

Streptomycin Drug May Hold Cure For Dread Tuberculosis

Detroit, Jan. 17—(AP)—Preliminary success in the use of the new drug streptomycin in treating tuberculosis was revealed today to more than 600 child specialists attending the annual convention of the American Academy of Pediatrics. A summary of clinical and experimental studies and observations made at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., was presented by Dr. H. Corwin Hinshaw and Dr. William H. Feldman. While experiments have been encouraging, the doctors warned the public not to expect the drug to be a substitute for sanitarium care or surgical treatment. They also pointed out that the drug was being produced in such small amounts that it is unobtainable except for research.
