NATURE WILL NOT ENDURE IT

A correspondent asked whether I still maintain that 46 is not too old for a woman to bear her first child. It reminds me of the lady of dowager type who consulted me in the first days of my practice. I suppose I was pretty young in the lady's estimation. I tried to put on a lot of dignity and treat her as I thought she thought a doctor should. But I muffed it. "What is your age, please?" I asked just like that. As though it mattered. I could see how old the lady was, couldn't I? It was the straw that turned the scale against me. She bridled—I never understood until that moment just what it meant to bridle—and said she had consulted me about her present illness and didn't see what I was leaving nothing for me to do but bid her good day.

I do believe and I have said here repeatedly and indeed there is a chapter in Little Leson No. 4 "Preparing for Maternity"—for copy send ten cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

But, in this instance, the correspondent lets us in on a secret—in signing off she tells us she bore her first child twenty years ago.

If any sort of contraceptive measure has actually prevented conception for twenty years, the likelihood of conception occurring now is slim indeed.

This is not just my notion, but the observation of physicians with large experience in gynecology (diseases of women) and obstetrics (maternity and childbirth). It seems that nature penalizes the practice of contraception by rendering the woman really sterile, after several years of it. There appeared in medical literature recently a report of a large number of cases of sterility in woman, with no other cause the gynecologist could find, except that the woman had practiced contraception for several years.

Without reference to anyone's ethical principles I am of the opinion that (1) a woman who is not strong enough or ready for motherhood should not marry, (2) a man who doesn't hope his wife will bear him children as early as that happy denouement may be vouchsafed is not fit to marry, and (3) mere economic stringency or lack of means to employ specialists and all that snooty business can't justify contraception even for just the first year or two—not if the family is to be happy, healthy and American.
