

Redskins Thump Gold Hill, 37-7

Jacksonville, Nov. 10—Jacksonville Redskins defeated Gold Hill 37 to 7 in a county league six-man football game at Gold Hill Friday afternoon. Reversing the usual procedure of sticking to the ground in wet weather, the Redskins unleashed a spectacular passing attack after discovering the field was so deep in mud it was impossible to move the ball on the ground. Jacksonville completed 50 per cent of their passes and netted five of their six touchdowns via the air. Gold Hill's lone tally came on a pass.

Farragut, Idaho, Nov. 10—(U.P.) The Farragut navy football team defeated the University of Idaho 14-6 before a small crowd here today that braced bad weather to witness the Bluejacket's second victory over the Vandals this season.

Talent Retains Unbeaten Record

Talent, Nov. 10—Talent high school football team won their 24th straight victory Friday night when they turned back Rogue River 44 to 13 here. Talent led 26-0 at halftime but the Rogues pushed across two scores in the second half against Talent reserves. Frink scored three times for the winners, Williams twice, Dorman once and Schulz once. Kyle scored twice for the losers on long passes.

Talent and Eagle Point will clash for the Southern Oregon championship at Talent next Friday night. Both teams are undefeated.

CUSSING PARROT FROM SOUTH SEAS IS JAIL BOARDER

Lt. Hugh Collins Pet Is County Boarder—Language Too Rugged

"Snafu," a South Seas parrot belonging to Former Lieut. Hugh Collins, is so full of terrible cuss-words, the pet is now quartered in the county jail, by special arrangement with Tony Solger, the county jailer. The bird has the run of the jail corridors, and eats whatever is put before him.

Collins, who served three years in the Pacific theater, brought "Snafu" home with him a couple of months ago, and for awhile he was at the home of his father, Councilman James C. Collins. Its profanity was too much for the Collins family, and the neighborhood, so it was sent to a Portland pet shop. It was a problem parrot there also, and shipped back here by express by its master, and placed in the county jail.

Councilman Collins reports the parrot is full of tricks, and affectionate. In the midst of performing a trick, a stream of profanity is apt to be emitted. When mad, he will bite a finger, with a razor like beak, if opportunity offers. In ordinary talk, the parrot uses army terms and slang.

Lieut. Collins, an attorney now practicing here, picked the parrot up on Black Island in the Dutch East Indies, and adopted it as a pet. It went with him to various army camps, where it acquired its proficiency in cussing, and was a great favorite. The bird is close to three years old, and snow-white with a yellow topknot.

Jailor Solger reports the bird is well-behaved, except for swearing, and has made friends with the inmates.

SUICIDE TRY BY VALENTINO'S GIRL REVEALS ROMANCE

Hollywood, Nov. 10—(U.P.)—Marion Benda, one of the most glamorous girls of the golden Ziegfeld era, tried to die tonight, but only resurrected a past she hoped to bury forever with 16 sleeping pills.

The voluptuous show girl was Rudolph Valentino's last date before he died, intimates of the "Sheik" said, but he never married her.

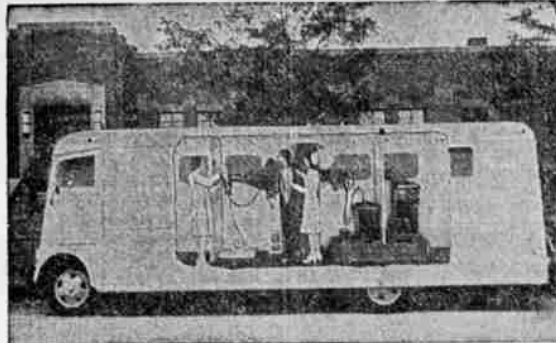

Three other men did, though—a newspaperman who loved her, a baron who gave her $200,000, and a handsome young hockey player who became one of Santa Monica's leading physicians.

Her cousin, Perry Combs, who found her unconscious in the tiny Santa Monica beach home where she gulped the sleeping tablets, said she had been married to the sleek-haired film lover in France but had kept the secret for 20 years.

Combs said the chorine, whose real name was Marion Wilson, also bore him a little girl in 1926—a fact that was denied by everybody else, including all Valentino's intimates and the physician.

