Medford Students Become Members Of College Groups

Several Oregon schools have recently released news of Medford students.

From Willamette university at Salem has come news of initiation of three students. Miss Eleanor Meeker became a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority during recent initiation ceremonies. Miss Meeker is a daughter of Mrs. Clarence A. Meeker and the late Mayor Meeker. Mrs. Meeker lived on East Main street until recently when she left for New York City to become editor of a national magazine of the Methodist church.

Other initiates are Bill Hess and John Grabow, the two young men becoming members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Young Hess is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hess and is a pre-medical major. He has been named rushing chairman and a member of the executive committee. Young Grabow, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Grabow, is enrolled in business administration.

A candidate in the recent Miss Vogue contest at the University of Oregon was Miss Stephanie Miksche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Miksche. Miss Miksche represented her sorority, Delta Zeta, in the contest.

Two students from Medford, Thomas C. Anderson, 728 East Jackson street, and John W. Burdell, 117 South Holly street, were among 23 men pledged to Alpha Zeta fraternity at Pacific university, Forest Grove, according to an announcement from the dean of student's office. The former is a sophomore and the latter a freshman and both are majoring in optometry.

WRONG PLYMOUTH

Farmington, Me. (U.P.)—The 10-man Farmington State Teachers College basketball squad piled into two automobiles for a trip to play the Plymouth Teachers College team, Farmington lost the game at Plymouth, N. H. One car with half the squad went to Plymouth, Mass., by mistake.

Chesterfield, Utah (U.P.)—When the pump house at the Charlotte M. Wardell farm here caught fire on a cold, winter day, neighbors didn't wait for the fire department. They rocked the small structure off its foundation and rolled it through the snow-covered field to put out the fire.

Highway History Reveals Early Project Routes

(Editor's note—This is the third in a series of articles on Oregon's highway history prepared by the highway commission.)

By Ralph Watson Highway Department Writer

The 1913 legislature, when it set up the first state highway machinery, specified that the state highway engineer was to make a general state highway plan of the state. Within one year from the effective date of the law he was to prepare a map of the main highways which, in his judgment, were of sufficient importance to be designated as a system of trunk or state roads to be improved and maintained at the cost of the state.

This map was to be approved and adopted by the commission. A direct tax levy of one-fourth mill on the assessed valuation of the state was provided for financing the state highway commission in its operations.

State Highway Engineer H. L. Bowley submitted the map one year to the day from the effective date of the law, or on June 3, 1914. It was adopted Sept. 5, 1914, by Highway Commissioners Oswald West, Ben W. Olcott and T. B. Kay. This map outlined:

The Columbia highway, starting at Seaside, running through Astoria, along the Columbia to Pendleton, then northeast through Milton to the Washington state line. A branch, not named, diverged at Pendleton to run southeast through La Grande, Baker and Huntington to the Idaho line.

The "Oregon Beach highway," starting at Seaside and running south along the coast to the California line.

The Pacific highway, starting at Portland and following the general line of the present highway 99-E south to Ashland and the California boundary. The "Capitol highway" was projected along the general route of the present 99-W from Portland to Albany where it joined the east side line.

The Dalles-California highway ran south from The Dalles through Redmond to Klamath Falls and California's line.

The Central Oregon highway started south from Wasco, to run through Prineville and on south to Lakeview.

An east-west line ran from Eugene, via the McKenzie river, to Redmond and Prineville. Another projected east-west line left the central Oregon trunk road at Milligan and headed for Burns and on to Ontario.

Those trunk lines represented the state highway construction basis until the 1917 legislature set up the present three-man commission, passed the $6 million bonding act and put the highway construction into high gear.

NEW FLOAT DOH DINNER ROLLS

Besides 3 1/2 cups Fisher's Blend Flour, sifted and measured, you'll need:

- 1 cup lukewarm water
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 cakes compressed yeast, or 2 packages dry, granular
- 1/2 cup melted shortening
- 1 egg
- 2 teaspoons salt

Yield 18-24 Rolls

Now—you can make DINNER ROLLS by the Float Doh method... an adaptation of wonderful Old Country baking by Mary Mills, home economist for Fisher's—America's Finest Flouring Mills.

These rolls are different. They're light and tender, with a distinctive flavor and delicate, crispy crust. Here's how you make them:

1. Sift and measure all-purpose Fisher's Blend Flour.
2. Mix lukewarm water, melted shortening, salt, sugar and yeast. Add egg and mix well.
3. Add 1/2 of flour and beat. Add remainder of flour. Do not knead this dough.
4. Take a clean flour sack or food-saver plastic bag. Dip it in cold water and wring out dry. Lay it flat on table and dust with flour. Put dough in center, bring corners of sack up and tie loosely. Leave plenty of room for dough to expand.
5. Fill a good-sized container with about 3 quarts of lukewarm water. Drop dough in carefully. Let rise. It will float when ready.
6. Lift dough out of water carefully and turn it into a bowl. You will have to scrape dough from cloth. Place a spoonful of dough into greased muffin pan. Sprinkle with poppy or sesame seeds if desired.
7. Set aside in warm place to rise for about 1 hour, or until double in size.
8. Bake in a 425° F. oven for 20 minutes.

Serve Float Doh Dinner Rolls at family and company dinners. Make plenty. They'll be popular. Be sure the flour you use is FISHER'S BLEND. There is no better flour made for your kitchen.
