

Excavation Begun On Big Addition To Storage Firm

Excavation for a $60,000, three-story addition to Medford Ice and Storage company, 535 South Fir street, has started, Lyle B. Thurman, secretary-treasurer of the firm, reported yesterday.

He stated that the 123 by 53-foot concrete structure will provide additional ice storage and will relieve other space for approximately 100,000 boxes of fruit storage.

The new facility will be on the south side of the present structure. A $31,000 building permit has been obtained from the city building inspector's office. However, Thurman said that insulation and equipment will bring the cost of the project to the higher figure. Robert J. Keeney is architect and Besonette and Graff the contracting firm.

E. G. Hawkins has received a permit to erect a $5,000 store structure with three rentals at 624, 626 and 628 South Riverside avenue. The building will be of reinforced concrete. Hawkins said the structure is being built as an investment and rentals of the space have not yet been made. James McKaig is designer and K. C. Wermark contractor.

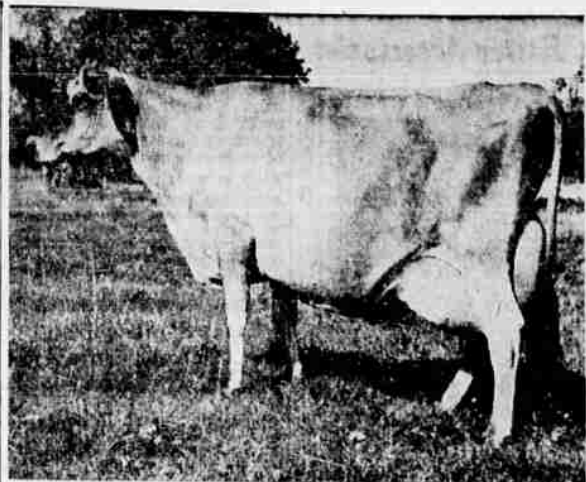

Others who have applied for building permits are R. L. Taylor, $6,750 residence at 904 Alta street; E. C. Belcher, $2,500 residence at 214 South Columbus avenue; John D. Yates, $1,000 garage at 1148 West Eighth street; and H. L. Alford, $300 renovations to residence at 517 West 10th street.

Scheffel and Gilman contracting firm has announced completion of excavation for the small state office building near Bear Creek orchards packing plant. The foundation will be poured Monday and the work is to be done in about 60 days.

Handbag Makers Rap Competition From Overseas

New York (U.P.)—The American women's handbag industry is carefully watching imports from Germany. It seems a potential threat to the domestic trade.

Right now, it can't complain because German imports are small. But industry spokesmen say that right after the peace treaty, they expect German handbags to come over here in volume.

The voice of the industry is the National Authority for the Ladies' Handbag Industry, a private association embracing some 250 manufacturers.

A. Mittenhal, co-director, said: "German bags, and to some extent those of France and Italy, are coming into this country in greater numbers and causing considerable concern in the trade."

Good Quality Bags
"They are the types that are made here and directly compete with American manufacturers. Bags retailing for $18.50 are of good quality, styled for our markets and very attractive."

Mittenhal's associate, Max Berkowitz, already has been to Washington about it.

His principal complaint has been that the United States government is, in effect, subsidizing the German industry, by selling leather to German manufacturers for 60 cents a foot while U. S. makers must pay $1.10.

Another point he made is that German labor costs less than American labor. Mittenhal claims it provides German makers with a 30 per cent edge.
