Pat Wilkinson

The complete cooperation between the FBI and local police in breaking up the intricate but powerful machine of a criminal syndicate is accented on Jerry Devine's "This Is Your FBI" broadcast at 8:30 p.m. today over Station KYJC and the ABC network.

Ozzie Nelson runs into a problem when a friend invites him to a fishing trip on "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" on tonight's program over Station KYJC and the ABC network at 9 o'clock.

Ginger Rogers will be on deck in the off-cuff question-answer session with movieland reporters when she guests on the Saturday broadcast of ABC's "Hollywood Byline" over Station KYJC at 7 p.m.

Census in Multnomah Passes 1940 Figures

Portland, Ore., Apr. 21—(U.P.) Multnomah county's census tally has passed the 1940 total and district supervisors estimate the job still is less than half completed.

The most recent sub-total for the county showed more than 358,000 residents. In 1940 the complete tally was 355,099. Supervisor Carl J. Gilson said only 450 of the county's 951 districts had been counted. But, Gilson added, that does not necessarily mean that the county's population is more than double the 1940.

He said some districts had as many as 900 persons in them while others were as low as 400 residents.

Rogue River

Rogue River, Apr. 21 — Arrangements have been made for Commissioner L. G. Morthland to speak to the general public and Grange members at Live Oak Grange hall here Thursday, April 27, at 7:30 p. m. Morthland will speak on taxes and explain how the tax money is spent. He will discuss roads, bridges, the new county home and other county improvements. Everyone is invited to hear his speech. There will be a regular meeting of Grange following the speaking.

Larry Sheehan, owner of the Rogue River hotel, has returned from California and is doing some repairs on the hotel building.

Mrs. Mable Reece of Glendale, Cal., arrived for a summer's visit with her son, Art Reece, and his family.

Mrs. Betty Bamforth returned Monday from California bay cities where she had visited with her husband when he was in port. Her son, Bert, of Vancouver, Wash., who recently underwent an operation for an infected tooth, has completely recovered and after accompanying her on this trip, returned to Vancouver where he is a high school student.

Mrs. and Mrs. George Mariott of Lancaster, Cal., parents of Mr. Andy Yates, arrived Monday to visit the Yates family. After their arrival they received a letter saying Mr. Mariott had been awarded a television set which will be delivered upon their return.

Eldon Winkley, deputy state fire marshal, visited the Rogue River volunteer firemen Wednesday evening at the weekly meeting. Winkley was pleased by the excellent progress being made in organizing the rural district and expressed appreciation to The Mail Tribune for assistance in the work.

He stated the Rogue River fire department is participating in the state-wide training program and Sidney Baker had attended the training school at Klamath Falls to represent the group of volunteer firemen. Directors of the district are invited to attend the Oregon State Fire Chiefs' convention in Salem on June 1 and 2, with the idea of organizing them for special instruction in their branch of the work, the supervision of the rural fire districts.

CAN'T ESCAPE IT

Holdrege, Neb.—(U.P.)—Everybody had the tax jitters during March but one local business man had something worse than the usual case. After spending 10 minutes praising the merits of a new building he had just constructed, the business man turned around and saw the county assessor dutifully looking over the structure with an eye to next year's taxes.

Owatonna, Minn. — (U.P.) — A dynamiting crew assigned to break up ice in the city park's streams inadvertently blew up a bridge. No one was hurt.

DOCTORS DISAGREE ABOUT SMOKING

Dr. Brady

In the hope that some of the editors who warm up on my copy on the days when any of my stuff is printed may let the title stand as I write it — Doctors Disagree About Smoking — let us begin by conceding it is too long in the first place, like the placard put up by the restaurateur—Only Fresh Eggs Served Here. So we may as well shorten the title to Doctors Disagree and let it go at that, at least till some one comes up with a question on which we do not.

For instance that ponderous 22-volume work. The Cyclopedia of Medicine, Surgery and Specialties, a than-whicher of the publishing field if I ever saw one, cites a clinical study made by Dr. W. M. Johnson who concluded that:

1. Smoking apparently has no permanent effect on blood pressure. (But wait, girls, till you hear the rebuttal. I say "girls" advisedly. Let's face it—oh, well I'll just state the facts and you may draw your own conclusions).

2. There is no foundation for the popular belief that smoking decreases the weight of an individual.

3 It is doubtful whether tobacco plays a major part in the etiology (medicalese for cause or causation) of angina pectoris.

4. The act of smoking, if it affects blood pressure at all, reduces it temporarily.

5. The effect of tobacco smoking is chiefly local, exerted principally in the pharynx (throat).

It is only fair to mention here that these conclusions of Dr. Johnson's were made 20 years ago. Since that time newer instruments and methods of precision have been introduced and tests made with these improved means have led to different conclusions. Anyway, Dr. Johnson's study of the question was a clinical study—that is, a study of patients the doctor sees from day to day—and not a scientific or laboratory investigation.

Drs. Maddock and Coller, using some of these newer instruments, observed a consistent increase in blood pressure and pulse rate and a decrease in skin temperature of the fingers and toes of young men with thrombo-angiitis obliterans (Buerger's disease) when they smoked one or two cigarettes. These effects were more pronounced when the smokers inhaled than when they merely puffed; likewise when they smoked fast, in the way a "nervous" smoker does, rather than slowly and leisurely.

Dr. T. C. Minnehaar, writing in Rev. med. del Rosario, Aug. '37, found by experimental and clinical observation that smoking increases blood pressure and produces constriction of the smallest arteries (arterioles). He concluded that smoking may cause angina pectoris or inflammation of the lining of the smallest arteries followed by obstruction of the circulation.

Most physicians insist that patients with thrombo-angiitis or with symptoms indicating a tendency thereto—early or premonitory symptoms of Buerger's disease, that is—must not smoke at all. Yet some physicians still think that excessive smoking is not the only cause of Buerger's disease; if it were, they contend, for more young persons would suffer amputation of their legs in consequence of this degeneration of the arteries, as young and middle aged persons, both sexes, smoke too much. It may be that there is some peculiar sensitivity to the toxic or damaging effects of smoking that accounts for the gangrene of toes, foot or leg which certain individuals suffer in consequence of their excessive smoking.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Radium Emanation for Obstructed Eustachian Tube

Can any doctor give the radium emanation treatment for lymphoid (adenoid) obstruction of Eustachian tube which you described? (P. W.)

Answer—No, usually a nose, throat and ear specialist gives the treatment.

Emphysema

Two years ago had chest X-ray, and doctor said I had something like amphesia. Please tell me what that is and how. (L. R. D.)

Answer—Probably the doctor said emphysema—which means air or gas in the tissues, or in your case probably over-distention of air-cells of the lungs. Your doctor should tell you what to do about it. Many persons with chronic bronchitis, recurring winter cough, have more or less emphysema which makes them wheeze on exertion.
