

Australian Engineer Medford Visitor, Makes Lake Trip Via Tucker Sno-Cat

G. M. Langham, a mechanical engineer employed by the country roads board of Victoria, Australia, was a visitor in Medford Friday and Saturday. He was in the Rogue valley to inspect various models of Tucker Sno-Cats to see if they can be used in the snow fields of Victoria for taking winter sports enthusiasts to snow resorts distant from roadways.

Morris B. Leonard Named Chairman Of Bond Campaign

George W. Minnaugh of Portland, state director of the treasury department's savings bond division, announced here yesterday that Morris B. Leonard Sr., long time Medford business man, has consented to assume the chairmanship for United States thrift bond sales in Jackson county. Leonard will succeed Carey Thompson who has moved to eastern Washington.

Minnaugh said he was particularly happy to see Leonard in the leadership in this county of a man as well known and highly regarded as Leonard. The director pointed out that the new county chairman, a veteran of World War I, has owned the Leonard Electric company here for over 25 years, has taken a prominent part in civic affairs, is a past president of the Rotary club, a past exalted ruler of the Elks lodge, and has devoted much time to chamber of commerce and Red Cross work.

Many Own Bonds. Although the past winter, with considerable unemployment due to weather interruption of industry, has seen fairly heavy cashing of savings bonds, Minnaugh reports that Oregonians still have more than $500 million in the securities and that the interest on these savings is bringing the people of Oregon more than $14 million a year.

In the next few weeks the treasury department plans a new campaign to interest people in payroll savings. The treasury has purchased 50 replicas of the historic Liberty bell which announced the Declaration of Independence.

the world in its type and size. But he was even more impressed by what he said was "wonderful hospitality" of Americans.

"Everyone I have met," he said, "has been most helpful and cooperative. They have been willing to give me the information I need on my trip, and without their help it would have been much more difficult."

Langham is on a six-month tour away from his country, two months of which will be spent in the United States. He is stopping at the larger cities of the Pacific Coast, and later will go on to New York and other eastern cities. Later he will go on to Great Britain and Europe before returning to Australia next October.

To See Machinery
He was sent to this country and England to investigate the latest developments in road construction machinery, and to see the latest designs for workshops and methods used to maintain road equipment.

"The use of this machinery for roadbuilding increased very considerably in Australia during the war years," Langham said, "and great difficulty is now being experienced in maintaining this plant, due to a shortage of manpower and a shortage of dollars which prohibits Australia from purchasing badly needed replacement crawler tractors."

Langham left Medford Saturday for San Francisco. Discusses Government
In reply to questions, he said that there seemed to be a general misunderstanding of the type of government in Australia, which is an independent dominion, and he explained that the only tie with Great Britain is through the royal house.

"We could thumb our nose at England if we wanted to," he remarked with a smile.
Langham added that Australia is looking to the United States for leadership in world affairs. "We hope America can take the lead in the same way that England did for so many years," he said. And he intimated that there are bonds between Australia and the United States which are greater than the similarity in language.

Langham flew to this country in a British Commonwealth Pacific airlines DC-6 by way of Sydney, Fiji islands, Canton Island, and Honolulu.
