Medical Topics Given In Program Wednesday Of Local Study Group

Both the scientific and humorous side of the medical field were given by Mrs. G. Q. D'Albini and Mrs. O. A. Welsh during a program presented for the March 1 meeting of the Wednesday Study club in the Girls' Community club.

Mrs. D'Albini reviewed the book "Medicine on the March" by Margaret Clark, which is a record of the latest findings in the field of medicine and research work. The speaker discussed the chapters on cancer, high blood pressure and heart disease, said to be the three predominant diseases of today.

Mrs. Welsh took the humorous side in reviewing the book "The Doctor Wears Three Faces" by Mary Bard. While an exaggerated representation, it was also amusing. Mrs. Welsh also gave the biography of Lydia E. Pinkham written by Jean Burton, revealing an outstanding character of early days.

Mrs. F. J. Newman, president, introduced Mrs. Edith Bundy as guest for the afternoon.

Past Troop Captains Give Annual Dinner Tuesday At Braleys

Mrs. Harry Barneburg, captain of the Ladies' Mounted troop and troop members were entertained Tuesday evening by past captains of the group in the home of Mrs. C. Rease Braley, 245 Valley View drive.

Dinner was served by the past captains who also presented Mrs. Barneburg a corsage. An informal business meeting followed.

Here especially for the event was Mrs. Robert Sly, Eugene, a past captain.

First regular meeting of the group will be Tuesday, March 14 in the home of Mrs. O. H. Bengtson, 122 Oregon terrace, when annual election of officers will be held.

Former Army Officer To Speak In Medford

Carlos Fallon, former captain in the United States army attached to the intelligence department, will be guest speaker for a meeting of Rogue Valley Knife and Fork club on Friday, March 17.

Mr. Fallon, described as a witty gentleman from Ireland by way of Colombia, South America, gives a verbal tour of the great Latin-American republics which lie south of the Isthmus of Panama.

Eagle Point Extension To Meet On Thursday; Unit Makes Lampshades

Eagle Point—Mrs. Glenn Clymer will open her home to members of the Eagle Point Extension unit for a meeting to be held at 10:30 a. m. March 9, Thursday.

Mrs. L. E. Ousterhout and Mrs. E. A. Mallory will be leaders of the project, "Getting the Most from Electricity."

The usual planned luncheon will be served, a charge of 10 cents being made if table service is furnished. Mrs. Roy Stanley will act as kitchen chairman for the meeting.

Members are reminded to bring snapshots for the scrapbook.

The discussion on "Socialized Medicine," postponed from last meeting will be held. Child care will be furnished as usual, and anyone interested in extension work is invited to attend.

March 2 the lampshade workshop was held in the home of Mrs. O. E. Henderson and Mrs. Chamberlain as leaders. Several shades were completed, and others started.

A sack lunch was augmented by cake and coffee served by the hostess.

Eagle Point Women Hold Recent Meeting

Eagle Point—Mrs. Joseph Whipple was hostess for the last meeting of Nichols Branch Get-Together club, entertaining club members at her home on Crater Lake highway.

It was learned during the meeting that Mrs. Cleber McGraw, a member, has returned home from an extended stay in Sioux City, Ia. While Mrs. McGraw was in Iowa her daughter passed away, leaving two small children, and Mrs. McGraw brought the grandchildren to Eagle Point with her.

There was discussion of the removal of trees along the streets of Eagle Point and it was learned that removal was necessary because of construction of the new sewage system.

Pollyanna gifts were distributed and refreshments served.

Mrs. Alex McDonald acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Verne Matthews, who is in Los Angeles.

Next meeting of the club will be in the home of Mrs. Wilbur Reed on April 6.

