Ye Smudge Pot

By Arthur Perry

"Now that the war is over . . ." the past week has become the popular phrase of Oregon journalists, upon which to hang an arm-length editorial.

• • •

California boasts (almost) 450,000 will be unemployed within its borders by mid-November. This total should attract 50 000 promoters, with Santa Claus schemes, like $65 at 200.

That Vidkun Quisling of Norway,, seems to have been more of a traitorous traitor than either Messrs. Petain and Laval of France. Vidkun talked Herr Hitler against his better judgment, to invade his native land. He capitalized his hatred of Britain at $40,000 per month. He was, with all his other faults a greedy puppet.

CUCUMBER TIRADE

"The woman of the home was gracious, charming ,a good cook. I anticipated enjoying her dinner to which I had been invited . . . She served fried chicken and chicken gravy and corn on the cobs and beets and iced tea and home made rolls. I was thoroughly enjoying all of these and had about emptied my plate when she started the potato salad around the table. The salad looked delicious I took a rather large helping. Then I took a bite, a large bite, as I had implicit faith in her kitchen expertness . . . . You probably have already guessed it. All my dreams disappeared. All my thoughts of what a wonderful cook. For in that potato salad were slices of cucumbers. The salad was absoluted spoiled. My entire meal was spoiled. I found myself unable to partake of any more of her good with the exception of a couple more pieces of chicken and another bit of corn. However, I took these to kill the taste of the cucumbers. I don't want to seem naggy on all this but it seems to me someone nas to halt this contemptible habit of using cucumbers as food."—(Hutchinson, Kan., News)

Do You Prefer Suicide?

It has been said that opportunity knocks at the door but once.

We fear the old adage will apply to this discovery of the atomic bomb.

For the more one learns about it, the more apparent it becomes that here for the first time in human history the opportunity to secure world peace with comparative ease, has been offered.

• • • • •

THE bomb is very difficult and expensive to make —unlike weapons based on gunpowder it will therefore never come into general use.

But hand it over to the United Nations, restrict its use to the enforcement of peace, and where would there be a nation, or group of nations, that would ever dare to break the peace?

And isn't it reasonable to believe every civilized nation desirous of peace would join the League for its own protection?

• • • • •

AS to the nations outside of the League, and not desirous of peace, how eager would they be to tackle the League's atomic power even if they had solved the secret of the bomb?

They might do great damage for a short period but it would mean their complete annihilation.

• • • • •

ON the other hand if this action is NOT taken, and the nations of the world, through motives of rivalry, selfishness and fear, enter into atomic bomb competition, as they entered into armament competions in the past, not only will world peace be impossible, but human existence, on this mundane sphere also—at least—as it has been in the past.

Here then is the opportunity.

Are the people on this earth so bereft of not only intelligence but so insulated to what is supposed to be the strongest human instinct, that of self-preservation as to fail to take advantage of it?

If the reactions to the proposal hereabouts are at all typical of the world at large, they ARE!

It Was Not "Unconditional"

Just to keep the record straight:

In spite of the obvious facts, "unconditional surrender" zealots continue to insist Japan surrendered UNCONDITIONALLY.

Even the United States state department so maintains.

How can ANYONE deny that this is precisely what Japan did NOT do?

• • • • •

AT Potsdam the 3 Great Powers demanded the immediate surrender of Japan or she would be completely destroyed.

In answer to that demand Japan declared she would surrender on ONE CONDITION: that the integrity of the Emperor of Japan would not be impaired.

That was an important condition. This was true especially to the people of Japan, for the integrity—that is the domestic authority—of the Emperor is the very cornerstone of Japan's national existence—spiritual and material.

It was less important, but still important to the government of this country, for in many quarters throughout the land, the head of the Japanese Emperor had been demanded—very much as the hanging of the Kaiser had been demanded by England in 1918.

• • • • •

IN FACT as all will recall there were some prominent members of the U. S. government who believed that because of this condition the acceptance of the Japanese offer would be denied.

But they were wrong. It was not denied.

In fact the retention of the Emperor was the cornerstone of the entire acceptance, the Emperor being designated as the authority to receive the allied terms and transmit them to his people.

• • • • •

IT IS becoming more and more apparent in fact, that but for the services of the Emperor, the task of persuading the Japanese generals in foreign lands with their huge armies largely intact to surrender, would have been a gigantic task if not an impossible one.

And yet this talk continues of "unconditional surrender.

What Is a Fascist?

In leftish circles the term Fascist is an epithet.

