Resignation Reason

To the Editor: The Southern Oregon Historical Society Inc., is meeting tonight in regular session, following two irregular meetings of April 20 and 29, which were specially called by President Claire Hanley and conducted by her appointed committees, two of whom were neither members nor attendants previously; and during which they agreed to hire a so-called "temporary" curator from the State Historical society to activate the new museum in Jacksonville, for $250 per month salary, plus transportation and room. Secretary Miss Venita Daley resigned, not being in favor of the methods nor agreement.

Ashland Dairyman Has Record Cows

Does your family cow produce 754 lbs. of fat or 13,974 lbs. of milk in 305 days? E. B. Poyer of Ashland has such a cow. In fact, he has this cow named "The Challenger Fanny" and three more that have completed records of note since January of this year. "Governor Pogis Janice" completed a record on March 29, at 1 year 9 months of age, of 8,344 lbs. of milk and 482 lbs. of fat. "Governor Pogis Nina," a 2 year heifer, on January 31 completed a record of 8521 lbs. of milk and 514 lbs. of fat in 365 days. Mr. Poyer's registered jersey "The Challenger's Litian" also received special award for having three daughters completing official production records.

Delbert Mongold's "Paradise Vive La Vall" of Eagle Point was awarded this same kind of an award for having three daughters that averaged 8190 lbs. of milk and 410 lbs. of fat on twice a day milkings. This cow was rated "good plus," which means a perfect animal.

These two herds will be visited on Tuesday, May 16, in connection with the Oregon jersey tour. R. E. Van Deusen's herd at Gold Hill will be viewed on Wednesday, May 17. This eleven cow herd has also been classified as perfect.

Seed growers interested in learning to identify and methods of control of injurious insects are invited to attend a general meeting in the courthouse auditorium on Wednesday, May 17, at 8:30 p.m. (DST). Pure bred beef producers will have an opportunity to participate in a beef grading demonstration conducted by H. A. Lindgren, livestock specialist from Oregon State college, on Thursday, May 18. Three farms will be visited starting at 10 a.m. at George Nichols' farm south of Ashland and ending at John Bohnert's farm at Central Point.

A swine tour will start at A. T. Lathrop's farm in Central Point on Friday, May 19, at 9:30 a.m. and end at Charles Elmore's farm at Applegate, at about 2 p.m.

All interested persons are invited to attend any or all of these tours and demonstrations.

White Top Growth Can Be Killed Now

White top is now approaching the period in its growth when it can best be killed by spraying with 2, 4-D.

White top is a noxious perennial and one of our most serious weed pests. Because of the seriousness of this pest and the relatively small area which it covers in Jackson county, the county court and the county agents' office will cooperate in its control by furnishing material and equipment for spraying the weed in cooperation with farm owners.

These patches of white top should be reported to the county agents' office within the next week.

County Extension Agent

'Shady' Business Warning Issued by County Chamber

The annual spring plague of "shady" business rackets seems to have hit the northwest again this year, and the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with better business bureaus in other parts of the state, has issued a warning to housewives who may be victimized.

There are any number of schemes that keep chambers of commerce, better business bureaus, city police and city license bureaus on the run this time of year—the irish lace makers selling cheap imitations at high cost, the persian rug merchants doing the same thing, furnace cleaners who collect a fee and then either fail to show up or disappear after the heating plant has been mostly dismantled.

Warn of Others

And there are the rootless tree peddlers who sell freshly cut "switches" that only appear to have living roots on them, the linoleum peddlers, the septic tank cleaners, peddlers of useless and sometimes harmful humus for lawns, and innumerable other itinerant peddlers competing with reputable local firms. Not always, but very frequently, housewives will find themselves holding the bag if they fail to check with the chamber of commerce before contracting for the goods or services of the transients.

The chamber maintains a complete file of questionable business enterprises that have victimized homeowners both in Medford and other parts of the northwest. Many of the itinerants are wanted by police in other areas for defraud and for obtaining money under false pretenses. There have already been instances in Medford where housewives have paid out money for misrepresented goods or for services that either failed to materialize or were unsatisfactory.

Washington School To Present Music Festival

Washington grade school will hold its annual spring music festival on Wednesday at the school gymnasium.

Principal Kenneth Hulburt stated that the program will consist of selections by band, orchestra and chorus and a dance by physical education students. Starting time is 8 p.m.

The public is invited.

Less Than Half of Men in U. S. Fertile, Biologist Says—Research Corrects Many Old-Time Fallacies

By Paul F. Ellis
United Press Science Editor

New York, May 8—(U.P.)—Less than half of the men in the United States are fertile and it's the man's fault in two-thirds of the cases of 5,000,000 childess couples, according to Dr. Edmund J. Farris, Philadelphia.

Farris, a biologist and executive director of the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology, has put results of his many years of research into a book, "Human Fertility and Problems of the Male," published by the Authors Press, White Plains, N. Y.

Farris lists various old-time fallacies and what he has found to be correct.

For instance, he said one fallacy is that most men are fertile.

The fact is, according to Farris, only about 40 per cent of the men are potentially fully fertile.

Sterile Couples

The studies show, Farris points out in the book, that women generally are blamed for childless couples whereas the facts are that men are responsible for about two-thirds of the time. He believes the number of sterile couples is 5,000,000 and that the figure may even be higher.

He also criticized the belief that temperature and rhythm methods are effective in aiding or preventing conception. The truth is, according to Farris, the methods "are ineffective for either purpose," and that they "often cause involuntary sterility and involuntary conception."

Another fallacy, he said, is that normal women are fertile for several days each month. Women, he said, are fertile only for 6 to 12 hours in 7 out of 8 months. He discloses that a new rat test will predict ovulation within 12 hours.

Emotion Ruled Not Cause

Farris said that, despite an old belief, studies show emotion is no factor in the male sterility. He outlines a program in the book that has been successful with at least 81 per cent of the men with fertility problems. No psychological treatment was knowingly applied, he reports.

Other fallacies that Farris attacks include: That fertility is associated with physical appearance and accomplishment; that potential fertility decreases with increasing education. As for the latter, he reports that preliminary studies show the opposite may be true.

Farris said his book was "written expressly" for the infertile couples and for the physicians whom they consult. He said a ten-year research program on the whole problem is summarized in the book.