Dinner Given

Central Point—Mrs. Ed Pence, Central Point, entertained relatives at dinner Sunday afternoon in observance of Mr. Pence's birthday. There for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dawson and daughter, Betty Lee, Trail; Chief Machinist's Mate and Mrs. G. W. Walker

Ruch-Sterling Group Hears County Officer; Present Birthday Play

Ruch—Miss Helen Busenbark, deputy probation officer, spoke at the last meeting of Ruch-Sterling Parent-Teacher association, telling of juvenile dependency and delinquency problems.

Miss Busenbark stated that between 50 and 60 cases pass through the Jackson county probation office each month, and that these involve children from four months to 17 years of age, many of them from rural areas such as the Ruch-Sterling district. Miss Busenbark stressed the need of a detention home in this county.

Joyce Haynes, Juanita Calhoun, John Wingham and John Ramsey took part in a Washington's birthday play, written and presented by Mrs. Kammann's fourth grade.

During the business meeting a budget was read and accepted. Provision was made for a fund for the purchase of a 16 millimeter sound projector for the school and community and it was announced that Upper Applegate Grange is giving the use of the Grange hall April 1 and plans for an entertainment are being made by the ways and means committee, headed by A. E. Ranney, Bob Anderson, student body representative, announced that children are also planning activities for the benefit of the projector fund.

Officers elected for the coming year will be installed at the April meeting. They are Mrs. Fred West, president; Lester Jacobson, vice-president; Mrs. Albert Jensen, treasurer, and Mrs. Edmund Ramsay, secretary.

Mrs. Frank Conner, Medford, social hygiene chairman for the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers, was a visitor. She displayed several pamphlets available to the membership and described the film, "Human Growth," which is distributed through the Jackson County Public Health association. Mrs. Conner complimented the association and the president, Mr. Anderson, upon the lively and democratic way in which the meeting was conducted, and upon the degree of membership participation.

It was emphasized that anyone interested in the school is welcome to become an active member of the group. Dues for the 1950-51 years are collected in March and April.

The refreshment and social period committee included Mrs. Loren Cooper, Mrs. Lyle Hard, Mrs. Dave Wingham and Mrs. Morris Byrne.

OUT OF THE WOODS

By Jim Stevens

The Frozen Logger . . .

What the charm is I'll be barked if I know. The song tells of the love of a "six-foot-seven" waitress for a logger who stirred his coffee with his thumb, and—

"He never shaved the whiskers From off his horny hide, But he'd pound 'em in with a hammer, Then bite 'em off inside."

The ballad goes on to tell that this rugged logger was finally caught in a blue snow. At a hundred degrees below zero he butted his head against a tree and he froze so hard they made axes out of him.

Twenty years ago I wrote that piece in an idle moment and tried to forget it, but it has haunted me ever since. Now a song publisher is printing it to sell and Burl Ives has it in his songbag. This all leaves me in the position of presenting the logger as a rough and tough customer all the way through, while in reality he is today a man of distinction, a wearer of fine duds and handsome manners, a patron of the arts and likely as not a churchgoer. So I tell about the logger in this place atoning for "The Frozen Logger."

Loggers In The Laboratory

The other day I was at Oregon State college, helping the foresters there celebrate the 40th anniversary of the forestry school. As usual, my chief part in the proceedings turned out to be a rendering of "The Frozen Logger" and ballads more ancient in my sawtooth tenor. But I also enjoyed a tour of the Oregon Forest Products laboratory, which was authorized by the legislature in 1941, and became a highly organized and equipped institution in 1947 under OSC forestry school's Dean Paul M. Dunn.

Search For Beauty Foils Americans, Artist Declares

Chicago (U.P.)—A Viennese-born artist says Americans are "hungry for beauty" but they are thwarted when they seek beauty in their workday lives.

They are spending more and more time at home in an effort to escape, said James Seeman, a mural painter with an urge to "create a whole new atmosphere" in the average home.

"What does the average person see in the course of a day? Ugly buildings, railroad and streetcar tracks, smoky skies—things that assault the senses," Seeman said.

