Dear.....

With football and Thanksgiving past issues and Christmas a month away, the weather seems to be the next topic in line. Right now it's a disagreeable topic, with many rainstorms and cold fog sending the valley folk indoors. Rainfall so far in November is twice the normal and heavy snow in the hills gives promise of a good irrigation supply next year.

The bad weather balked the efforts of a rescue party to trek into Squaw Lake country after Andrew Jeldness, aged prospector needing medical care. Jeldness is 85 and his wife past 80.

Latest rumor from Camp White, practically deserted by the army at present, has it that 2,000 men are expected soon. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan, with his wife, son and daughter, visited in Ashland last Saturday and were given a public welcome.

Ten men from the Tornado's district two title winning team were given places on the Southern Oregon all-conference team, announced this week. Named were Riggs, Kircher, Whillock, Besonette, Tingley, Greene, Cave, Bostwick, Watson and Clark, with RedKey, Klamath Falls and Williams, Ashland, in a tie for the eleventh place. Watson, Medford's outstanding fullback, and Darrell Riggs, classed as one of the best ends in the state, were the only unanimous choices, each polling 16 votes.

Gross value of agricultural and horticultural crops of the valley for the past season are estimated at twenty million dollars by the county agent, now making an annual report. Gross value of the pear crop is placed at between 10 and 11 million, a fourth more than last year.

A. S. Rosenbaum, star war bond salesman for Medford, has been taken into the "Million Dollar club." As a matter of fact, "Rosie's" sales run nearer to two million, for the eight campaigns.

Daid Thompson, forest service employee at Butte Falls, came to town this week with a large cougar which he had trapped in the mountains. The beast measured about eight feet and weighed over 100 pounds.

Reports from the county jail are to the effect that jail life has a soothing effect on "Snafu," swearing parrot quartered there by Hugh Collins, former army lieutenant who brought the bird home with him from the Pacific. Snafu's language was such that it was considered best to remove it from the Collins household.

Another Medford navyman who weathered the October typhoons in the Pacific was Darrell James, S2c, who recently wrote to say that his submarine chaser, off Okinawa at the time, had a tough time during the storms. William Livingston, GM3c, enclosed a clipping about his ship, the USS Barataria, in his last letter, the article having been published in a Shanghai paper. The Barataria is a seaplane tender.

Two captains arriving home this week were Charles E. Overmyer and Robert von de Hellen. Capt. Overmyer spent 43 months in the southwest Pacific with the 158th, or "Bushmasters" Infantry division. Capt. von der Hellen, on terminal leave from the army, spent three years with the air corps and flew 35 missions out of England.

The bad weather one day recently was a break for Hal Adams, AMM2c, because the PBY of which he is a crew member, was grounded here while en route from Whidby Island to Washington, D. C., and Adams was able to visit his mother.

Pvt. Flossie M. Myers, Wac stationed at Camp Butler, recently won an army crafts contest, designing a wooden letter opener which won her $10. Pvt. Bruce J. Johnston has reported to Brooks Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, for training as an army medical-surgical technician.

Cpl. Sherrill R. Doty, who served 33 months in the Pacific with the marine corps, has been released and is now home. Also here, on hospital leave, is H. Glenn Arnold, coxswain, who spent 43 months in the South Pacific. He will return to Seattle to the navy hospital there.

Others discharged are Loyd D. Hammond, army technician who spent 18 months in Europe; F/O Harvey Morrell, in the air corps more than two years; J. Boyce Kellogg, who spent 12 of 38 months of service with the mail service of the Pacific submarine command; Cpl. Claude Atkins, who spent nearly three years with the 12 and 13th airforces; Cpl. Emil C. Hunemiller, who served with the 90th bomber group; Orville Wilson, former pharmacist's mate who served in the Pacific; John Marlette, who spent 16 months in the Pacific as an aviation machinist's mate; Charles Ward, who served with the ninth seabee battalion and spent 44 months in service; Victor Lehman, gunner's mate in the navy more than three years; Cpl. Stewart Shearin, who served 37 months with the air corps, part overseas; Patrick Milos, who served 19 months in the Asiatic-Pacific theater as a first sergeant; S. Sgt. Robert L. Yocom, who served with the air corps in Europe.

Lehman's two brothers are still in the navy, Norris Keith Lehman at home now on leave from the Honolulu air base, and Howard, stationed at San Pedro. Visiting here now are Lt. and Mrs. Curtis Edward Hopkins (nee Betty Jane Johnson), who were married Oct. 29 in Billings, Mont., soon after the lieutenant returned home from Italy where he was with the 15th airforce.

Marriages announced this week were Doris Doughton, Salem, to Richard Jewett, veteran of the European campaign; Alice Burson to Elmer Allen, veteran of the Pacific campaign; Iva Coffman to Raymond Hugo Zulauf; Barbara Fornan, Long Beach, Cal., to Lt. Carroll R. Clement; Caroline Sander to Jack W. Williams, who served overseas in Europe; Beverly Watson to Milton E. Vanderlinden, recently discharged from sail to Joe Negles, who served in Europe.

Support the Victory Loan drive from October 29 through December 8.

Exhibited

(Acme Telephoto) Sculptured in white marble by Edmondo Quattrocchi, this life-like bust of the late Wendell Wilkie now on exhibition at Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, will be presented later to Mrs. Wilkie by his friends who commissioned the work. The artist, who never saw Wilkie, did the bust from numerous photos.

Jacksonville

Jacksonville, Nov. 30—Charles Offenbacher, who has received an honorable discharge from the navy was welcomed home this week.
