period of a year to put Poland's economy back to anything like normal.

The United States is the only country that might be in a position to deliver the trucks within that period and thus may hold a key to Poland's problem.

Silesia Area Intact
A survey of the upper Silesia industrial areas discloses that this area—one of the most highly industrialized in the world—survived the war almost intact. This is the principal asset of the new Polish state as it gets ready for a new start in the world.

In addition to its own great steel plants and coal and iron mines within the borders of pre-war Poland, the Poles now have incorporated the tremendous industrial plant and numerous mines between the old borders and the Neisse and Oder rivers.

The new and the old industrial regions are what makes Poland potentially the greatest industrial power in Europe, west of the Soviet.

Hundreds upon hundreds of big modern mills, great synthetic oil plants and mines crowd up- per Silesia.

Many Factories
In touring the region one is never out of sight of great factories or mine elevators. They are to the right of you, to the left, in front and in back. The industries are connected with a first class road network, some of them with four car lanes. Extensive power lines feed the plants, most of which are equipped with modern electric furnaces, the latest types of rolling equipment, stamping machines and cranes. Railroad sidings give the plants immediate access to main rail trunk lines.

One of the principal industrial features is that coal mines and coking plants exist adjacent to smelters and rolling mills.

Excellent Housing
There are hundreds of towns where the workers enjoy excellent housing. In very few industrial areas is such good housing found as in Silesia. Streets are paved and the store fronts on the main streets are attractive. Some of the schools would compare favorably with the best in the United States.

There is also intensive farming. Wheat and rye fields are cultivated right up to the factory walls so that one gets the impression that the plants are set in the midst of big farms.

There is one flaw in the picture. There is no transportation.

Oregon Payrolls Decline in Year

Salem, Ore., July 13.—(U.P.)—There was a decline of 12,112 workers on Oregon payrolls covered by the unemployment compensation commission during the past year, it was reported by the commission today.

More than two thirds of the decrease was noted in Multnomah county, while smaller declines were also reported in Umatilla, Klamath, Coos, Jackson, Columbia, Clatsop, Polk and Lincoln counties.

IRRIGATION EASES OFF IN VALLEY ORCHARDS

Though irrigating continues in the valley during the present hot spell, it has started to ease off, Manager Spencer of the Medford Irrigation district reports. Many of the larger orchards have received a thorough wetting down. Thinning is in progress now in many orchards and the pears are developing favorably.

First peaches, from the Phoenix district, have appeared in local stores. They are Mayberries, one of the earliest varieties. Main crop of peaches is not due until the middle of August.
