GROWERS RECEIVE PROFIT SHARING IDEA FAVORABLY

Generally favorable reaction toward a profit sharing plan offered peach and tomato growers by the Bagley Canning company of Ashland was shown when Ralph Koozer, manager of the firm, discussed the proposal with approximately 100 growers at the county courthouse auditorium yesterday afternoon.

According to the plan the cannery would pay California cannery contract prices for the produce and after it is marketed would retain eight per cent of the profits while the remainder would go to the producers. The peach grower would contract a percentage of his crop and the tomato farmer, the tonnage from a specified acreage and the agreement would continue from year to year with cancellation possible upon due notice.

Koozer pointed out that the proposal amounted to a service without financial obligation as the cannery would bear the marketing expenses. The facilities of an established institution with its labels and brands would be offered.

Freezing Unit Planned
That the company was contemplating a large freezing unit in order to supply the frozen fruit market was explained by Koozer. He said, also, that, if the tomato acreage was large enough in the northern end of the county, a receiving station in the vicinity of Central Point would be established for the growers.

Though the arrangement is semi-cooperative in nature, no growers organization will be formed according to Koozer, since the cannery will handle the business. However, a provision of the contracts would be that a growers committee could examine the records.

Koozer asserted that peaches and tomatoes had carried his firm's business through the years and that there has been a larger demand than could be supplied.

Full Employment Measure Receives Okay By Conferees

Washington, Feb. 2 —(U.P.)— Senate and house conferees today approved a "full employment" bill lacking specific job guarantees but setting forth a government program to promote "conditions under which there will be afforded useful employment opportunities" for those willing and able to work.

The compromise hews more closely to the house-passed version of the measure than to the senate bill, both in its declaration of policy and its program.
President Truman in his January address to the nation termed the house bill "unsatisfactory" and urged the conferees to approve the senate measure.

Sponsors of full employment legislation in both houses, however, declared themselves generally satisfied with the compromise.
