Romance Marks Valentine Season; Dancers Entertain

Cupid isn't waiting until St. Valentine's day to shoot his bow and arrow. Romance seems to be in the air, even if the air has been chilly, and engagements and weddings fill the news.

Pat Marx was married last night to Gordon Allard, June Chancellor and Richard Harrison said their "I do's" Wednesday, and Barbara Boyden became the bride of Richard L. Michaels of Portland Friday.

Two weddings are set for February 11. Mary Jane Matthews of Central Point has set her wedding to Willie Fischer that day, and Mary Brugman will be wed to Evans Powell, another Portland.

Bonnie Hukill and Roger Fields have picked St. Valentine's day, February 14, for their wedding day and another approaching wedding is that of Barbara Powell of Central Point to Birch Scrivner of Phoenix.

In recent weeks the 23 extension units of the county have been making their recommendations for the coming year's study programs. When the Gold Hill group met at the home of Mrs. Edward Knapp to make recommendations they discussed what household task women dislike the most. Want to guess what it was? You're right—it was dishwashing.

The Angus Bowmers were over from Ashland Saturday, remarking they hadn't been in Medford for a long time. "Didn't you know—we've been snowed in!" Mr. Bowmer, dramatic instructor at Southern Oregon college and known for his leadership in the Shakespearean Festival association, brought over a story about his forthcoming production of "Street Scene."

"We're putting a three story apartment house on a stage only 10 feet deep—I maintain that's news," said the director. The cast, more than 80 persons, is the largest which the director has ever handled for a play.

Speaking of festival plans, Mr. Bowmer said that Dr. Margery Bailey, Stanford university authority on Shakespeare, and actress, is definitely making plans to come to Medford and Ashland next summer and will give a series of lectures here if arrangements can be made. Dr. Bailey was practically a sensation last summer, both as the nurse in "Romeo and Juliet" and for her lectures at SOC.

Square dancing is in the news again. The Medford Square Dance group made up a set to perform for the amateur benefit show at Phoenix high school's new gymnasium Tuesday night. They danced the "Texas Whirlwind" and "The Route" and were so well received that they appeared for an encore number. The show was a March of Dimes benefit.

Dancing were Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Findley, the Kenneth Denmans, Paul Skinnars, Mrs. Ernest L. Barnes and Murray Gardner. Mrs. Skinner has a sparked this square dance group, made up of nine couples, leading and instructing in the dances. During the winter months the dancers meet in the play room of the Barnes home on East Main street, and during the summer they go out to the country home of Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Phillips where there is a paved court suitable for dancing.

Fourth in a series of square dance parties is being held next Saturday night at the Masonic temple sponsored by Crater Lake chapter of Royal Arch Masons. Lee Ragdale is instructing for this group and Darrell Huson and his wife have been leading the beginning dancers.

Some women like to square dance and others would rather stay home and hook a rug, with the record player or radio to provide the musical background. One of these is Mrs. C. H. Paske. Mrs. Paske always has an eye out for the right rug material, too. Leaning across the dinner table the other night she inquired if one of the feminine guests would mind giving her the evening gown she wore when ready to discard the dress. "You have no idea how hard it is to find black in the right material," she sighed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maddox were considerably surprised upon reading the program for the high school band and orchestra concert the other evening to find that son, Raoul, was going to play a trombone duet with Henry Padgham, he having failed to mention this. What's more, he hadn't so much as practiced the selection at home once, according to his mother, who decided on the spot that having musical rehearsals entirely at school might have its merits.

Lady Elks have their fingers crossed and one ear out for the weather reports. A short time ago they planned a tea for Ashland Lady Elks and wives of Elks who would be attending the mid-winter session of the state association in Ashland, only to have the whole thing canceled when the president of the state group was snow bound in eastern Oregon. A second try is being made on February 11 and the committees are hopeful that this time both will actually be held.

Plan Tea

All members of the auxiliary are invited to attend and are asked to bring a prospective member.

County Extension Units Nominate Miss Hanley As Conference Delegate

Applegate—Applegate Extension unit joined other extension groups of the county Wednesday in naming Miss Claire Hanley of West Side district as a possible state delegate to the Associated Country Women of the World conference in Copenhagen, Denmark in September. Mrs. E. A. Learning of Washington county, president of Oregon State council, also has been named as a candidate.

