

INTERNAL STRIFE ONE OF POLAND'S MAJOR PROBLEMS

Restoring of National Economy also Listed as Hazard For Warsaw Government.

By M. S. Handler

Warsaw, July 9—(Delayed)—
(U.P.)—The two biggest tasks of the Warsaw government are to overcome internal dissension and put the national economy back on its feet.

The task of rallying the mass of Poles behind the government is expected to take a long time. It will take education and conciliation.

It is plain that there are "unreconstructed" elements throughout Poland. That doesn't mean that these elements are actively opposing the government.

Adjustment Difficult
But many persons find it difficult to adjust themselves and their psychology to Poland's new orientation. They are full of uncertainty and doubt. Their attitude is one of watchful waiting.

It is impossible to ascertain how many such persons there are, but there is little likelihood they could or would oppose the government actively. The government does not seem to have much to fear from these persons.

One class in Poland which is watching events and waiting for results is the peasants.

The ultimate orientation of the peasants appears to be linked to the success or failure of the land reform. They have received small strips of land, running up to 11 acres, but they lack horses, livestock and farm implements. It will take several harvests to determine whether they are satisfied.

Plan Tractor Stations
The government is planning to create tractor stations to be operated by cooperatives as soon as it can get enough machines. It also plans to open agricultural schools to teach the peasants more scientific farming. Credits will be issued by central banks to aid purchases.

Judging from conversations with peasants who have benefited by the land distribution, it would appear they are satisfied with the land but they want horses, cows, pigs and plows. They are open to conviction, of course, and if they succeed in making a living from their strips they will undoubtedly throw their support to the government.

Allied recognition of the new government is helping consolidate the regime's position since it has resolved the conflict of many persons who formerly owed allegiance to the London government and followed its orders.

There is also the problem of relations with the Soviet union and 100 years of mistrust and suspicion cannot be overcome in a few months.

Wendt Dairy Ranch On Old Stage Road Leased, Herd Sold

Robert Waugh, owner of a ranch in the Applegate district, has purchased the entire dairy herd of registered guernseys belonging to Chester Wendt, and leased the Wendt ranch on the Old Stage road. He is continuing operation of the ranch as a grade A dairy, it was announced today. The Wendt herd was formerly owned by Ginger Rogers on her Rogue river ranch.

Waugh and his wife came to the valley last year from San Francisco, and purchased the Klinehammer ranch in the Applegate. Waugh has moved 40 head of dairy cows from the Applegate ranch to the Wendt ranch for operation of the dairy, and plans to use the Applegate place as a hay and beef stock ranch and pasture.

Stamm is Chosen As President Of Local Montanans

E. A. Stamm, former resident of Butte, Montana, was elected president of the local Montana group for the ensuing year at the annual picnic meeting of former Montana residents held in Ashland Lithia park Sunday. Dave Wilson was elected vice-president, and Harold Brew secretary-treasurer.

Francis Walker, president for the past year, presided at the noon business meeting, followed by a picnic dinner and reunion. Mrs. Eve Prentice's accordion students played several pieces. The next reunion of the group will be held in July next year.

Lady Bug Shipment Released Near G. P.

Grants Pass, July 17—L. W. "Bugs" Higgins arrived Sunday with 60 million more lady bugs which were released in local hop yards. Higgins arrived from Dobbins, Calif., and said he obtained the lady bugs in the Sierra Nevada range in California. This is the second shipment in Josephine county, and there is now approximately 185 million in Oregon and Washington.

Grape Growers To Battle Rollbacks

San Francisco, July 17—(U.P.)—The Dry Wine Grape Growers Protective association today announced its members would fight a scheduled rollback of Office of Price administration ceiling prices for dry wine grapes. The OPA proposed to cut wine grape ceilings from $120 to $50 per ton. The growers association contended the $50 a ton price would not meet cost of wine grape production.

Santa Makes July Mission

(Acme Telephoto)
Mrs. Violenne McClurg and 2½-year-old Buford Jr. planned to have Daddy Buford McClurg, captain, USMC, home for Christmas, but the Marines had other plans and so Christmas was postponed. Capt. McClurg finally got his leave and came home in July to find the Xmas tree drooping but still intact. Untouched presents were then opened.

Caves Popularity Retained Despite Limited Service

Grants Pass, July 17—Popularity of the Oregon Caves as a vacation spot continues, and although active operations at the Caves ceased immediately after Pearl Harbor, limited guide service has been continuously maintained. At present two guides are on duty, Dick Rowley, who has been guide at the Caves for more than 30 years, and Mr. Willets, caretaker at the chalet.

During June this year 830 people made the trip through the caverns, practically doubling the number of June last year. In June, 1942, a total of 2617 visited the Caves. While limited guide service is maintained there is no provision for serving meals or hotel accommodations.

COURT HOUSE IN SEASONAL LULL

The mid-summer lull is now underway at the courthouse with little activity outside of routine departmental activities. Many of the employees are now taking their annual vacations.

The courts are also in the doldrums with only hearing of motions, routine arguments and divorce proceedings. No cases are set for trial. August is the month when the state supreme court and most of the circuit courts take vacations. Circuit Judge Herbert K. Hanna has made no announcement of his plans, but will probably devote the month to writing decisions and rulings, and possibly take a week or ten days' leave.

No date has yet been set for the two civil actions assigned to Judge Dal M. King of Coos county by the state supreme court. Judge King was here a month ago and heard motions in both actions. One is the suit of Edwin Taylor, Applegate farmer, against the Southern Oregon Mining company for alleged failure to fulfill the dirt replacing clause of a dredging contract, and the other is against the Tiller Lumber company for wage settlements.

WPB Cancels Truck Tire Tube Projects

Washington, July 17—(U.P.)—The War Production Board today announced cancellation of 21 expansion projects for manufacturing truck tire tubes.

W. James Sears, deputy director of WPB's rubber bureau, said the expansions were authorized by the defense plant corp. If the projects had been finished, he said, the total cost would have been about $11,000,000.

BEANS REMOVED FROM OPA PRICE CONTROL
