Unwise To Keep Atomic Knowledge From World Doctor Says

Washington, Oct. 10—(U.P.)—Dr. Herlow Shapley, director of the Harvard College observatory, told congress today it would be "unwise" to try to keep atomic knowledge from the world "for any appreciable time."

Testifying before a joint senate subcommittee in favor of legislation to provide government support for scientific re-

Guy Martin (right) representing Office of Strategic Services, who "escorted" him to the U. S. after his arrest in Tientsin, China. The smiling, dapper Fritz was on his way to Washington, D. C., and from there will go to Nuremberg for war criminal trials. Standing between Wiedemann and Martin is Capt. Bert Kleibon, public relations officer for AIG.

search, Shapley said atomic energy along with other forms of "essential knowledge" can be of value to the whole world.

Serve All Mankind
"Scientists," he declared, "are world citizens serving all mankind. If they are to help make the world safe for civilization, they must work for a future in which narrowly national interests diminish and world-wide responsibilities increase."

Meanwhile the house military affairs committee began hearings on legislation requested by President Truman to establish a commission to supervise the development and control of atomic power.

Scheduled to be heard were Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, director of the atomic bomb project, and possibly Dr. Vannevar Bush, director of the office of scientific research and development, who played a leading part in the development of the atomic bomb.

Atomic Commission
Committee Chairman Andrew J. May, D. Ky., author of the bill, promised it would be "expedited in accordance with the president's request." The measure provides for presidential appointment, subject to senate approval, or a nine-member atomic energy commission having complete control within the U. S. of atomic energy production and use.

In the senate similar legislation was bogged down in a controversy as to which committee should consider the measure.

The joint senate commerce and military affairs subcommittee before which Shapley testified is not considering atomic problems as such, but the whole question of scientific research in this country and how to advance it in the future.

The bill before the group would establish a government foundation for scientific research which would make funds available to scientists and scientific institutions for the advancement of scientific knowledge.

"You sure see plenty of Riverside Tires on our factory parking lot!"

"I looked around, last year, when my first set of tires wore out. You'd be surprised how many of the gang on my shift rode back-and-forth to the plant on Riversides! NOT because Riversides is planned to come on their cars, but because they deliberately CHOSE them... chose them in preference to all other brands!"

Industrial workers are typical of the millions of car-owners who have switched to Riversides. All these folks, like yourself, want a tire that gives them most for their money; long wear on rugged roads; real protection against blow-outs. (Riversides today are 12% stronger than our pre-war tires!)