The average person seeks refuge in his home except when he can get away for a vacation. But for years, the atmosphere around most homes has been drab and uninteresting, Seeman said.

Now Americans can get away from their uninteresting everyday surroundings in their own homes.

"Think of eating breakfast in the atmosphere of San Francisco's Fishermen's Wharf, or overlooking the southern coastline of France," he suggested.

Seeman has painted those scenes on wallpaper from photographs and actual trips he made to those places. He also has painted on "paper murals" the New Orleans French quarter, a Persian scene, the streets of old New York "for an escape from the modern" and an authentic Chinese landscape.

Another French design called "four seasons" has great variety, he said. The onlooker can alter his surroundings to his mood merely by turning his chair.

Room Personality

"People who have tried it say it works wonders," Seeman said. "They say it is so refreshing, exhilarating to walk into a room that has personality and not just four drab walls."

It is inexpensive, too, he said, because while the wallpaper itself costs a little more, it requires no pictures and only the simplest furniture and rugs.

Seeman said he would like to go to Hawaii for his next designs.

He said he is convinced that plain-colored walls are fast becoming outmoded.

"Plain walls, as someone once noted, are the refuge of the artistically destitute," he said.

Women Abuse Watches Says One Who Knows

Elgin, Ill. (U.P.)—A woman abuses a watch more than a man does, a watchmaking expert says.

William H. Samelius, Elgin Watchmakers college director, said the first thing he looks for when a woman complains about her watch is face powder. It clogs the movement. Also, perfume dries up the delicate lubricating oil.

He said another common fault of a woman is her habit of leaving her watch unwound until she dresses for an evening out.

Like humans, a watch needs constant exercise to keep in shape.

Atmosphere Stressed

Now Americans can get away from their uninteresting everyday surroundings in their own homes.

"Think of eating breakfast in the atmosphere of San Francisco's Fishermen's Wharf, or overlooking the southern coastline of France," he suggested.

Philadelphia Orchestra To Premiere Tone Poem

New York (U.P.)—Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia orchestra will present the world premiere of a new tone poem by Alexander Steinert based on Oscar Wilde's "The Nightingale and the Rose" on April 26 at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia.

Steinert especially composed "The Nightingale and the Rose" for Basil Rathbone, who will be heard with the orchestra in the entire narration of the Oscar Wilde verses.

California contains 14 million acres of agricultural, urban and industrial lands.

make marketable products of material that was being left in the woods, and facing the fact of a great volume of over-age timber in Oregon forests, the staff pitched in for shirt-sleeve research on these and related problems.

Today there is a permanent research staff of 24. Dean Dunn's technical director is Dr. Phimister B. Proctor, William J. Baker is chief of the technical administrative division and Dr. E. F. Kurth heads up chemical utilization. The others are highly qualified technical specialists who derive all kinds of praise and flowers.

But glory is not the demand of these men. What they want is stronger interest in their work from the people of the woods and mills. They want it known throughout the industry that the Oregon Forest Products laboratory can help on utilization problems of individual operations. They invite visitors, be they wage-earning woods men or bankers who are responsible for lumber loans.

"Your Office Boy" Since 1927

DESKS • FILES SAFES TYPEWRITERS ADDING MACHINES Across from the Rialto Theatre

from sawdust is more commonplace, and work on this at the OSC laboratory has led to payroll increase already in Oregon. The laboratory also made a marketable pole out of the lodgepole pine. Kiln-drying experiments are of first importance.

I brought home the prettiest piece of oak I ever did see. Tan oak it is. Down on the Oregon coast the tan oak tree grows big logs. The bark is prime for tanning uses. It has been common to see stripped logs left to rot—because the wood kinks horribly in common drying. At Corvallis they are finding ways to bring the beauty of tan oak into fine uses.

But go see for yourself. Or write to Dean Paul M. Dunn for Circular 3. Learn about a research center of which all the northwest should be proud.

And now I can render "The Frozen Logger" with a clearer conscience.
