

Home Destroyed By Blaze, Chief Asks Cooperation

A small house was destroyed and surrounding buildings were threatened by fire of undetermined origin between 11:10 p.m. and midnight yesterday, at 531 Marie street, firemen reported this morning. The residence of Mrs. Lucie Wilcox was burned to the ground.

While the fire started outside the city limits, firemen responded to a general alarm because property inside the city was being threatened, according to Acting Chief Leo Weidner. The fire was not permitted to spread.

Firemen were considerably hampered in their work because of curious citizens who followed the engines in automobiles. Weidner said. In this particular instance, the only water available was carried in a pumper, and had the water run out, the engine could not have gotten out to obtain more because of cars blocking the way, the chief reported.

The practice of following firemen's calls and crowding close to a fire, is extremely dangerous. Weidner said, and he appealed to the public to give firemen plenty of room in which to work, and to leave access to the fire area clear.

Firemen who were at the scene reported that neighbors took up a collection of money from spectators to be given to Mrs. Wilcox, owner of the destroyed building.

Two Other Fires
Two other fires were reported yesterday. At 2 p.m., firemen were called to extinguish a blaze which burned a play hut made by children of grass, rags, sticks and twigs. It had been ignited by matches with which some of them were playing, firemen believe. The fire was at 110 Almond street.

A call was received from the Community hospital at 4:24 p.m. when a circulating oil heater flooded. No damage was reported.

A cast of six, including Broadway and summer stock veterans, will appear on the senior high school stage in the second play of this season's drama festival, sponsored annually by the Medford 20-30 club. Proceeds will benefit the club's youth fund.

Due to an unusual demand, Committee Chairman Bill Lawrence said both reserved seat and general admission tickets will be placed on sale at Purucker's Piano house Friday from noon until 5 p.m. After that, the boxoffice will be opened at the auditorium beginning at 7 p.m. until curtain time at 8:15 p.m. Tickets for the final drama festival production, "Peg o' My Heart," will also be available. That performance is set for April 22.
