SOLDIER INSISTS ON BEAT-UP RIGHT

Wilmar, Cal., Oct. 26—(U.P.)—Soldier John Michael Tessar told police today that since he pays the bills in his family he thinks he has the right to beat his wife.

Sheriffs' deputies arrested Tessar, 43, and took his wife, Violet to the hospital with severe bruises, a brain concussion and two fractured vertebrae after she had called for help.

"I'll do the same thing any time I please as long as I am paying the bills," police quoted him. He said his wife did not have his dinner ready when he arrived home.

Mrs. Tessar said her husband hit her in the face with his fist, knocked her to the floor and kicked her several times. She is also suffering from a black eye, back and chest bruises, a broken tooth, contusions and shock.

TRUSTEESHIP CASE IS DISMISSED BY ACTION OF COURT

An order dismissing Mrs. Lucille Kennedy as trustee of the estate of Buren C. Kennedy, "a missing person" was signed in probate court yesterday by Judge J. B. Coleman. Kennedy, a prisoner in a Japanese camp near Shanghai was recently liberated and has returned. He was a workman on Wake island when it was captured by the Japanese, and was officially adjudged "a missing person" by the government, August 10, 1942. Nothing was heard from Kennedy during his captivity, and his fate was in doubt.

The Kennedys lived on a farm near the town of Rogue River, and several months ago Mrs. Kennedy, employed by the Southern Pacific here, sold the place for $2500, after her appointment as trustee. Kennedy was one of many Jackson and Josephine county residents employed in building air bases in the Pacific.

Kennedy returned recently and filed a petition setting forth that his wife, as trustee of the estate had given a full accounting, and asked that she be dismissed as trustee. A "courtesy interest" in the estate was duly set aside for Kennedy, as the law provides.

Attorney Otto Frohnmeyer represented the Kennedys in the action.

Armstrong had been buried at the scene of the crash, along with Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Gosliner and Mrs. Gosliner's sister all of Portland.

Armstrong's body, which was disinterred at the request of his wife, will be shipped to Lindsay, Calif., tonight for final rites which will be held Monday.

Morris said relatives of the Gosliners had placed a bronze plaque at the scene of burial, giving place and date of birth and date of death of all the victims.

Air Line Expansion Plan

Civil aeronautics board approval has authorized United Air Lines to operate an alternate route between Pacific northwest cities and southern California by flying direct from Sacramento to Fresno, thus giving both a coastal and inside routing. Simultaneously, United announced it will start service to Stockton, Modesto, Merced and Visalia, to which cities it has been certificated by the C.A.B., as soon as airport facilities and equipment permit.

The map above also shows applications of United Air Lines to provide additional service by "dropping down" to numerous cities immediately under or close to United's existing air network to provide plane service of trunk-line type. Cities United seeks to add to its existing network are Aberdeen-Hoquiam, Chehalis-Centralia, Yakima, The Dalles, North Bend-Marshfield, Eureka, Salinas, San Luis Obispo, Long Beach, Chico, Klamath Falls, Bend, Baker, Twin Falls, Gooding and Ogden.

Heavy lines show United's existing routes. Broken lines show how, by detouring less than 100 miles from its existing airways, United could add approximately 23 cities.

G.I.s Watch Draft Board Gag On Army's K Ration

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 26—(U.P.)—Local draft board No. 16 agreed today after eating army rations that war is hell unless your cousin is the company cook.

The board members dined last night on army "K" and "C" rations at Jersey City's Belford Inn, at the invitation of six former draftees, most of the "draftees" were gagging before the dinner was through.

Their hosts watched and laughed.

"Boy, is this fun," said Ex-Cpl. James De Lorenzo.

He was watching a bald-headed man slowly choke on a hunk of cheese.

"That's Joe Michalski," Delorenzo said. "He's secretary of this draft board, chum. Yeah, the same outfit that sent me tramping for three years overseas with the fifth army."

Michalski was game. He clutched the box of "K" rations with one hand, while he poked grimly at his cheese with the other. Eight affiliates of No. 16, including three doctors and a woman clerk, sat glumly beside him. Some ate, and some just sighed.

Dr. Jerome Paterno was the only man that the ex-doughs couldn't push over. He ate two boxes of "K" rations, and at least two cans of the greasy "C".

'Why, boys, I don't think the stuff is bad at all," he said. "Come on, give me another portion."

They heaped it on, and Paterno calmly downed it.

"Gee, Doc," Pat Spaldo said, "you would have made one helluva good soldier."

When the last scrap of rations had disappeared, and some of the draft board boys had recovered their breath, everybody shook hands. The banquet was over.

"Where's Paterno?" someone asked.

He was in that place marked "men." They claimed they found the good doctor holding up the door.
