Involved In Murder Suspicion

Arthur R. Eggers, 55 (left), a Los Angeles sheriff's office employee whose wife has been missing since Dec. 29, was arrested as a suspect in the mutilation slaying of a woman whose headless, handless body was found in the San Bernardino, Calif., mountains Jan. 2. TURBINE-POWERED MOTORS SEEN FOR AUTOS OF FUTURE

San Diego, Cal. (U.P.)—Gas-turbine powered automobiles are in prospect within the next 10 years, but there never will be jet-propelled cars, according to experimental engineer Paul Pitt of Solar Aircraft.

Pitt, specialist in jet and turbine fields, explained that "in order to utilize a straight jet or a turbo-jet engine, the object propelled must approach the speed of the jet. A car going 50 miles an hour in front of a 700-mile-per-hour jet would burn up fuel too fast.

Not only that, Pitt declared, but the straight jet and turbo-jets are inefficient and impractical for commercial aviation.

Fuel Consumption High
"In the next 10-15 years the turbo-jet engines will be used for military purposes only, because they can't operate at high enough speed for commercial flights and their fuel consumption is too high to compete with even reciprocating engines."

Pitt thinks the gas-turbine engine is the answer. "It will be used on high-speed airplanes where economy is also important. Commercially it will replace the conventional engines, although it also drives a propeller."

The engineer explained that the gas-turbine engine provides oxygen and pressure-injected fuel on the same idea that a straight jet engine propels a plane by backward-thrust.

Gas "Most Practical"
"As a matter of fact, every modern aircraft power plant today uses some form of jet—even the most conventional reciprocating engines. They all have some kind of turbine forcing fluid into combustion chambers at least."

Pitt said the German V-1 and V-2 buzzbombs were classic examples of the straight jet-propulsion engine, which burns itself and its missile out when it gets into atmospheric levels.

"But the gas-turbine engine is the most practical answer—it is compact, eliminating torque and drag, can be pushed near the speed of sound, and is economical."

Austrian Lottery Intended To Raise Rebuilding Funds

Vienna (U.P.)—Austrian Provisional Government intends to run a 100,000,000-mark lottery to raise funds for the reconstruction of the country, according to a spokesman of the Ministry of Finance. In addition to raising funds for construction purposes, the lottery also will help the government with the reconversion of occupation shillings and reichsmarks.

The public will get only 30-40 percent of the winnings and the rest will be used by the government to reduce the quantity of currency now in circulation. Austrians are eager to buy these lottery tickets before the devaluation of the present currency, because it will give them a chance to get rid of their marks.

Lottery tickets also are being sold in all the zones of occupation.

NAVY PLANES USED AS DECORATION ON LAWNNS

Indianapolis (U.P.)—Indiana counties are keeping abreast of the war by ordering World War II navy planes to replace time-honored cannon on their court-house lawns.

Twelve counties have placed orders for Hellcats, Corsairs and Wildcats declared surplus by the government.
