Jackson County Farm Notes

Compiled by County Office O. S. C. Extension Service

New Disease Moves In On Ladino, Alfalfa Fields
A large number of farmers have noticed a disease that has recently moved in on ladino clover and alfalfa fields. The damage to these crops is quite spotted. The above ground vegetation starts to wilt and usually turns a lighter green to yellow. The stem, leaves, and runners appear as a slimy rotting mass. The plant is decayed back to the crown and sometimes the surface root system is affected. This trouble has been identified as Sclerotinia stem rot. There is no cure for this disease at the present time. However, there are preventative measures. It develops most rapidly during cool wet periods and on soils that do not drain well. Greater damage is done on those fields where sub-drainage is restricted. Other fields that were grazed rather close last fall or were clipped before going into the winter have shown less damage.

Warm, dry weather usually stops the spread of the disease. Alfalfa growers have developed resistant strains. This may be necessary with ladino clover in case the trouble continues to spread. Clipping, grazing, and drainage of the land are the only known remedies at this time.

Maggot Control Method Recommended by College
A new material for the control of maggots on cabbage plants and radishes is now being recommended by Oregon State college. A five per cent chlordane dust will give effective control. This is easily used by putting a teaspoonful in a circle around each of the newly set plants. These maggots work on the roots of all members of the cabbage family such as cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and broccoli.

This maggot also causes severe damage on radishes. It is, of course, obviously impossible to dust, but it has been found that practical control is obtained either by applying the dust to the seeds in the furrow when planting or by dusting the young plants after they have come up. Chlordane is also available as a 50 per cent wettable powder. If you are watering in your plants when planting you can apply the maggot control at the same time by adding one round-ounce teaspoon of the 50 per cent powder to each gallon of water. Onion maggots can also be controlled by the use of this 50 per cent wettable powder. Stir one level teaspoon in one gallon of water. This solution should then be poured onto the onion row at the time of seeding or as soon as the young onions appear.

Rogue River

Rogue River, Apr. 3—Mrs. Jane Moore Cooker, Gold Hill, is spending a week at the White home on East Evans creek while she recuperates from a slight illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kron who have been remodeling their East Evans creek home since their return from Redondo Beach, halted the work to greet their relatives Mr. and Mrs. A. Soldavini and daughter of El Cerrito, Cal., and their nephew Roy Ciarraglio of San Leandro, Cal., who arrived for a week's visit. After seeing the points of interest in this vicinity the two families plan to motor to Eugene where they will visit the Kron's daughter, an son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Tippet.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Brignall of Long Beach, Cal., owners of the laborer retriever, Glingo, the national champion retriever of fields trial in 1948, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Athey of Highway 99 during the past week.

Window displays in Rogue River are attracting more attention than usual this week. Phil Engle placed pictures torn from a book, "The Baby" in the Hub windows and the resulting interest has surprised him. He is enjoying watching the shoppers smile at the babies. But the people who gath in front of Art Pratt's store window are not all smiling, they are serious. He is displaying the tax valuations map.

Tacked on the telephone pole next to the postoffice, is another interesting sheet of paper which the voters should read and consider seriously. It is a notice of a school bond election to be held April 20. The bond amount is $115,000, the money to be used to erect a new grade school building and a shop addition to the high school and to purchase 1 1/2 acres of land on the north side of the present high school.

A select audience of parents and teachers gathered Saturday evening to hear the promising young piano students of Mrs. D. F. Barnett in a recital held in Fellowship hall. Guest artists of the evening were Gretchen Klonhaus and Laura Lee Morris who played a flute duet. Russell Stockman played a piano solo with two encores. Students playing at the recital were Laura Ann Horn, Rose Mary Cox, Lana Laws, Brian Weigert, Janet Weigert, David Williams, Bobby Petrie, Nancy Bradley and Irene Bringham.

The Walt Princes of West Evans creek road report that their friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Boggs have finally made the "big step" which they have been planning for the past year, that is to move from Alhambra, Cal., to the Rogue River valley. Mr. and Mrs. Boggs spent last week with the Princes while Mr. Boggs made arrangements for a position in Grants Pass Auto Parts firm and Mrs. Boggs went house hunting. They have returned to Alhambra to get their two children, Carol Jean and Marvin.

War Planning To Be Subject of Military Lecture

The government's plans for industry and procurement in preparing for any possible future war will be the subject of an illustrated lecture by Lt. Col. Joseph O. Gerot at 8 p.m. today for Medford's organized reserve corps. With a description of governmental controls over materials, sales, shipping and labor through the munitions board, a civilian agency of the department of defense, Colonel Gerot will include a discussion of the present stock-piling program and types of procurement in effect at the present time.

An explanation of the accomplishments of the munitions board, approved by the Hoover commission in 1948, will include such examples as the machine tools program, individual industrial plants program, and standardization of catalogues.

Maj. Walter C. Fingerhut will discuss regulations pertaining to the new ORC program, withheld from the public until April 1. These new regulations outline a more practical and just policy for promotion and maximum age-in-grade, as well as prescribing the standards for the new ORC units, he said.

Because the material to be discussed is of a restricted nature, only members of any of the reserve components are eligible to attend this lecture, which will be given at the Federal Building, Sixth street and Riverside avenue.

Earl Conway Suffers Hurts in Accident

Earl Conway, 1125 East Main street, suffered cuts and bruises, and a possible broken rib, in an automobile accident early this morning. Perli ambulance attendants reported. The car he was driving struck a telephone pole at the corner of Court and Central avenues at about 2:30 a. m. when the automobile went out of control. He was taken by ambulance to the Sacred Heart hospital.
