MORE RABBIT FOOD, LESS APPENDICITIS
By "rabbit food" I mean fodder, feed, hay, vegetables, whole grains, greens. More specifically I mean fresh, raw vegetables, relishes, herbs, leaves you and your children should eat every day, either as salad or as appetizer or relish but so seldom do.

As a matter of fact we know that vitamin B1 in adequate amount is essential to maintain normal alimentary function (good digestion) and normal carbohydrate metabolism (utilization of starch and sugar for production of energy). If there is a constant B1 deficiency in the diet, it is reasonable, I believe, to assume that the individual will not have a sufficient degree of natural immunity to protect him against invasion of the appendix by the various strains of bacteria we find responsible for acute appendicitis.

And that's all I can say about the nature and cause of acute appendicitis. Whether my notion of it appeals to you or not, I may add this suggestion: Even if your kids are sissified and conditioned against spinach, lettuce, raw cabbage, beet greens, turnip greens, celery, raw carrot, raw turnip, raw potato etc., as so many permitted children are in Yankeeland, you can still combat the evil influence of malnutrition by keeping always in the house a supply of plain wheat and encouraging the kids to chew it (in place of gum), to eat it (cracked in coffee grinder and cooked more or less as breakfast cereal) or as a main ingredient in various appetizing items as described in the pamphlet "Wheat to Eat" available on written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope (clipping of this item will not suffice). Plain wheat, unrefined, unprocessed, is the richest, most economical, most healthful food source of vitamin B-complex, and besides it is good to eat.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
Sickly Girls
I work in an office among a dozen stenographers, most of us over thirty, a few around twenty. Almost daily one, sometimes two or three, are absent or hardly able to work because of "the curse," or headache. Can you give us any advice or information. (Miss R. C. H.)
Answer—It is still not too late for the younger girls to try to overcome their lack of education, physical education. They should at least walk to and from work, not ride. Better, they should go to the gymnasium daily—to play games, swim, do class drill, whatever active exercise they can get. If they are unable to afford that, then they should at least spend a few minutes every night and every morning doing the belly-breathing exercise, rolling somersaults, playing
