

IMPROVED HEALTH PROGRAM PART OF CHILD EDUCATION

Physical Education Considered Vital Part of School, Teachers Instructed.

Salem, Ore. (U.P.)—If your youngsters should come home from school one of these days and start doing push-ups, curls and a kneeling squat jump in the middle of the living room floor, don't be surprised when he tells you it is part of his homework.

Thanks to the 1945 legislature, Oregon now has a new improved program of health and physical education that is considered by state department of education officials to be as important as how to add two and two and how to spell Mississippi. And the kneeling squat jump is just a small part of their program.

Required Work

All students from first graders to high school seniors enrolled in public schools are required to take the health and physical education instruction as part of their regular school work. However, the law does protect those who are unable to comply fully with the program for physical or religious reasons.

Harold A. Bishop, a discharged World War II veteran, and Miss Dorothea Moore, physical education instructor at the University of Oregon, are supervisors of the program. Bishop is in charge of the boys part of the physical and health training and Miss Moore is girls supervisor.

They have been traveling about the state since Sept. 17 teaching teachers about the law and explaining modernized techniques in physical education and health. These classes for teachers, called workshops, will be continued until Jan. 22.

All elementary school instructors are required to attend the workshop classes, but only high school teachers connected with physical education and health work must be present.

Minor Handicaps

So far, educators say, only two things have hampered the state-wide program. They are lack of gymnasiums and lack of qualified instructors. However, both of these difficulties are minor, they explain.

Among the mental studies are

personal hygiene, nutrition, structure and functions of the human body, first aid, diseases, community health and sanitation and physiology of exercise. The physical aspects of the program include studies of the basic skills and movements, including walking, running, jumping, climbing, throwing, catching, striking, lifting, falling, rhythm and relaxation. Other studies are in balance, strength, agility, flexibility, endurance, power and speed.

So, the next time your youngster wants to do a fish hawk dive from the sofa or a double heel click in the parlor, mothers, just hope Johnny of June will get a good report card, and blame your gray hairs on the state legislators.

POLICE OFFICERS HEAR FBI LEADER IN ADDRESS HERE

Representatives of seven law enforcement agencies attended the semi-annual FBI law enforcement conference held at the Jackson county courthouse last night. Arrangements for the meeting were made by Sheriff Howard Gault, Chief of Police Clatous McCredie and Special Agent Max Greenstreet of the FBI. Capt. Paul Parson of the Oregon state police and representatives of his department from Medford and Grants Pass were among those present.

J. E. Thornton, special agent in charge of the FBI in Oregon, summarized activities of law enforcement officers during the war period particularly in handling of espionage, sabotage and other matters pertaining to the internal security of the country.

In speaking on the subject of post-war crimes, Thornton said that each year since outbreak of war there has been a constant increase in the number of persons arrested and that there are signs of return to gangsterism.

Special Agent R. C. Vogel talked on Detection of Deception, during the course of which he reviewed the history of the subject. Special Agent Howard W. Patterson discussed the National Motor Vehicle Theft Act and hit and run accident investigations. Auto thefts have increased 4.6 per cent in the United States for the first half of 1945, Patterson said.

Memorial Concert To Honor Veterans At Ashland Sunday

Ashland, Nov. 8—A memorial music concert will be given by students of the junior and senior high schools at the junior high school gymnasium Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

The program will be a memorial to men and women of Jackson county who played such a large part in the service of their country during the war.

An address by Senator Earl Newberry will welcome the veterans and thank them for their part in the war. It is planned to have a special section for those in uniform and for those who have been discharged from the service.

Woman Bilked Out Of $650 by Couple Who 'Found' Money

Akron, O.—(U.P.)—There's one woman in Akron who is $650 wiser—even though she lost the money.

Mrs. Marie Sommerville was cashing a check in a downtown bank when a woman near her struck up a conversation. The two walked out of the bank together. Suddenly the stranger pointed out a man who had just picked up a purse from the sidewalk.

At first the man was going to split the "find" with the two women. He told them the purse contained $3,000—and he would split it with them if they could show him they had some money.

Mrs. Sommerville hastened back to the bank and withdrew $600. To that she added the $50 she had with her and gave the whole sum to the other two. She saw neither $650 nor the woman again.

Frisco Warehouse Damaged by Fire

San Francisco, Nov. 8—(U.P.)—A four alarm fire last night caused an estimated $500,000 damage to trucks and merchandise at the California-Nevada-Oregon fast freight line warehouse.

Four firemen were injured in fighting the flames which destroyed the half-block-long building and damaged adjacent structures. The firemen were treated for smoke inhalation and burns.
