Four grade schools will take part in the annual Medford quadrangular track meet Saturday starting at 9 a.m. on the senior high school field. The earlier time was scheduled so boys could attend a Boy scout camporee if they wish.

Boys will take part in the 60-yard dash, high jump, baseball throw, 220-relay, 330-yard run and broad jump. Each school is limited to two men in the 60 and three each in all the other events. Lee Ragdale, supervisor of physical education of the schools announced.

Halsey to Box May 10

The Southern Oregon Boxing club today announced signing of two outstanding middleweights for the club's next offering at the armory, on May 10.

Headlining the show will be Wild Bull Halsey, the popular Portland Negro who has won two fights here, against Joel Wilson, middleweight champion of Oregon and Washington. Halsey won the southern Oregon-northern California championship here last month by outpointing Clint Waters of Oakland.

Wilson, who hails from the Ramblers club while Halsey is from the rival PAL club, holds a victory over Halsey and is the only boxer to knock Halsey down in the latter's 58 amateur fights.

Dick Adkins, the likeable youngster from Griffin Creek, will seek to regain his southern Oregon lightweight title when he goes against Jim Pucias of Eugene in one of the supporting matches. Pucias lifted the title by giving Adkins a whipping in Roseburg a week ago.

Other matches will send Donovan Wolfe against Byron Carter, Ray Stickle in with John Law, smiling Oakland Negro, Bob Stumbo against Al Offard, and Dale Odom against Ralph Colvin, Portland.

New York, May 5—(U.P.)—Many boxing men believed today that 36-year-old Joe Louis will be forced by circumstances to reclaim the world heavyweight title should Ezzard Charles fail to pass his final physical examination in August.

The N. B. A. will continue to recognize Charles as champion until his August examination, but if he is rejected for action then, the N. B. A. will have to vacate his title.

60,000 Trout Planted In Rogue River and Tributaries Recently

Sixty thousand legal-size rainbow trout from the Butte Falls fish hatchery were planted in the Rogue and its tributaries last week by state game commission agents.

Liberation sites were in stream sections expected to receive heavy fishing pressure this season. Release areas included the upper and middle section of the Applegate, upper sections of the Illinois, the Upper Rogue tributaries including Butte creek, Little Butte creek and the Prospect-Union Creek area.

The trout averaged 7½ inches in length. The main spring trout liberation for the Rogue area was completed in March with the liberation of 110,000 yearling rainbow.

Past Spawning Peak

The steelhead have passed their spawning peak and anglers will probably take many "ripe" and "spawned-out" fish in the next few weeks according to Cole Rivers, game commission resident fishery agent.

Rivers urged sportsmen to release these fish carefully and permit them to escape. One "ripe" female is the potential producer of 2,000 steelhead fry.

The "spawned-out" steelhead are dark, thin and very tasteless in comparison to a fresh sea-run fish, continued Rivers. If returned to the stream, these fish will continue their journey back to the sea and return the following winter as bright, healthy fish.

Cold Water Blamed

A game commission study conducted on the lower Umpqua river revealed that as much as 89 per cent of the steelhead catch consisted of fish that had spawned previously. The late spawning this year is attributed to cold water accompanying the late spring.
