Junior League Service club members modeled the latest in spring and summer fashions at the club's semi-annual fashion show in the Rogue Valley Country club, Friday and Saturday.

Spring's Arrival In Medford Marked by League's Fashion Show

Spring seemed to arrive officially in the valley with the annual Junior League service club spring fashion show and luncheon in the Rogue Valley Country club Friday and Saturday.

The show, the third, given by the league, was enthusiastically received, as were the other two, and proved women's weakness—the guests could well have modeled for the club was crowded with stunning suits, eye-catching hats—a preview of a colorful Easter parade.

Mrs. Earl York was most attractive in a lavender wool suit and violet hat trimmed with two-toned lavender and grey tulle. Mrs. Chester Hubbard, smart in a navy faille suit, wore a kelly green hat and shoes.

Mrs. Glenn Gibbons in a green and brown striped wool dress, also wore a green hat, with a perky white feather.

Mrs. Pete Watt's suit was multi-colored striped wool with pencil jacket and pencil slim skirt.

Mrs. William Yuwan wore an attractive double-breasted navy blue suit, wide navy straw hat with navy grosgrain.

Decorations struck a colorful spring note too, with an abundance of blooming potted plants.

Wide satin chapeaux and gold ribbons and huge bows added an elegant touch to the tables.

Mrs. R. B. Therolf, as commentator, opened the show. She too as smart as the models, wore a navy blue and white tiny-checked wool dress with touches of white pique and navy straw hat.

Mrs. George Rasmussen served as commentator in the lounge for the Friday show.

Feature of the show was "twice around the clock." Two full days of what to wear from morning to the wee hours again were modeled showing the chic thing to wear for each moment and mood.

A delicate yellow and pale green woven broadcloth cotton was modeled by Mrs. Morris Leonard Jr.

For a cool morning, Mrs. Allan Hunt, wore a casual gabardine skirt featuring a red and white laced belt with golden chain. Her knobby tweed sweater was in the new dogwood shade.

Mrs. Sam Richardson's sports ensemble was created for tennis dates. Her jacket featured the mandarin neckline following through with the Chinese influence which is predicted to be seen in this year's styles.

For that morning "second-cup of coffee" date with your neighbor, Mrs. Norton Smith modeled a colorful waffle pique sun dress with flattering slant hip pockets and boned bodice.

Mrs. Allyn Monroe's linen frock, crease resistant and just the thing for temperature soaring days, was trimmed with pearl buttons.

For out-of-town trips or for home-town dress-up occasions, Mrs. O. J. Halboth's brown gabardine suit set off with a green straw hat trimmed with a large taffeta bow was just "the thing."

Mrs. David Holmes Jr., modeled a peg-top suit of worsted jersey—print of the blouse and jacket lining of "hearts and flowers" print.

Another wool suit, this of gabardine, featured a three-tiered pleum. Free from frills and froth it was rich in fine tailoring.

Mrs. Emil Mohr wore this suit, good for just about any time in the day. Simplicity and fine detail were the keynotes for a navy blue tissue faille dress worn by Mrs. Watler Graff.

With this she wore a needlepoint straw hat, navy kid bag and navy ankle strap sandals. Effectively combining qualities of sophistication and prettiness, Mrs. Jack Loree's frock of aqua and brown polka dot was touched off with sparkling crisp white pique.

Winningham-Lowery Marriage Announced; Couple Entertained

Talent—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore, Talent, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mollie Lowery, to Byron D. Winningham.

The bride wore a street-length turquoise dress with black accessories. Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Les Ouss of Talent.

Mr. Winningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Winningham, Jacksonville, is employed at Edgerton motors.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Winningham, Jacksonville, were hosts at a buffet supper March 4, in their home honoring the couple.

A wedding cake which had been baked by the groom's grandmother, Mrs. C. R. Nelson of the Applegate, was served from a table covered by an heirloom table cloth which has been a family possession for over 50 years.

Eighteen guests attended.

RNA To Have Dinner For Families, Friends; Display To Be Feature

A covered dish dinner, for all Royal Neighbor of America members, families and friends, will be served March 16 at 6:30 p. m. in the Knights of Pythias hall, North Grape street.
