Assistant To City Superintendent Named By Council

Appointment of J. Adrian Wolf as assistant city superintendent was confirmed by the city council last night.

He will continue in his capacity of city electrical inspector. The council also continued the services for one year of Albert R. Easton, park employee who is eligible for retirement.

No objections were voiced last night to the vacation of an alley in block 72, original town, and the council ordered the vacation. The action clears up a technicality on the St. Mary's academy property.

Accept Bids

On sewer matters the council accepted bids for construction of three lines. The $1,2049.25 offer of W. C. Conrad was approved for a sewer running through lots 1, 2 and 3, block 1, Cottage addition, between Court and Beatty streets. The bids of Fred Scheffel of $963.50 on Eastwood drive between Wilson place and Keene Way drive and of $3,392.70 on Wilson place between Eastwood and Keene Way drives were accepted. The two contractors were the only bidders on the three jobs.

A hearing was set for April 4 on two 600-foot sewers in Laurelhurst addition. Both run north from Jackson street in alleys of block 11 and 12.

Petitions Heard

Petitions for sewers on Mt. Pitt avenue between Peach and Hamilton streets and Winchester avenue between Peach and Hamilton and for curbs and gutters on Summit avenue between Jackson street and Mary place were referred to committees.

The ordinance on preventing trucks to use 12th, Franquette and Mayette streets and Spencer avenue as a turn-around was tabled, and the council took no action on meat inspection last night.

In other moves the council awarded a contract to Rogue Valley Drilling company to drill a well at the sewage disposal plant, adopted the 1949 uniform building code of the Pacific Coast Building conference, took over ownership from the civil aeronautics administration of the airport tetrahedron and turned "thumbs down" on a veterans organization proposition to sell poppies in bunches to businessmen.

Ashland Council Meeting Covers Variety Of Items

Ashland, Mar. 22.—Appointment of a seven-man city planning commission, discussion of water rate increase and sawdust and soot control ordinances, and a city budget committee report featured a meeting of the Ashland city council last night.

The planning commission, named by Mayor Thomas Williams to replace the men who resigned en masse last year, include Morton Newton, Jack Reed, G. A. Sullivan, Owen Gragg, Jack Platt, Bernard Peterson and the Rev. Rovert McIlvenna.

To Add Commercial Rates

In action on the proposed water rate increase, the council approved adding commercial rates to residential and agricultural rates in the proposed schedule of increases, and will consider an ordinance covering the rates at the next meting.

A resolution presented to the council by the city attorney would amend the city charter to permit sale of timber on the Ashland watershed to the forest service. Action to place the resolution on the May primary election ballot will be taken at the next meeting.

A comprehensive 10-point report, advocating long-range budget planning, was presented by the city's interim budget committee. It indicated that the budget proposed is 10 per cent above the constitutional six per cent limitation, and that additional requests from city departments would increase it even further. Work on the budget will be completed by May 1, it is hoped by city officials, in time to be voted on in the election May 19.

To Control Soot

The city attorney was authorized to draw an ordinance requiring sawmills in the city limits to abate smoke, soot and sawdust from their burners. The ordinance will be presented to the council for adoption.

The council authorized J. B. Austin, city recorder; Harry Skerry Jr., city attorney, and Bert Day, street superintendent, to continue with plans for a city equipment pool for city vehicles and equipment. Items would be charged to city departments on an hourly basis.

To Pay For Building

No action was taken on the proposed lease of the city golf course pending word from the potential lessees. Austin asked, and was granted, authority to pay the balance due on a building which was at first intended for use as a new fire station.

Near the conclusion of the meeting Councilman Fred Homes moved that the city's electric rates be changed to conform with those charged by the California Oregon Power company. The mayor broke a tie with a negative vote. Austin proposed that Copco be charged a two per cent franchise tax for power sold in the Bellview section of the city.

Appraisal of the Copco holdings in the area is under way with the possibility that the city may purchase them from the company.

New Sprinkler System To Be Demonstrated

The Valley Equipment company today announced a public demonstration of the new Stout Wheel Move Sprinkler irrigation system, to be given Thursday and Friday at 2 p.m. at the old Gore ranch now operated by Frances Russell. It is located three miles west of Medford on the Jacksonville highway.

The sprinkler system is mobile for greater use in putting water on larger areas, the company said, with the irrigation pipe serving as an axle between wheels spaced 40 feet apart.

According to R. A. Naumes, of the equipment concern, farmers may now have overhead sprinkling without the difficulty of moving pipe lengths from one section of field to another.

Australia has an average population density of 2½ persons per square mile.
