

Crosbys Don't Get Along, Crooner's Brother Reports

Hollywood, May 9—(U.P.)—Bing Crosby's brother admitted today there is a family squabble going on between the crooner and his wife, Dixie, but said they had no definite separation plans as yet.

This happens every six months," Larry Crosby said. "There's always rumblings going on between Bing and Dixie. But they haven't signed any settlement papers yet."

Nothing can be done until Bing gets back from Europe in June.

Rumors of a legal separation between the world's most famous crooner and his pretty blonde wife of 20 years have been popping up all over town.

"If they do split up," Larry added, "I hope they make it a legal separation instead of a divorce. Bing's a Catholic. Dixie is not."

Crosby was just an obscure singer in the Rhythm Boys trio when he met Dixie Lee, a rising young actress.

"I'd never marry a playboy," she told him. She changed her mind, however, reportedly after hearing Crosby croon "I Surrender Dear." They were married Sept. 29, 1930, to the astonishment of the movie colony, which felt Crosby would never amount to much.

The first of their four sons, Gary Evans, was born June 27, 1933. The others are Philip Lang and Dennis Michael, twins born July 13, 1934, and Lindsay Harry, born Jan. 5, 1938. Three of the boys already have made their crooning debuts on their old man's radio program.

Family Left Behind
Crosby, apparently a devoted family man, spent much time with his boys. The family frequently went to their ranch near Ely, Nev., or their Carmel, Cal., home adjacent to the Pebble Beach golf course.

He left the bunch behind, however, when he sailed in April for a "bachelor" trip to Europe.

"Dixie was a little mad," he admitted when he left. Crosby spent April in Paris and planned to be in England late in May for the British amateur golf tournament.

New Jobs Needed To Keep Pace with Bigger Labor Force

Washington, May 9—(U.P.)—American business will have to spend $500 million a month to create enough new jobs to keep pace with the growing labor force, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce said today.

It estimated that $0,000 new jobs must be created—at $10,000 each—every month to employ jobseekers.

Citing the "important role" played by the businessman, the chamber said he is neither the governor nor director of the economy but is "thought" of more realistically as a "go-between agent."

Emphasis Placed
"He assembles manpower, materials and machinery and organizes them into a productive unit catering to the free choice of his customers," it said.

The chamber placed great emphasis on the government's role of encouraging business enterprise.

"Government policy and the attitude of leading government officials," it said, "may be far more important in determining economic growth and progress than is commonly realized by government officials themselves."

Tenth Family in Need of Fire Help

Local Red Cross workers made a plea today for the help of another burned-out family in the community. This is the 10th family which has lost its entire belongings by homes burning this season.

In this case, dishes, especially cups, saucers and plates, pillows, stoves of any kind, and beds are badly needed. Other household items, they added, could be used.

Since the service has no way of storing supplies or equipment, and because there have been the largest number of such calls in the history of the service here, the help is especially needed, it was said.

The workers stated they have tried to help every one of the families which have come to their attention. Response to the other calls have been gratifying, they said. However, more assistance is now needed.

Those having contributions are asked to call the Red Cross office, Medford 2-4405. Since storage facilities are not available they are asked to leave their telephone number or address, so the items may be picked up.

Governor Requests Oregonians to Eat More Turkey

Salem, Ore., May 9—(U.P.)—Gov. Douglas McKay asked Oregonians to eat more turkey to bolster one of Oregon's important industries.

McKay said Oregon's $10 million turkey industry is in jeopardy, with fresh turkeys retailing for as little as 29 cents a pound. Said the governor:

"In comparison with other meat prices we have known in the past 10 years, turkeys are about the best buy we have seen. I certainly do not intend to prescribe to anyone's diet but it seems to me that the big fowl constitute a bargain that the housewife, seeking cheap yet delicious food, would find hard to pass up."

Recession Alarming
McKay expressed alarm over what he called a recession in Oregon turkey business in recent years. He said income has fallen from $19,218,000 in 1945 to $9,927,000 last year. In the same period Oregon's turkey population fell from more than 3 million to 1,593,000.

McKay said he was speaking of meat birds, because in the matter of hatching stock Oregon is still holding an enviable position.

Free Beer Finally Solves Many Thefts

Philadelphia (U.P.)—Knitting mill owners suspected more than moths lay behind the disappearance of $2,500 worth of sweaters.

Detectives found the sweaters had been disappearing in dribbles for nearly three months, but could not figure out how. They settled down to a policy of watchful waiting and were rewarded when they stopped a man leaving the plant with a package containing eight sweaters.

The "mystery" cleared up then. He explained he and some friends had been buying the sweaters by trading beers to a thirsty night watchman.

The watchman, 61-year-old James Rafferty, was charged with larceny and removed from further temptation.
