Willow Springs Home Destroyed by Fire

A three-bedroom home in the Willow Springs tract occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Clark and three children burned to the ground yesterday, according to reports of state forest patrolmen and neighbors. Patrolmen said that the fire reportedly broke out in the ceiling over the bathroom and defective wiring was thought to be the cause. The fire occurred about 2:30 p. m. Some clothing and a few other items were saved. The Clarks are staying now at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vogel nearby. The house, owned by Bill Grossman, was located near the intersection of Scenic avenue and the Old Stage road.

Work Begins on Sets For Footlighters' Play

Work on the sets for "The Torch Bearers," play to be presented May 11 and 12 by the Footlighters civic theater group, got underway last evening at the Medford high school where the play will be given. The three-act drama will have two sets, one described as "an involved modern interior" and the other a backstage scene in keeping with the play's take-off on "little theaters."

The sets will be completed over the week-end, so the cast can begin dress rehearsals the first of the week. Robert Dunham of Ashland is designing the sets. Building the sets are Aubrey Harris, Rusty Wimmer, Robert Collins, Bernard Roberts, Robert Roberts, Lee Johnson and Ken Bushnell. In charge of sound effects for the production is Max Wimmer. Herb Roberts will have charge of lighting effects. Tickets are on sale for "The Torch Bearers" at Pruitt's Music center and Olson Furniture company, or from members of the Footlighters.

Deputy Assessor Dies

Albany, Ore., May 5—(U.P.)—Linn County Deputy Assessor Everett Wilkinson, 29, was killed last night when the northbound Southern Pacific "Klamath" passenger train smashed into his jeep on a grade crossing near the Sheild, Ore., city limits. Wilkinson was the only occupant of the jeep. He had been deputized only yesterday, and had been working in the county assessor's office in Albany for some time. He is survived by his father, Archie Wilkinson.

Ceremony Seats Thailand Monarch

Bangkok, Thailand, May 5—King Phumiphon Aduldet, 22, the jazz-loving ruler of Thailand, became his nation's first constitutional monarch today. With Siamese air force planes roaring overhead and temple bells tolling, Phumiphon was vested with his regal powers in a coronation ceremony under a ceremonial nine-tiered umbrella in the royal palace. The king then bestowed upon his bride, 17-year-old princess Sirikit Kittiyakorn, the full title of queen.
