

Record of the 91st

"Powder River, Let 'er Buck" was a familiar slogan here in southern Oregon in the early days of Camp White when the 91st Division was in training.

INTEREST here in the 91st was high for more than one reason. This outfit was first activated and trained at Camp White; many western men, including boys of this community were in the ranks; the 91st in World War I was also a western contingent and established the gallant traditions of the division at Meuse-Argonne, Lys, Audenarde, Petegem and Kasteelwijk in 1918.

UNDER the leadership of the kindly, able Major General William Livesay, the 91st covered itself with glory at Chianni, Monghidoro, Loiano and many battles which were front page news during the Italian campaign. Three times it was the first unit of the Fifth Army to objectives—Leghorn, Pisa and Monticelli. It broke through the Gothic Line, the Berta Line and the Caesar Line. The 91st became an outfit feared and respected by the enemy, praised and admired by its allies.

GENERAL LIVESAY and the many officers and men of his command were well known and liked here in southern Oregon. People of this community took personal pride in the battle record of the 91st Division. The pine tree shoulder patch, so familiar on Medford streets in 1942 and 1943, has become an emblem of high courage. When the history of the war is written many acts of personal and collective gallantry of this outfit will be found recorded in its pages. — H. G.

Make Marine Base Permanent

The word that the Marine Barracks at Klamath Falls will serve as a marine corps separation center for the Pacific Northwest and northern California is pleasing to those who live this side of the Cascades. The excellent facilities of the marine installation in the hills near Klamath Falls should lend themselves admirably to this new activity. Officers and men of the corps have been loud in their praise of the warm hospitality and friendliness of Klamath County citizens—a spirit that the Leathernecks will welcome when they arrive at the new separation center.

CAPT. LOWELL COGGESHALL, of the Navy, has shown that the altitude and invigorating climate of Klamath County speeds the cure of malaria and filariasis. Here is an ideal reconditioning center for the marines who will have many assignments in distant and tropical lands in years to come.

WE HOPE that the announcement that the Barracks will be used as a separation center indicates the continued usefulness of this establishment in the future. Klamath Falls has the only marine corps installation in the northwest at this time. We see no reason why it should not become a permanent base. — H. G.

News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

Washington, Sept. 5.—As I said Monday, people do not have the slightest idea of what has happened to this country fiscally during this war, although the key to it is only half hidden in new figures of Budget Director Harold Smith. In the last world war, our spending was a drop in the bucket we now hold. In 1919 (fiscal year) we reached the war expenditures height of $18,500,000,000. That war really only lasted two years for us as far as expenditures were required.

THE principal of a Colorado junior high school has issued an ultimatum against lassies who pursue an education in rolled up overalls, and shirt-tails unfurled. "Girls old enough for junior high school should dress like girls," he proclaimed.

and 1940. Today we find ourselves on a government spending plane (next fiscal year) 250 per cent higher. Taxation has sprouted faster and lofter. We paid the federal government $2,000,000,000 in 1933 and $45,000,000,000 last year—more than 22 times as much. For this year the treasury says we will pay $36,000,000,000 or 18 times as much. While expenditure is up ten times or 1000 per cent since 1933, taxation is up 1800 per cent to this coming first peace year.

The federal debt of $22,000,000,000 in 1933 (which scared everyone when Mr. Roosevelt doubled it in six years) is now above $265,000,000,000 and will go to $300,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year. The debt is up 15 times, or 1500 per cent since 1933.

THINK of it carefully and you will see where we are—expenses up 1000 per cent, taxes up 1800 per cent, and debt up 1500 per cent in 12 years. This is the next postwar world in which we must live and plan our way. It is a fiscal stratosphere. This is, not unnaturally, a dizzy height at which we find ourselves, entirely different in all considerations from any fiscal surroundings known by man before.

WE see our people do not yet seem to appreciate where we are. We seem to be going about things as if we thought we were back on the old plane. Hence the C.I.O. economists, Mayor LaGuardia, et al., come glibly forward with the proposition that the government must give every man a job, entirely oblivious of the tariffed atmosphere, and without giving any sound consideration to the necessity of maintaining our balance in the face of these tremendous new influences of taxation, spending and debt. They want spending programs instituted and promised, unmindful of the dizzy spinning program in which we are involved—which will be at least $75,000,000,000 for the next 21 months. On the other side, tax reduction is being debated in the same old way. And in the middle, the government is freely entering upon a new spending program, and all as if nothing had happened.

IF I had anything to do with it I would marshal the most imaginative and sound financial minds of the country and set them to work out a balanced nonpolitical program which would establish some firm ground or possibilities under our feet. The time has passed when you can let pressure groups haphazardly plan the economy, and then play politics with it. These groups do not have the responsibility of taking care of the country, but only of themselves. We are up at the top of the flagpole. We will have to get down, or build some substantial platform under us which will enable us to live up here in security.

COMMUNICATIONS

Letters to the Editor must bear the name and address of the writer. Although the use of initials for publication is permissible, the Mail Tribune reserves the right to edit all letters with a view to clarity and condensation.

"The Universal Club" To the Editor:—There is indeed something new under the sun; something in the entertainment field, and which will, without doubt, hold a universal appeal to the many thousands of men and women of high moral standing, and especially to those returning from the various Armed Services to again take up and refresh their lives.

These unique Clubs are a real innovation decidedly new and different and, withal, diversified entertainment at its best. These two Clubs, the Universal Club for Men and the Rose Bowl Club for Women, have almost a dual purpose, namely, that each strives for a real social America; that all members are carefully selected, and if they but adhere to a few simple rules, a real social and better America can be accomplished.

The leaders of both these Clubs will have a real opportunity to establish prestige in their communities by bringing into the groups professional men and women from all walks of life and introduce them into true, happy, social environments, such as music, lectures, dramatics, dancing, banquets and other informal activities.

The programs at each meeting are bound to hold a universal appeal, putting the Clubs on a firm foundation, and each member will feel that his or her time and money have been well invested, and they will go forth from each meeting feeling too large for gossip, too noble for anger, too strong for fear, and all of which will make for greater companionship and happier and more useful lives.

Open for comments for the good of the new proposed organization.

THUNDERSTORMS ARE BLAMED FOR BROKEN WATCHES

Columbus, O. (AP)—If the main-spring in your watch is broken, the odds are two to one that a stray thunderstorm is to blame.

Leading Columbus jewelers and watch repairers today aired their age-old theory that main-springs break most frequently after a thundershower.

As proof they reported that during the warm months—the season of thundershowers—their main-spring business increased at least 100 per cent over the winter months.

Sidney C. Howard, a watch repairer for 38 years, said that the rapid change in climate and atmosphere after a thundershower caused the main-spring to contract and break.

Happens in Winter, Too He said that the same thing sometimes happens to a pocket watch which is removed from a warm pocket and left to stand uncovered in a cold room during a winter night.

Robert Smith, public relations director for the Battelle Memorial Institute here, said that although the institute had not conducted any experiments along this line, metallurgists agreed that a change in temperature did affect metals.

"Metallurgists have done some work here with metal alloys used in watches generally," he said, "but not particularly with main-springs."

Alarm Clocks Safer Clocks, however, escape the curious quirk of nature, jewelers said, because clocks have heavier main-springs than watches and are not affected by thundershowers.

Another Columbus jeweler and watch repairer, Ruy Rhodes, said that sometimes delayed reaction to the weather postponed breakage of a main-spring from one to 10 days after a thundershower.

Rhodes also dismissed the widespread belief among laymen that main-springs usually were broken by being wound too tightly. He said that most watches had safety devices which prevented excessive winding.
