AROUND HOLLYWOOD

By VIRGINIA MacPHERSON
United Press Correspondent

Apr. 14—(U.P.)—A skeleton look revolted today and the fashionable "skeleton look" and ordered two movie cuties to gain weight.

This is big news in Hollywood, where the glamour girls have to grit their teeth and pass up pastries to keep their shapes. It's been years since most of them have looked a baked potato in the eye.

But Universal-International has rebelled.

"This skeleton look would kill off all our stars," Designers Orry Kelly and Yvonne Wood said. "The camera makes a woman look wider and heavier anyway. They always have to stay thinner than average."

But now these Parisian designers want 'em to look like bed-slats. To get this effect on the screen, every actress in town would have to starve herself—literally.

Gals Called In

And so U-I snapped its corporate fingers at the style experts and ordered Peggy Dow to put on 10 pounds for her part opposite Jimmy Stewart in "Harvey." (The rabbit in that may be invisible, but they don't want Peggy to be.)

Next they called in Joyce Holden and told her to pad her chassis five pounds worth if she wanted to act with Donald O'Connor and Jimmy Durante in "The Milkman." It looks like this is only the beginning.

And studio medico, Dr. Paul F. Olson, gives the whole revolutionary procedure his official blessing. He's getting tired, he says, of treating movie queens for "butterflies with bayonets."

This, according to the good doctor, is the feminine version of producers' ulcers.

Japanese Film To Be Shown Here Sunday

"Kenji Comes Home," a sound film which shows the struggle between communism and Christianity in Japan, will be shown Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Methodist church.

The film is the story of a young Japanese soldier who comes home from the war to face the problems of present-day Japan. The showing of the film is in connection with the community-wide project for an International Christian university in Japan.

Chicago (U.P.)—Nearly 38,000 persons in the United States and Canada were enrolled in Blue Cross hospitalization plans by the end of 1949, the Blue Cross Commission announced. The commission's director, Richard Jones, said the enrollment represented 23 per cent of the population of the United States and 20 per cent of the Canadian population.
