Radio Patter by Pat

If you're not skiing today or out for your first family Sunday ride this spring (?) here's an example of the radio listening that may be yours on KYJC.

Houston, Amarillo and Galveston, Texas, will be among the cities visited when Com. A. W. Scott again heads his "radio bus" towards the Lone Star state for his "Romance Of The Highways" broadcast over KYJC and ABC's Pacific network today at 10:15 a.m.

In recognition of the opening of Brotherhood week, ABC's "Greatest Story Ever Told" will present a repeat performance of its premiere program, "The Good Samaritan," at 2:30 p.m. over Station KYJC.

Theme of "The Good Samaritan" is kindness, good will and the true meaning of neighborliness.

Concert Pianist Grant Johansen, who recently was awarded first prize in the International Piano festival at Ostende, Belgium, will make a guest appearance on two-piano team Cy Walter and Stan Freeman's "Piano Playhouse" at 4:30 p.m. over Station KYJC and ABC.

For her today's broadcast from New York, Louella Parsons will have as her guest Kay Thompson, the talented miss whose nightclub performances from coast to

Pruett Answers Questions

By J. Hugh Pruett
Astronomer, Extension Division
Oregon Higher Education System

A few recently-received questions are answered here.

1. "Do the planets at times actually stand still on their orbits?" The correspondents had read somewhere that an February 12 Mars would be stationary, and on February 19 Venus would suffer the same fate.

In matters astronomical we have to distinguish between seeming and actual occurrences. According to all known laws of mechanics if a planet should sometime tire of its ceaseless encirclement of Old Sol, there would be no outward centrifugal force to balance the gravitational force inward, and it would at once fly into the blazing inferno of the sun. But there would have to be some mighty force in the first place to stop the planet in its revolution, for motion—like rest—requires an outside force to change it.

The "standing still" refers simply to a planet's seeming movement among the fixed stars. Its continuous actual eastward motion around the sun and the relative positions assumed by earth, planet and sun, cause the planet to seem to us to be changing its position among the distant stars. For a few months it may seem to be getting farther eastward. Later, it appears to go westward. And at the time of change it is apparently stationary for a short time.

2. "What makes a bright star dance about violently at times?" I cannot get my friends to watch long enough to see it.

Several times I have received such inquiries. Atmospheric conditions at times make brilliant stars near the horizon twinkle energetically, seem to flash various colors and change brightness rapidly. It seems certain, however, that a very unusual phenomenon sometimes described—when only one person out of a group sees it—is due simply to defects in eyesight.

3. "Are there actually stars that are double; two stars relatively close together that revolve around each other?"

Thousands of such stars, huge suns at enormous distances from us. One of the finest is Mizar, the middle star in the handle of the familiar Big Dipper. Through a telescope, the tiny star which is seen (without optical aid) very close to Mizar is widely separated from it, and the bright star which seems to
