Post Office Accuses Railroads Of Sabotaging Express Service

By Maureen Gothlin
United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington—(U.P.)—The Post Office Department has complained to congress that the railroads deliberately are throwing railway express traffic to parcel post so they can make more money.

In hearings before the house appropriations committee the post office department solicitor, Frank J. Delany, criticized both the railroads and the interstate commerce commission.

He said railway express rates are so high that the public is using cheaper parcel post instead.

The ICC has approved two postwar increases in the rates of the Railway Express agency, which is owned by about 70 railroads, and a third has been recommended.

"All of a sudden," Delany told the committee, "the post office department has in effect taken over the express business in large part.

"There is reason to believe that this is done deliberately because the railroads receive more money for transporting these packages in the form of mail than they would get through express."

Two ICC examiners, however, in recommending the third-postwar increase in express rates—10 per cent on first and second class—put the shoe on the other foot.

They said that the diversion of traffic to parcel post is the cause of increased express rates. In their opinion, express traffic will not increase "so long as parcel post rates are maintained at their present levels considerably below the cost of service."

Delany also complained that the ICC has refused to activate a section of the railway mail pay act that might lower the rates the government must pay the railroads for carrying package mail.

Interpretation Disputed

According to Delany's interpretation, this section requires the ICC to fix rates paid the railroads for carrying all but first class mail at a level no higher than the railroads receive for carrying railway express traffic.

Delany said the ICC has put an "improper" interpretation on the law in claiming it is "impracticable to put into effect."

The ICC has contended that the reason the law is impracticable is that the railroads which own the express agency are not paid rates for express traffic but divide among themselves the net earnings of the agency.

The post office department believes this is wrong in itself because railroads are supposed to charge rates for everything they haul. Then contend that the ICC never has undertaken a thorough investigation of the Railway Express agency's traffic and its pay to the railroads as it should have.

The result, according to one post office department official, is that "no one except the railroads and the express agency knows whether express rates to the public are fair or whether express rates to the railroads are fair."

Quackery Common In Psychoanalysis Mentalists Learn

San Francisco—(U.P.)—Almost anyone can hang out a shingle as a psychoanalyst, says the chief of psychiatry at one of San Francisco's top hospitals, and the trouble is, too many do.

Dr. Norman Reider estimated at a meeting of the Mental Health society that "at least 25,000 mind-peddlers are practicing in the United States, and the number is increasing every day."

The reason, Dr. Reider said, is that no state licenses are required for mental therapy work.

Quackery within the medical profession is practically nil, he pointed out, because medical practice is carefully defined by law. But in the field of psychotherapy, there is no legal definition for proper treatment.

Results Tragic

"The results," he said, "is charlatans. People with no training whatever—even plumbers and electricians — are setting themselves up as analysts, marriage consultants, psychologists, or vocational guidance consultants.

"The results of their work are tragic," he declared.

Dr. Reider predicted that a "decade would pass" before legislation necessary to maintain standards etsablished by other professional societies would come.

Qualified workers in the psychotherapy field are struggling with the problem now, he said.

The organizations of qualified professionals include the American Association of Psychiatric Social Workers, the American Association of Psychologists, the American Psychiatric Association, and the American Board of Neurology and Psychiatry.
