Wanted—More Waves

The War Advertising committee has asked the newspapers of Oregon to issue an urgent call for women to join the WAVES at once.

The U. S. Navy has launched upon the greatest sea offensive in the history of the world—an assault that must be expanded to administer the "coup de grace" to the Japanese Empire.

THE type of warfare now being waged in the Pacific is costly in casualties. The record shows that combined casualties in the conquest of Saipan and Peleliu were 25 per cent of the attacking force.

IT is encouraging to know that the skill of medical officers and corpsmen and WAVES of the U. S. Navy has established the amazing record of returning 98 per cent of all wounded to recovery.

WAVE recruits will fill countless jobs at naval bases here and overseas. The pay is good, the work interesting. Opportunities for travel and education are, of course, many.

The O. P. A.

Some kind friend has sent us the text of a speech delivered by Senator E. H. Moore of Oklahoma from which the following is an extract:

Mr. President, the Congress is about to be called upon to extend OPA. The manner in which we meet the challenge inherent in this request will be the measure of our faith in American democracy under the Constitution.

There are a few fundamentals on which our decisions should be based: First, Artificial control of prices and arbitrary distribution of commodities are repugnant to the conception of free trade and enterprise as encompassed by the Constitution.

Second, The Constitution is the supreme law of the land, in war or in peace. The guarantees of the Bill of Rights and other provisions of the Constitution protecting essential liberties are not suspended by the existence of a state of war.

Third, It is axiomatic that the law of supply and demand may not be diverted from its economic orbit without a corresponding punishment to those subject to the law.

Fourth, Our experiment in the field of governmental rationing and price control has failed to accomplish even a small degree of the benefits hoped for by those who were persuaded to depart from the Constitution.

Anyone who knows the facts can.

(1) Artificial control of prices and arbitrary distribution of commodities are not the ESSENCE of a socialistic state. The essence of a socialistic state is public ownership and operation of all business, with the elimination of profit.

(2) True. But by statutes passed according to law and the U. S. Constitution, the war powers of the President in war are practically unlimited, and no important laws of this nature have been held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

(3) The fundamental law of supply and demand has been controlled, influenced and diverted from its NORMAL economic orbit in this country for 100 years and will no doubt continue to be for another 100. No modern capitalistic state could long endure where the law of supply and demand were allowed free, uncontrolled play and operation.

(4) The administration of the OPA has been, and properly can be criticized from many angles, and there is vast room for improvement particularly in the direction of practicality, common sense and freedom from red tape and just plain horse-sense. But that does not mean it has been a failure or should be dispensed with. To fairly judge the value of anything in the government,—or out of it,—the credits and the debits must be added up and balanced.

THE OPA has had a terrifically difficult job to do and has at times been terribly irksome and has aroused tremendous popular criticism and opposition. But it is the conviction of this department that the good it has accomplished has far outbalanced the evils caused and were it to be abolished before the present war ends, the results would be deplorable and from the standpoint of our economic stability, might well be disastrous.—R. W. R.

Returning Veterans Eligible For Homes
Washington, July 18—(U.P.)—John B. Blandford, Jr., national housing administrator, announced today that families of returning veterans and men in service are now eligible to obtain vacant privately-financed war housing on an equal basis with essential war workers.

Ex-Mailman Now Postal Executive
Washington, July 18—(U.P.)—Jesse M. Donaldson, 59, who became a letter carrier 37 years ago, was sworn in today as first assistant postmaster general. In his new office Donaldson ranks second in the department to Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan who administered the oath of office.

Wyoming and Montana vie for second place in the nation's wool production, Texas is first.

CHAMBER BOARD MEETING FRIDAY

The semi-monthly meeting of the Jackson County chamber of Commerce board of directors will be held Friday noon in the newly decorated conference room of the chamber.

In addition to routine business and committee reports, Manager Frank Hill will outline discussions at the recent national regional meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Portland.

Congressman Harris Ellsworth, now on the Pacific coast on a vacation, will speak at the board meeting later this month or early in August unless an emergency calls him to Washington.

William Kolb of Kolb and Dill, comedians, on fishing trip here.

Road to Derby crossing Rogue river on new bridge near McLeod is completed.
