IF I GET THE RHEUMATIZ
A long time ago you assured somebody who had taken you to task for telling the harem-

Dr. Brady "some day" from carelessness about that. You won a new "fan" by that.

Not a twinge as yet. I'm still rolling somersaults every morning and good old Charlie's nearly bows (won in a raffle) nearly every afternoon.

However, if I had chronic rheumatism, or anything that behaved like joint disability not obviously the result of injury of the affected joints, I'd want treatment along these lines:

1. An adequate diet—adequate in caloric value of fat, protein and carbohydrate, in vitamin and mineral content, in biological value of proteins (that is, they should supply all of the essential amino-acids).

2. Daily sunbaths or ultraviolet lamp treatments.

3. I'd supplement my regular diet with from 1,500 to 2,500 U.S.P. XII units of vitamin D daily, since natural foods do not supply enough vitamin D.

4. I'd see to it that my diet included plenty of calcium (milk, cheese, egg-yolks, turnips, carrots, peas, beans, nuts, peanuts, greens).

5. I'd keep on hand a supply of plain wheat and chew a handful once or twice a day—I'd grind my wheat coarsely in coffee grinder or other mill and eat a dish of it cooked to my taste as breakfast food.

6. If I could wangle it I'd live in an equable climate where one can be reasonably comfortable out of doors all the time with a minimum of clothing.

7. For lameness and stiffness I'd have diathermy treatments.

8. If I found the disability gaining on me in one or more joints I'd want to try daily hypodermic or intramuscular injections of parathyroid hormone for a few weeks. This is all I can tell about it—for further details consult your physician.

9. Rheumatiz or no rheumatiz I'd take my Iodin Ration every day.

Veteran Brothers Held for Attacking Draft Board Head

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 18—(U.P.) The FBI today had arrested two Philadelphia, Miss., brothers in the nation's first reported case of military draftees attacking selective service board members.

FBI agent J. A. Lopez said Blanford and Henry Stokes had been arrested for attacking and seriously injuring Dr. C. C. Davies, chairman of the Philadelphia draft board.

Davies said the two men, recently discharged after being drafted by his board, accosted him near Philadelphia. While one brother held a gun on him,