"There were 35 women who said the same thing after he died," declared George Ullman, Valentino's manager and roommate at the time of his death. She dated Valentino for a few months before his death in 1926—and was with him the night

Health on Wheels

Interior view of modern mobile X-ray unit. When this completely equipped unit rolls up to a plant, large groups of workers can have their chest X-rayed with no inconvenience. Christmas Seal funds support industrial X-ray programs of tuberculosis associations.

X-RAYS OFFERED FREE OF CHARGE IN WAR UPON TB

"The Jackson County Public Health association pays the bill"—that's the message carried to citizens of this locality as workers in the Mobile X-ray unit campaign started their canvassing of the city to see how many people want chest X-rays.

Recognized for many years as the principal weapon in the detection of tuberculosis, the X-ray now becomes a weapon, available to all citizens, in this fight to eradicate the disease. Mrs. Dwight Findley, county chairman, pointed out. When the modern X-ray on wheels rolls into Jackson County from Grants Pass, the Public Health association members, who are sponsoring the drive with Christmas seal sale funds, hope that every working man will take advantage of this opportunity to learn whether or not he has a healthy chest. Recent figures from the state board of health reveal clearly that men in the industrial age group are the ones who have had tuberculosis without knowing it. The X-ray detects the disease in its early and most easily curable stages.

Only A Minute
With the machine, which comes to Medford, November 29, the greatest number of pictures can be taken at the least expense. It just takes a minute to be photographed. The miniature films are developed on the Mobile Unit. They are mailed back to Portland each night to be read by individual members of the following panel of physicians: Dr. Edward T. Bloomquist, Dr. James T. Speres, Dr. Morton J. Goodman and Dr. James M. Pomeroy. The negative report cards are mailed directly to the individual. Questionable cases or other findings needing special attention are mailed directly to Dr. A. E. Merkel, Jackson county public health officer. He advises individuals if they should be paid for by the Public Health association. The larger X-ray film is then mailed to the Portland doctors for further reading. If the larger film reveals indications of disease the health officer confers with the individual regarding plans for care under a private physician or at a clinic.

he took to his bed. Combs said she was the mysterious "lady in black," who visited his crypt ever year on the anniversary of his death to lay a rose on the tomb. But even if she never was Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, the romantic past Miss Benda sought to write off with her death came to life instead, revealing enough romances to show she ran the "Sheik" a close second in amours.

OREGON LEGION LEADER COMING FOR CEREMONIES

Southern Oregon legionnaires will be honored by a visit by Niel L. Morfitt, commander of the American Legion Department of Oregon, today and Monday. He will arrive by plane at 5:30 this afternoon to start a series of appearances that will keep him moving at a fast pace while he is here.

Commander Morfitt will speak at a meeting in the Legion building in Ashland tonight at 8 o'clock. All Legionnaires of Ashland and Medford are urged to attend. He will return to Medford to spend the night and will speak at the veterans breakfast at 8:30 Monday morning at the Medford Hotel. All veterans are also invited to attend this affair.

Commander Morfitt will remain in Medford for the Armistice Day parade and possibly for the veterans luncheon at the Elks Temple basement. At 2 p.m. Monday he will lay the cornerstone for the new American Legion building in Central Point. Later he is scheduled to speak at an Armistice Day meeting in Grants Pass. Morfitt will be accompanied to southern Oregon by Fritz Nissen, state adjutant of the Legion.

Commander Morfitt will leave Portland November 14 for the American Legion national convention in Chicago.

Dr. Loeffler Home From Navy Service

Dr. A. J. Loeffler, who has served with the navy medical corps for the past three years as a lieutenant-commander, has been released from duty and returned to Medford Thursday night. The doctor was assigned for a considerable period to Los Park College, Parkville, Mo., and later was on sea duty, having been assigned to the USS Battineau. He expects to return to practice here in the near future.

Mrs. Loeffler went south to meet her husband, whose ship docked at San Diego and who was discharged through the navy separation center at Los Angeles. The Loefflers are residing at 404 West Fifth street. An air-conditioned trackless trolley coach is being tested in the transit system of Atlanta, Ga.