It is usually accompanied by a sneer and applied to anyone and everyone who dares criticize communism or Communists. And this is especially true of those who have the temerity to maintain that Soviet Russia is not accurately represented by a plaster cast of Generalissimo Stalin, with a prayer book in one hand, a crucifix in the other, and a halo over his head.

In short the term is very loosely and inaccurately employed. So we are pleased to note the War Department recently issued an official definition of what a Fascist—that is the American type—really is.

We quote:

Fascism is government by the few for the few. * * * The American Fascist poses as a 100% American and Fascists:

I. Pit religious, racial and economic groups against each other in order to break down national unity.

II. Can't tolerate the brotherhood of man or international cooperation, both of which contradict the theory of the master race.

III. Indiscriminately pin the label "red" on people and proposals they oppose.

So there you are, brethren, everything cleared up!

A Fascist is one who names those individuals and principles he opposes as "red". And a "Red" is one who names those individuals and principles HE opposes as Fascist—

Well aren't "we all" about where we started from?

News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

Spenders Held Pressing Unlikely Cause for Getting More Free Government Money

Washington, Aug. 22 — The drive of the spenders to stampede congress with depression pressure publicity is not making much headway yet. A couple of rather influential administration senators have talked around among their colleagues and reached two conclusions, (1) congress is apt to be tighter than before fore about money, and (2) the government just simply can't provide everyone with a job, or the job he wants at the pay he wants

Paul Mallon

Behind this resistance to the depression wolf-cry is a situation becoming increasingly plain even in the front-page news. Mayor LaGuardia flailed the microphone the other day, for instance, with some cyclonic contentions that we are heading for a terrific unemployment, depression and what not from cancellation of war contracts, unless congress immediately does something. And he knew what had to be done, specifying more appropriations for bigger public works, including $1,250,000,000 of them in his own pocket. He also gave some financial advice, based on his inside information from the financial district, that bondholders were dumping government securities.

THE outside information from the financial district in the same newspapers a few pages away from LaGuardia gave not the slightest hint of depression. People who had their money, including life savings, in stocks were not selling them. Prices were not depressed, although the owners had heard the line offered by LaGuardia, not only for weeks but all during the latter years of the war.

An exceptionally responsible financial authority, the committee for economic development, set forth simultaneously the result of a survey of industries, predicting only 552,000 persons able and willing to work would be unemployed and employment in the country would total 53,448,000 the first full year—practically, the 60,000,000 jobs Mr. Roosevelt wanted, if you consider the men left in the armed services

THE spenders thus are having a difficult time trying to make out the hopeless case necessary to get themselves more free government money. LaGuardia further claimed "Congress has done nothing," a claim any congressman can explode to full ridiculousness by adding up the $27,200,000,000 in the spending program already authorized mainly by them.

The wilting little flower, who apparently is generating some hopes for personal but not patriotic national revival, also admonished citizens not to spend their money—and thus furnish jobs—but to keep their bonds and buy as little as possible. This seems to be a defeatist policy generated by motives beyond my imagination or ability to reason. That kind of advice would force people out of jobs and create unemployment.

Senators Wagner and Murray (who are not the two unidentified senators quoted at the outset, but generally working along the C. I. O. road with LaGuardia) came out of the White House conference saying Mr. Truman favored their bill to give every man a government job if he does not find another one (cost unestimated) and boost the unemployment compensation. However other senators say privately Mr. Truman inherited this program from Mr. Roosevelt and thought he should go along with it. They noted that so far he has not, however, joined the LaGuardia-C. I. O. depression stampede.

Consequently it may be wise to await developments.

INCREASE DUE IN JUVENILE CRIMES

Sacramento, Aug. 22—(U.P.)—State Youth Authority Director Karl Holton today anticipated a mounting volume of juvenile delinquency in California in the next three years, declaring that nearly every phase of the reconversion period points to greater crime.

Delinquency problems will be bred by the migration of thousands of families hunting for new jobs, Holton asserted.

"All crime statistics go up in a period of transience," he said. "Population movements break down everything that is stable in the community."

WAR DEPARTMENT GETS CIO ADVICE

New York, Aug. 22—(U.P.)—Irving Abramson, national director of the Montgomery Ward organizing committee, CIO, today called upon the war department to pay Montgomery Ward and company workers $1,342,000 in back wages before the army withdraws from the company's seized plants.

In a letter to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Abramson said that "the war department will add its own to a long series of injustices committed against the Montgomery Ward employees if it withdraws from these plants and facilities without having the back wages paid."
