Also visiting the chapter that day as honored guests will be the two girls who won the DAR good citizenship contest this year, Miss Barbara Manley of Medford high school, and Miss Joyce Mary Phelps of Gold Hill high school. The girls won this contest by the excellence of their essays on topics pertaining to good citizenship and will be awarded gold pins in recognition of their work.

Varied Activity Fills Week For Rogue Valley People

There was no lack of places to go and things to do in the valley last week. Bridge players turned out for the annual valentine party of Reames Social club, music lovers attended the program at which Medford Musical society introduced the new string quartet, students and politically minded souls went to hear Dr. Frank Munk's lecture, those who prefer drama went to Ashland to see Angus Bowmer's production of "Street Scene," and others attended the games party of the Junior Service league Friday night.

At the music society meeting Miss Melba Chehak, Harleone Wilson, Bernard Windt and Almus Pruitt gave their first public performance since organization last fall, and the response was heart-warming. While the audience was not large, the applause was so enthusiastic as to almost bewilder the players. Particularly was this true of the number presented by Miss Chehak and Mr. Wilson, with Miss Chehak playing the viola and Mr. Wilson the violin. These two are not only fine musicians but they are musically compatible and the style of each seems to complement the other's.

A number of Miss Chehak's high school orchestra musicians were in the audience and they were sympathetic when the teacher lost her mute from where it had been placed on the stand. While steadily playing she kept trying to search for it with her eyes and when the moment came to adjust it on the instrument, she hastily scooped it up from where it had fallen on the hem of her full skirt.

An even more amusing incident put the audience in a laughing mood at the lecture of Dr. Munk Tuesday night. Mrs. Stanley E. Phillips, president of the league, found the microphone had not been hooked up when she rose to introduce the speaker, and she had to go through the preliminaries of whispering "testing, testing" into the instrument, etc. Finally she began a remark and just as the first word "perhaps" came out the perverse mike clicked on and the one word boomed out and echoed around the room. The startled president leaped backward several inches but then regained her composure and joined in the laughter.

While those in the audience probably didn't agree, Dr. Munk decided his lecture was not up to par and blamed it on the excellence of the dinner which he had enjoyed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Carpenter before he spoke.

Some 200 women turned out for the card party of social club Wednesday. Ever listen to a room full of women having fun over luncheon and bridge? From a distance it sounds like the beating of the surf or the hum of a giant swarm of bees. However, there doesn't seem to be anything quite so popular with the average American woman as luncheon and cards to say nothing of the added attraction of a style show, which the party had Wednesday.

Over the luncheon table the women exchanged recipes, symptoms, and the newest small talk about their friends. They hear about the latest thing in make-up, how to make over a dress, where to find a good Italian dinner and learn that black and white terriers are common but that brown and white terriers are fairly rare. It's fascinating.

The women Wednesday who were novices at the modeling business went around afterwards asking their friends "how did we look?" Some were a little surprised to find that everything had gone smoothly as they remembered the behind-scenes confusion and the welter of clothes, shoes, purses, earrings, necklaces, hats, furs and a dozen other items. This hurriedly didn't faze Mrs. Lewis Wayburn, who often serves as a model, but Mrs. John Smith, among others, found the show left her a little wilted.

"Street Scenes" at Ashland drew many Medford theatre lovers Friday night. Seen in the audience were the Royal Bebbes and son, Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Porter J. Neff, Mrs. Richard Schuchard, Mrs. I. E. Schuler and Mrs. Bruno Pellegrini, as well as a number of others.

Angus Bowmer's productions invariably attract a large audience, for he has the reputation of not only being a capable director but of picking top-flight plays and having a sixth-sense about casting.

Valley folk are still traveling, far and wide. In Hawaii are Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hamlin of Medford, and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Peters of Ashland. Both couples visited Kauai, known as the "garden island" of the group and the Medford visitors were particularly impressed by Kalahele Look-out which affords a view 4,000 feet straight down into a steep-walled valley.

From Sun Valley comes news that Mr. and Mrs. Archie Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Tucker of Medford are vacationing there now. Sun Valley visitors not only ski and indulge in other winter sports, but swim in a heated, open-air pool if they wish. Snow conditions were said to be "superb" and the sun so warm that skiers had to unzip their parkas.

Other ski enthusiasts have been to Timberline lodge on Mt. Hood. Among these were Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Halboth, who were in a party which included Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Hibbs of Portland and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Marshall of Seattle, the latter being sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Halboth. The John Days and their son, Jack, have also been recent Mt. Hood visitors.

Mrs. Halboth described the skiing as excellent but has decided that her brand of skiing is not what she would like it to be. Some have been vacationing at California beaches and in Nevada. Arriving home this week-end are Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts and Mrs. Corbin Edgett, who have been at Carmel. Others who have been at Carmel and at Las Vegas are Mr. and Mrs. Martin Luther Sr., Mrs. Marjorie Pitts, Mrs. Lillian Salade and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Norris.

The returning travelers last week found many signs of spring at home. Sunshine days saw people again strolling through the park benches and those who have maple trees were attracted by the hum of bees, for some of the maples are putting out their early spring blossoms.

This week's dog story is about Hale Greenman, and the family canine. It seems Mr. Greenman went down town late one afternoon to buy a gift for his wife, taking the two dogs in the family car. He returned with his purchase and a couple of hours later when Mrs. Greenman went to give the dogs their evening meal she was surprised to find both gone. Hearing this, Mr. Greenman gave his wife a strange look, raced out to the car and down town. Arriving in the vicinity of Swen's store, where he had parked while shopping, Mr. Greenman found the two dogs anxiously scanning every passing car.

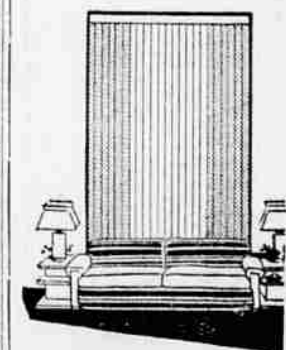

Herchel Morris, it seems, is a camera fan, and like most of his picture-taking friends, is always making shots of his family, friends and their activities. Last Sunday the Morris family celebrated their silver wedding anniversary and after the party was over and the last guest gone, Mr. Morris suddenly remembered that he had not taken a single picture. The Phillips sixty-six method was used to discuss questions which will aid in the planning of next year's program. Many interesting and informative ideas were brought forth and all agreed it was a good method for discussion.

A homemade valentine exchange was held with Mrs. Grant Matthews receiving an original one composed of a red heart-shaped pin cushion trimmed with lace and containing a number of straight pins. It was made by Mrs. L. G. Garrett.

The planned luncheon served was prepared by Mrs. Alvin Perkins, Mrs. Ira Conner, Mrs. Earl Wood and Mrs. Ben Gardner.

Three guests attending were Mrs. W. D. Young, Mrs. L. G. Garrett and Miss Minnie Westby.

Entertainment consisted of a game and songs.

Next month's meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Ben Gardner and the subject will be "Getting The Most From Electricity" with Mrs. Truman Collins and Mrs. Kirby Tant as project leaders. Those members not attending the February meeting are asked to bring pollack dishes and all are reminded to bring service. There will be a birthday gift exchange at the March meeting.
