Get after that congestion the Penetro way. Rub Penetro on chest, throat, and back. Penetro helps (1) Break up local congestion, ease chest tightness (2) Relieve pain at nerve ends in the skin. (3) Phlegm loosens, coughing lessens as vapors help you breathe easier quickly. Acts fast, too. For Penetro is Grandma's famous mutton-suet rub-idea made better by modern science. THE SEDUCTIONS OF SEDATIVES

Every day the mail brings appeals from people who hope I will suggest a sedative to suit their requirements or at least give them my assurance that the sedative they are contemplating or already in the habit of using "occasionally" is safe.

Dr. Brady

No can do.

Even the mildest or least dangerous drug or drugs in that class is reasonably safe only in the hands of your own physician.

A nerve sedative or even a hypnotic (sleep producing medicine of one kind or another is the right medicine in some circumstances and it is a blessing that we have such medicines or drugs. But the use of such drugs or medicines by any one other than a physician is an evil of which the American people and the venal Uncle Sam should be ashamed.

To the individual who thinks he or she needs a sedative I say this: Don't take the first dose of such medicine on your own responsibility. If you do, you may never come back. I do not mean that the single dose will necessarily prove fatal. I mean that once you have weakened enough to take one dose, you will resort to the drug the more readily the next time the occasion or temptation arises. And even if a single indulgence does no serious damage, it is foolhardy to imagine you can indulge repeatedly with impunity.

I hope no one will sniff at this as an attempt to exaggerate the danger of self-medication with such drugs. I recall the case of, believe it or not, my friend the druggist, who should have known better but didn't. He felt off his feed one evening and took a few doses of a nostrum that benumbs sense of pain or distress, "settles" stomach, "quiets" the nervousness—come to think of it, the nostrum (disguised acetanilide) worked four ways in this instance, for it stopped the druggist's breathing along toward midnight.

Even if so-called nerve sedatives were safe to take at all on your own responsibility or for just a few weeks or months with the approval of a compliant physician, there is still this fact which we cannot lose sight of—that no medicine of the sedative class, from bromide to barbiturate, has any definite remedial value in illness or weakness or strain or run down condition or overwork. To compromise with this fact is to invite invalidism, neurotic invalidism. Aside from the direct injury any such drug or medicine is likely to work upon blood, heart or other organs or tissues, there is the indirect injury the patient suffers from resorting to sedatives — while so temporizing nothing is done in the effort to find out what ails the patients and to correct, remove or at least treat the actual trouble.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Cooking Utensils

Is there such a thing as aluminum poisoning from using aluminum cooking utensils. My daughter is taking treatments from a (freak healer) and that is what he tells her is part of her trouble. (P. A. W.)

Answer—Nonsense. We have used aluminum cooking utensils for forty years and no one has suffered seriously so far. What does your daughter expect when she goes to the freak healer?

Rude

Enjoy most of your articles but think you are unnecessarily rude when you refer to your readers as "stupid" or "stu"—contrary to your apparent estimate there are some readers who have a fair amount of knowledge of health, physiology, hygiene, etc. (Mrs. M. L. L.)

Answer—If the hat fits wear it. If it doesn't fit you need not get upset about it. Rude or not, I find it arouses attention where otherwise my teaching would make no particular impression.

Dentists and Doctors

One of your fellow heelers (pardon the spelling) has just charged me $50 for a routine physical examination which consumed 15 minutes of his time. I have cared for his children's teeth for years and have never sent him a bill. (D.D.S.)

Answer—Well, now you can let him have it. Bill him a good round fee for your services and send a letter with the bill asking him to take care of it promptly to save embarrassment etc. . . . I reckon there are too many such characters in both professions, Doctor.

Housing Shortage Will Continue For Five or Ten Years

State College, Pa.—(U.P.)—The nation's housing problems won't be solved for at least five years, and perhaps not for 10, according to a Pennsylvania State College professor.

E. L. Whitaker, associate professor of architecture, claims the nation already has a backlog of about two million dwelling units which have to be built.

"Add to that the regular need of nearly 800,000 new units each year, the present lack of lumber, and the homeless, migratory war workers who will take a while to settle down, and you can see why it will take a good five years," he says.

Prof. Whitaker believes that many veterans will be unwilling to return to their prewar dwellings, and he feels that many war workers have grown accustomed to a higher standard of living and will want better homes.

The cost of building or buying is still up 20 to 30 per cent from the prewar level, and is likely to stay there for the next year or year and a half, Prof. Whitaker points out. He doubts whether costs ever will return to their old level.