It was pointed out at the meeting that partial expenses of two delegates may be raised by a one contribution from the 15,000 extension women of Oregon, and the local group voted to contribute its quota.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Dave Winingham, and the project was "herb seasonings," cancelled during January owing to bad weather. The leaders, Mrs. Fred West and Mrs. William Sutherland, prepared the luncheon, using the varied seasonings and giving explanations of their proper use. Many herb samples, both seeds and leaves, were passed for inspection by the group.

During the committee reports, Mrs. Fred West, 4-H sewing leader, asked unit women to assist her girls in fitting dresses at the sewing meeting at her home February 11. Mrs. Dave Winingham was appointed to the local native research committee by Mrs. Lee Port, unit chairman.

Some time was devoted to group discussion of various needs in the field of extension work, which will be incorporated in a state wide program planning project now underway. The "sixty-six" discussion method was used, whereby members divided into groups of six to discuss a given subject for six minutes.

Correspondence was read from Holland which had been translated by Mrs. Peter DeYoung of Eagle Point.

It was stressed by the chairman that anyone who wishes may attend all unit meetings, regardless of whether they are held at a home or at the Grange hall.

A "doubling up" process will be used at the March 1 meeting in order to include the regular project on making lamp shades which should have been held February 1. This demonstration will be given by Mrs. Robert Webb and Mrs. Loran Cooper, and during the afternoon the regular March project on "Getting the Most from Electricity" will be given by Mrs. Roland Smith and Mrs. Ed Ramsey. The March 1 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Byrne.

Twenty-one women attended the meeting Wednesday. Mrs. Mel Poole was a guest and became a member of the unit. Group singing was led by Mrs. Glenn Williams.

Committee heads appointed were: Decoration and entertainment—Mrs. Clinton Bennett; clean-up, Mrs. Tommy Lewis; telephone, Mrs. Wayne Kyker; service, Mrs. Earl Fichtner; membership, Mrs. Al Bradford.

Next meeting will be February 16 at the home of Mrs. Al Bradford, 20 Portland avenue, with Mrs. Lewis as co-hostess.

Central Point Group Hears College Head At Meeting This Week

Central Point—Dr. Elmo Stevenson, president of Southern Oregon college, was heard by a large group of Central Point Garden club members when he spoke at a meeting of the club this week. Mrs. Ernest W. Jermark was hostess to the group in her home and other guests included Mrs. W. L. Waldron, Mrs. W. H. Poyer, Mrs. Cliff Cordy and Miss Ann Gregory.

The subject of Dr. Stevenson's talk was "Family Life of Birds," and he brought out peculiarities of many types of birds and their habits.

A dessert luncheon was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Frank Grenbrenner, Mrs. D. R. Allred and Mrs. J. K. Swank. Roll call was answered by naming a bird. Mrs. O. T. Tea And Program Held At Domiciliary Center On Thursday Afternoon

The first of a series of social events was held Thursday in the library at the domiciliary center at Camp White. Red Cross volunteer workers were invited to assist Miss Helen Webster, librarian and hostess for this special occasion. Miss Webster arranged the program, the guest speaker being Harold Stieler, student from Nuremberg, Germany, who is now attending Southern Oregon college.

Mr. Stieler gave a vivid picture of the conditions in Germany just prior to the rise in power of Adolf Hitler. He attributed two factors, the severity of the treaty of Versailles and the existence of 75 political parties in Germany as being mainly responsible for Hitler's rise to power.

At the conclusion of his talk a number of questions were asked by the audience which the young man answered in detail.

Miss Charlotte Rogers, Red Cross field director, and Red Cross volunteers assisted Miss Webster with the serving. Mrs. G. C. Phetteplace and Mrs. L. B. Thomas poured. Other volunteer aides who assisted in the serving were Mesdames I. E. Schuler, Ray Clark, Carl Loveland and Lloyd L. Sanders.

Two Church Groups Plan Canasta Party

Two organizations of the St. Peter's Lutheran church have planned affairs for this week. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Ladies' Aid members will hold a 1 o'clock luncheon Thursday, February 9, in the church. Mrs. C. Schenpp, Mrs. W. Davis and Mrs. E. Guetzlaff will be hostesses and those attending are asked to take thimbles and scissors.

COOKING LOST ART

Boston—(U.P.)—Home cooking will be a lost art in 50 years, predicts President Andrew J. Crotty Jr., of the National Restaurant association.

"Home cooking often results in much waste and additional expense," says Crotty. "For an average family of four persons, it is cheaper to dine out."
