Sociologist Speaks At Annual Festival Of Extension Units

"People only need to understand one another," said Miss Edith Freeman, rural sociologist when she spoke on "Life's Give and Take" at the annual Homemakers' Festival of Jackson county extension units held last Wednesday in Central Point. Several hundred members and guests attended.

Miss Freeman declared that the need in this country today is for more love and understanding, not only in the home but in all walks of life, and said "let's not always think of money and trouble, but only of love and appreciation."

The speaker talked of those who are "selfishly unselfish," and of those who are "unselfishly selfish." Telling of the former, she said these were the people who can never relinquish the role of the giver. Miss Freeman said many people attempt to make giving entirely commercial, a matter of gifts "purchased of the giver" included in the gesture. At this time she also spoke of the relationships between parents and children and said "look at their deeds, but in love and not in self glorification."

She said America does have a strong sense of "class" in spite of protestations of democracy and said these were evidenced in race, social position and religion. Miss Freeman declared "we just don't know how other people live, or understand them, instead we lean on stereotyped generalizations that often aren't true."

Miss Freeman said the education of the people in this country tends to be contradictory in that parents attempt to train their children to do everything well and on the other hand keep belittling them for fear "they will get a swelled head."

"We don't understand even our own families," Miss Freeman declared and said too many people "build a little fence around themselves" and are afraid to express their love and affection for fear they will be hurt.

The speaker said individuals and groups could work to overcome this lack of understanding by inter-change of ideas, through discussion, by learning how to listen to other people and their problems and by "working and playing together."

Anniversary Party Planned By Bethel In Central Point

Central Point—Final preparations will be made this week for the second anniversary celebration by Central Point Bethel of Job's Daughters. The celebration will be held Thursday, May 11, in connection with the usual Bethel meeting, and is set for 7:30 p. m.

In addition to the birthday party, the event will be in the nature of a "celebration of the Bethel's having won in drill competition at the recent state meeting at Coquille. The Bethel presented a novelty number, "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," the music for this having been previously recorded by Jean and Abby Green. The drill won the first place in the class B novelty numbers.

About 38 members of the Bethel, as well as a number of parents and guardians, attended the state meeting and witnessed the drill competition.

The program for Thursday's party is being arranged by Misses Caroline Freeland, Doreen Jones, Carlene von Buskirk and Mary Kay Findley. On the committee to decorate the lodge room are Misses Laural Jewett, Marian Smith, Pat Shook and Evelyn Jones. Decorating the dining room will be Misses Linda Obenchain, Helen Tomm, Virginia Dew and Mary Lou van Galder.

The grand guardian and other past and present state officers have been invited to attend the meeting and party.
