Picasso Plates Latest Art Form In American Home

New York—(U.P.)—Plates copied from Picasso originals are the latest art forms aimed at average American homes.

"I understand Picasso would like one of his paintings in every American home," said Catharine Ogust, 29-year-old brunette who is responsible for the plate reproduction. "I've never met him, but these plates are exact copies of 18 of his originals, so he should be pleased to find them available to American families for only $15."

The plates are made of "a ceramic-like composition." The designs are imbedded in the composition by a heat process.

"One of the plates is a copy of the one given Rita Hayworth when she married Aly Khan," Mrs. Ogust said. Picasso has painted some 1,500 of the plates, but they're rarely put on the market for purchase. He keeps them or gives a rare few to friends.

The Rita Rayworth plate is called "The Dove." It has a fair realistic looking dove painted in the center, against a dark brown background. Other designs are more confusing.

One, called "Double Face," has two black line profiles facing each other in the center. It's definitely modern, but Mrs. Ogust says, "It's so Picasso that people like it."

She is an artist herself, but until she got the Picasso plate idea she confined her art to turning out hanging flower holders in her Brooklyn factory.

"They're sold in five and ten cent stores," she confessed. The artistic plates will be sold through department stores.

Only one thing worried Mrs. Ogust. Would the American buyers put the egg-shaped Picasso plate reproductions into use on the table?

"Mr. Picasso doesn't like for them to be used as plates. They are decorative pieces," she said.

Someone noticed her arrangement of plates on a low coffee table in her penthouse studio and suggested that guests might mistake them for ash trays.

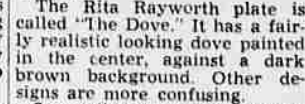

"If anybody ever uses them for ash trays," Mrs. Ogust fervently exclaimed, "I hope Mr. Picasso never finds out."
