

More Room To Play Built Into Model Cities of Post-War World

Washington (U.P.)—The post-war world isn't any bigger but youngsters and big people have more room to play.

In today's model cities, rising out of the ruins of war, are more parks, stadia and community centers.

That goes for our own country, too. The National Geographic society points out that made-to-order, model cities are getting a new lift.

Factories wear the new look

Alaskans Visiting Friends in Valley, Are on Way Home

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Gray, Juneau, Alaska, are Rogue valley visitors this week. Gray has been United States commissioner in the capital city of Alaska for 14 years.

They are visiting three couples while here. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pickard and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilson, Lozier lane, and Mr. and Mrs. Al Leighton, Central Point, with whom they became acquainted in Montana.

The Grays are en route home from an extended, year-long trip which has taken them to many states of the union, to Scotland, Ireland and England in Great Britain, to France and to several provinces of Canada. They plan to remain in the valley for about another week.

Valley Attractive

Mrs. Gray, who was born in Scotland, left her native land just 50 years ago, but still speaks with a characteristic burr. She said they both feel that the Rogue valley is one of the most attractive spots they have ever visited in all their travels, and if it were not for their family, they'd probably settle down here. Their two sons both live in Alaska, where they operate a hotel.

As United States commissioner in the territory, Gray combines in his office the functions which are performed in the states by a number of county officials. He has jurisdiction over many civil and criminal cases, and matters of probate. During his 14 years of service in Alaska he has performed 800 marriages.

Major Cities Raise Salaries of Teachers

Chicago (U.P.)—Teachers' salaries in major U. S. cities are climbing.

A study by the Chicago Civic federation showed that four cities, Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and Boston, boosted teachers' pay in 1949 and nine cities raised salaries in 1948.

Salaries in the big cities showed a wide range.

In Pittsburgh and Buffalo beginning teachers received $2,200 annually, while some experienced New York teachers received as much as $5,325.

Minimum salaries paid elementary teachers holding a B.A. degree ranged from the low of $2,300 in Pittsburgh and Buffalo to a high of $3,046 in Detroit.

The median minimum salary in the 13 cities for elementary teachers with B. A. degrees was $2,500, while for those with a master's degree it was $2,784.

Cities paying over these medians were Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Baltimore, San Francisco and Milwaukee.

ACCOUNTANTS SPEAK UP

Columbus, O. (U.P.)—Baseball immortals are honored by election to a hall of fame and now the field of accounting has set one up for its own members. The "Accounting Hall of Fame" has been established to give recognition to living North Americans who have made outstanding contributions at any time to the field of accounting.

The Rocky mountain goat is really a long-haired chamois, or goat-like antelope.

and are being tucked out of sight, away from the landscaped residential areas; shopping centers, churches and schools are being conveniently grouped for all, with plenty of recreation centers.

Lessons Learned in U. S.

Here in America, city planners learned a lesson from the tailor-made atomic bomb centers at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Richland, Wash., and Los Alamos, N. M. In Forest Park, Ill., a 2,500-acre garden city to take care of 30,000 people is one of several American post-war projects.

One of the largest model cities in the world is scheduled for India. It is to be located in East Punjab on a bare Ganges valley plain 140 miles north of New Delhi. A city of half a million is envisioned, complete with its own government, administrative unit, university township, and industrial section.

Near Mexico City an ultra-modern community of 5,000 is being constructed by a Mexican manufacturer, who may or may not have an eye on new business. Another is being built in Brazil to take care of 25,000 workers in the tractor and airplane engine industries there.

Britain Has Projects

Britain's ministry of town and country planning has started the development of five towns near London to take care of the big overflow of more than 250,000 people from the metropolis.

Oddly, the planned city is nothing new. The Egyptian city of Kahun, built about 3000 B. C., for workers constructing the Illahun pyramid, was among the first recorded example of a planned city.

The planned city was not unusual in 500 B. C. in Asia Minor and Greece.
