Babson Discusses Things To Come

By Roger W. Babson
Babson Park, Fla., Feb. 17—(Special to Mail Tribune)—Once each year I like to write about things to come as I see them. These suggestions are not original with me, however. They are based on talks which I have had with leading scientists and inventors.

1. It is believed that experiments will soon start in connection with individuals flying as do eagles, gulls and carrier pigeons. An alloy of magnesium and titanium should enable an individual to carry a very light engine and wings. Furthermore, new powerful gases being developed would enable a very small, light, turbine engine to lift and propel an individual. This person may be obliged to wear a special suit containing light gas. It is true that nothing of the kind has as yet been developed, but it is on the drawing boards. Far greater speeds for commercial planes are definitely assured. Within five years I expect to fly from New York to Los Angeles in two hours.

2. Considering the millions of possible alloys which have not yet been gravity tested, it is possible that someone will stumble on to an alloy which serves as a partial insulator for gravity. By the use of such for stair-treads, it would require no more effort to walk upstairs than to walk on the level. In addition to such a discovery being a great boon to those with heart trouble, it will be welcomed by all merchants who have great difficulty in getting customers to go up.

3. Chemists are making headway in preparing sun, proteins and yeasts from small trees and other food direct from grasses, water and sunshine. These experiments are to "bypass" the cow and the steer, both of which are now very inefficient manufacturers of milk and beef! The whole study of diet is in a most elementary stage. We will have much more tasty and nourishing food direct from the use of minerals, sunshine, water and air, at much lower prices. We will buy peaches, ground up, skin, flesh and seed; meats and fish ground up, body and skin; while lobsters will be sold claws, meat and tamale all ground into a delicious paste suitable for lobster bisque or thermidor. These preparations will be more tasty and nourishing and sell for less money because of the reduced labor involved.

4. The power of the mind over matter has been emphasized by certain religious organizations; but only recently has such power been tested in laboratories. I am especially interested in the work of Professor J. B. Rhine of Duke University, Durham, N. C. His experiments definitely prove that the mind acting upon a plant or planted seeds can have a direct effect in hastening or retarding growth. The Fonda Horse, three miles south of Richmond, Va., is worthy of study.

5. The use of plastics has, as yet, hardly been scratched. Women are carrying plastic bags and are wearing plastic raincoats; but other plastic materials, including rugs and dress goods, are about ready for the market. The purpose of these is to entirely eliminate weaving by rolling out the goods from a liquid the same as paper is now made. Leather shoes, which now require about 100 separate operations, will some day largely be discarded for quickly moulded shoes. Such plastic shoes should stand up longer, be more beautiful, requiring only 10 workers instead of 100, and will sell for half present prices.

6. I visualize a great movement toward church consolidations. Many readers may not class such a movement as "miraculous" as some of the above developments, but it will be. No wealth, inventions or new products will make the world a better place in which to live unless accompanied by a spiritual awakening. All these can be used either to construct or to destroy according to the peoples' religious faith. The first step to such a spiritual awakening will be church consolidations and a universal religion.

Pigeons No Hurry
Homer, Neb. (U.P.) — Jack Bobier's homing pigeons took their time about coming home to Homer. Bobier took the birds out for a test flight, released them, they hurried home. He had ample time. Three days later, the first three drifted in. The others never did show up.

"FOOLS GOLD" TO WORK
Chicago, (U.P.) — Vermiculite, once called "fool's gold" by prospectors of the 1900's, has found a new use in the nation's construction industry. The mica by-product is mixed with plaster and gives walls a fire-resistant quality.
Murfreesboro, Tenn. (U.P.) — H. P. Wraether kept hearing "weird music" in his store for about two months. He finally caught the culprit, which he said was a small, brownish-colored mouse that sings "something like a canary."
