Curves Blamed for Most Accidents On Oregon Roads

Salem, Ore., Apr. 24—(U.P.)—The state traffic safety division came up with this suggestion today: Oregon drivers could save many lives every year simply by remembering that—any moving object prefers to travel in a straight line.

The division said that swinging wide on curves is a result of excessive speed and the cause of many head-on collisions. On Oregon highways outside the cities and towns, one-fourth of the accidents and one-third of the traffic fatalities occur on curves, indicating a need for greater respect on the part of motorists.

Driver Not Aware

State police records show that the usual excuse of the driver involved in a collision on a curve is: "I thought I was on my side of the road."

The unsuspecting driver who enters a curve at too high a speed finds his car creeping over the centerline or pavement edge so gradually he is not aware of it in time. When he attempts to hold it on his side of the road, he encounters centrifugal force and a refusal of the car to turn sharply. If the friction of the tires against the road surface is unable to overcome the tendency to slide, a skid is the usual result.

Ignorance Not To Blame

The division said that trouble on curves cannot be blamed on ignorance since every driver is presumably aware of the danger. It said too many drivers apparently believe the modern can can be safely handled on almost any curve, but the record shows that inattention and carelessness are as dangerous now as in the days when sharper curves were matched by slower automobiles.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Gilmanton, N. H. (U.P.)Census takers in 1790 were paid $1 for every 150 rural residents reported and $1 for every 300 city dwellers, according to an original document owned by Paul F. Hoag. The current pay is seven to 10 cents per person.

La Grande, Ore., Apr. 24—(U.P.) Mayors of Union and Elgin have gone on record in opposition to daylight saving time.

Warehouse Dispute To Get Court Airing

San Francisco, Apr. 24 — (U.P.) San Francisco's tumultuous AFL-CIO warehouse jurisdictional dispute went into courts today with filing of a $1,100,000 damage suit and issuance of a restraining order against picketing.

The damage suit was filed in superior court by the Distributors Association of Northern California, representing a majority of warehouse operators against the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local 85, and the AFL Warehousemen's union, Local 12.

At the same time, Purity Stores obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent Local 6 of the CIO Warehousemen's union from picketing its local warehouse.

A similar legal move was planned by officials of the CIO union who said they would seek an order against the two AFL unions.

Total Effort Needed To Win Cold War, News Editors Hear

Washington, Apr. 24 — (U.P.) — The American Society of Newspaper Editors was told today that the cold war can be won by total effort.

The editors were asked to supply more information to bolster that effort.

Roscoe Drummond of the Christian Science Monitor said it is urgently necessary now to create and carry forward a common information program for the Atlantic Pact nations.
