

Analysis Made of Welfare Department Caseload for One Month; Figures Told

For a better understanding of expenditures made under general assistance by the public welfare department, an analysis of the March caseload was presented to Jackson county public welfare commission members at the recent April meeting.

While general assistance expenditures are much smaller each month than the old age assistance caseload, this is one department which has been under fire by county commissioners, who believe that because a portion of the money goes for aid to persons who are not residents of this county, general assistance funds should be furnished entirely by the state or shared by the federal government. At present, the cost is borne entirely by the county and state.

Costs Detailed

The analysis prepared by the administrator, shows that of the $18,020 expended in March for general assistance, $2,549 went to aid 50 unemployed persons, and $7,876 was expended for persons incapable of being employed. Forty-three persons were aided because of partial physical disability, at a cost of $3,021; 47 were given aid because of total physical disability, at a cost of $3,983; four were totally or partially mentally incompetent, aided at a cost of $246; and 43, classified as both mentally and physically incapable, were aided at a cost of $1,192.

The sum of $2,717 was expended on 50 medical supplementation cases under social security. Cost of five burials totaled $765.

Old Age Cases Pending

Cases pending for old age assistance, aid to dependent children and aid to the blind are carried on general assistance until formalities are completed to place them under the proper classification, and 36 of these were listed for March. A total of $983 was expended for 20 pending old age cases, $1,104 went for pending aid to dependent children cases, and $23.50 for one blind aid case.

Thirteen foster home cases totaled $1,110.95.

Aid At Minimum

In the process of reviewing the figures for the commission members, the administrator pointed out that for the past several months no aid has been given to any single person, either male or female, who is capable of being employed, although this policy has brought the staff considerable criticism, and that the employables aided have been married persons with children.

It was also said that aid has been kept to an absolute minimum in each case.

In the closing discussion Commissioner Robert Lytle remarked: "In the last analysis, none of us would turn down any of these cases; it is only when we see the total cost of public welfare that we are shocked."

Staff Members at KYJC Seek Jobs As 'Baby Sitters'

Effective tomorrow, the entire staff of radio station KYJC will be eligible for new jobs—as of baby sitters for the winners of the weekly prize to be awarded each Saturday night on the "Baby Sitter Program," the only program "giving away" live people as prizes.

The program, which will be heard each week-day at 9.30 p.m., has traffic safety as its theme, and the weekly winners will be determined by Traffic Officer Clyde Fichner, who has proclaimed the program one of the most interesting and profitable ever offered local listeners.

Prize Is Night Out

The weekly prize consists of Saturday night out with all expenses paid. It is made possible by the program's sponsors, Yellow Cab company, Henry's Drive-In, Whitlaw Candy company, the Craterian and Holly theaters, McLain's Drug center and the Jackson hotel.

The big attraction for parents, as indicated by the show's title, will be free baby sitters, and that's where the KYJC staff comes in. The winning couple each Saturday may select the master of ceremonies of the program, Doug Gaines, or any other KYJC staff member, to be their baby sitter, or if they prefer, the station will hire a regular sitter for the evening.

Daily prizes are awarded on the basis of phone calls made during the program each evening along with instructions on how to enter the weekly contest which offers free cab service, dinners, candy, cologne, theater tickets, popcorn, and a late evening snack at the drive-in.

Southern Oregon Mills Subject of Lumberman Story

Forest products manufacture in southern Oregon in general and at three mills in particular, including Fir Milling and Planning company of Ashland, are the subject of an article in the April issue of "The Lumberman," production journal of forest products industries.

The story is one of a series on the industry in this area and is designated "Spotlight on Southern Oregon." Process of stimulation in the 7,000 square mile area here between the Cascade mountains and the Coast range is brought out.

New Plants

Increased industry, it is stated, is "mainly in the form of new plants for further processing of lumber beyond the rough green stage," which "will result in additional manufacturing in the area with the increase in man hours predominating in further refining . . . rather than upping the total amount of boards."

Among factors contributing to establishment of remanufacturing business is freight rate advantage for shipment to California and Texas over rates available to northern Oregon and southern Washington. Other factors are available to northern Oregon and southern Washington. Other factors are available manpower from immigration to the area, development of improved machinery, and price advantages from finished products.

Fir Mill and Planning company's almost year-around operation resulting from storage decks is told in the article. The mill's equipment is outlined. Pictures of the Ashland firm's operations accompany the article.

Foreign Students To Speak April 21 To Medford PTA

A panel of foreign exchange students, led by John A. Schulz, assistant professor of psychology at Southern Oregon college, will be presented at 8 p.m., Friday, April 21, by the Washington Parent-Teacher association in the Washington school gymnasium, it was announced Saturday.

The students will discuss political and economic post-war conditions in their own countries. Among the speakers will be Harald Stieler, from Germany; Knud Anderson, Denmark, and Madeleine Michel, France.

Students Here

Stieler is studying at SOC, and will return to Germany to teach. Anderson, at the University of Oregon, is a special student taking a varied course in American academic procedures. Miss Michel, a university graduate student, has been teaching in France, and is working for a degree in health and physical education.

A short business meeting of the PTA will be held at 7:45 p.m., when new officers will be elected. Refreshments will follow the program, with mothers of second grade students in charge.

The public has been invited to attend the program, which is under the charge of Mrs. F. L. Ragsdale.

Hospitality Here Gets Praise from Masons

Comments praising Medford hospitality were heard from delegates departing after the annual conventions here last week of Oregon York Rite Masonic bodies, Medford committeemen for the conclave have reported.

They said that townspeople as well as Medford Masons were commended for their "graciousness."

The convention concluded Thursday afternoon with installation of Royal Arch Masons officers. Five days of religious and social activities and meetings opened last Sunday. Other orders meeting were the Knights Templar and Royal and Select Masters.

About 250 delegates and wives took part in convention activities, committeemen said.
