

SINGAPORE JAPS GIVE UP ARMS AS BRITISH MOVE IN

Natives Cheer Entry of Imperial Forces—Vanquished Withdraw

Singapore, Sept. 6—(U.P.)—More than 85,000 Japanese troops laid down their arms and evacuated Singapore today as British imperial forces moved in to re-occupy the great far eastern naval base.

Marching smartly through streets jammed with cheering natives, British and Indian troops took over the dockyards and fortifications they lost to the Japanese more than three years ago. An official communique said the re-occupation was proceeding according to plan without opposition. The surrendering Japanese were disarmed and permitted to withdraw across the causeway from Singapore island to the Malayan mainland.

Looting Halted
British troops guarding the causeway found a number of Japanese attempting to carry off loot from the city. They were searched on the spot and stripped of all their booty.

One Japanese officer protested the forced removal of his command from Singapore to the northern side of the causeway, because it meant living in native huts instead of the city's swank mansions. He was "overruled" in short order.

Among the 85,000 surrendering Japanese were 85 generals and an undetermined number of admirals.

British military authorities released a large number of British, American and allied prisoners of war held in Singapore.

BEAR SEVERELY BITES HAND OF WOMAN AT LAKE

Details of the story of how a Santa Barbara, Calif., woman was severely bitten by a bear while picnicking in Crater Lake park last Saturday were revealed today. The bears have been damaging cars and stealing food since the park opened but this is the first report of injury to a park visitor.

The victim, Mrs. Glen Sanders, was bitten on the left hand and knocked to the ground when she attempted to frighten the animal away from the lunch spread on a table in the park rim camp ground. She was given first aid by another camp visitor and Thomas J. Parker, assistant park superintendent. Mrs. Sanders, with her husband, a private in the air corps, and two small children were en route to Geiger field, Spokane, Wash., where the serviceman is stationed. They were advised by Parker to consult a physician and were to have stopped in Bend.

The problem of protecting both the bears and camp visitors is one of considerable concern, it is stated, and visitors are advised not to feed the animals. Mrs. Sanders had not been feeding the animal which attacked her, but found the bear returning to the picnic table when she returned with the family car. Pvt. Sanders had gone for water at the time of the incident.

Teacher Shortage In Rural Schools Less Pronounced

The shortage of school teachers in Jackson county is not as pronounced now as in the previous four years, the county school superintendent's office reports. A few more high school teachers for country schools are needed. In most of the rural districts teachers have been signed. Some difficulty is being experienced in a couple of districts where housing and boarding are scarce and distant from main centers.

More applications have been received this year from experienced teachers than last year. Many of the former teachers are returning from military service and defense. Two small school coaches have recently reported they would be back soon, and inquired about the chances of getting their former positions.
