

British Problems Expected Back In Washington Soon

Washington, Feb. 20—(U.P.)—The British and their dollar problems will be back in Washington before many more months. This may cost the United States more than last fall's round of dollar talks. At that time, the United States, Canada and Great Britain attacked "fringe" issues. The "fringe" program, plus devaluation of the pound sterling, has helped ease Britain's dollar shortage—but not enough. Both American and British sources agree on that. They also agree that more dollar talks will be needed urgently as soon as domestic politics in Britain and the United States allow.

Must Await Vote
British officials can not act until after the British vote Thursday, and a new government—either laborite or conservative—is formed. Then American officials will start getting skittish because of this fall's congressional elections.

One reason is that the British may want another loan—$2 billion to $4 billion. Of the British may seek direct aid for the sterling idea—a kind of Marshall plan under some other name.

The British and Americans will have to wrestle with Britain's biggest single dollar problem—the so-called "sterling balances." Great Britain now owes commonwealth countries about $9 billion worth of devalued pounds for services received during the war.

These countries have been using the sterling balances to buy goods that Britain otherwise might sell for cash.

Want To Relieve Drain
The British, when they come to Washington, will want the United States to do something to relieve this drain on British production. They will argue that they cannot cut off the flow of their goods to India, for instance, without causing a drop in the standard of living there and inviting communists to take over.

British exports to the United States spurred after the pound was devalued in September. Britain also has improved its dollar reserves, but they still are about 15 per cent below what the British call a "safe" level. And the effects of devaluation's shot-in-the-arm are wearing off. Britain's economy has been helped by last fall's attack on "fringe" economic problems. This is what was agreed and what was done.

Tried To Settle It

Democrats Slate Introductions Of Local Candidates

A meeting of county democrats, for the purpose of introducing prospective and announced democratic candidates for election this year, will be held Saturday under sponsorship of the Jackson County Democratic Central committee, it was announced today by Mrs. Edward C. Kelly, chairman.

Mrs. Kelly said that it is hoped that State Treasurer Walter J. Pearson will be in attendance at the meeting. It will be at the Medford YMCA at 3 p.m.

Only announced democratic candidates for local offices so far include Delroy Alderhof, for sheriff, and Andrew L. Unger, for justice of the peace.

Possible Candidates
However, discussion has centered around a number of other persons who may run for office. Among those mentioned for either one house of the legislature or another are Rawles Moore, Charles Reames, Ward Spatz, L. Peers Wilmet and Mrs. Harlan Bosworth Jr. Joe Cave, former city police officer, is understood to be considering running for either sheriff or justice of the peace, and Joe Dugan has been mentioned for the county commissioner's post now held by Republican Robert Lytle. Ashland.

Many of these democrats and possibly others, will be introduced at the meeting, according to Mrs. Kelly.

Accidental Gunshot Blast Fatal To Youth
Falls City, Ore., Feb. 20—(U.P.)—Robert Lee Rich, 14, Falls City high school freshman who was shot and killed while hunting near here Saturday, was an accidental victim of his own .22 rifle, Polk County Coroner Paul Bollman said today.

Rich died in a Dallas hospital late Saturday, a few hours after he was shot in the head. He was hunting with Le Roy Davis, 16, about two miles northwest of Falls City.

Bollman said investigation showed Rich's rifle was accidentally discharged when it caught on brush while the boys were going down a steep hill. After the accident Davis ran to get help, Bollman said.

Doernbecher Head Will Stay In Office
Portland, Ore., Feb. 20—(U.P.)—Harry Green, president of Doernbecher Manufacturing company, today said he would continue to run the company unless the stockholders or courts remove him.

The firm's board of directors Saturday announced Green would be replaced by E. S. Beach. But Green declared the three-man board did not have the power to remove him. He termed announcements of Beach's appointment "untruthful and unnecessary."

In response to Green's refusal to accept the board's decision, Beach said there was no need to add anything to the board's earlier announcement.

The Doernbecher furniture factory employs 700 men and women. Its doors were closed without explanation last Thursday.
