... AROUND HOLLYWOOD

By VIRGINIA MacPHERSON

Hollywood, May 13 — (U.P.) — Every time Bing Crosby makes headlines, his brother Bob said today, he gets a new title himself.

"For years," the younger Crosby grinned, "I was 'Bing's kid brother.' Now, with his kids turning crooner, too, 'I'm Gary's uncle.'"

And if Bing and Dixie are having family squabbles—which they say they aren't—his next

Rogue River

Rogue River—The meeting of the Rogue River Hobby club at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kasworm Tuesday afternoon was an unusual affair.

Members, modeling rich costumes of the "gay nineties" and of the later 1920's, gathered in the living room where they posed for photographs among the many rare antiques of the Kasworm home.

Mrs. Ralph Tison, in a Paris creation of lavender panne velvet, was voted "the best dressed woman in America." The dress she wore was one of her mother's wardrobe. It was trimmed with bands of mink and a lavender chiffon yoke with a high lace collar, fashionably boned, enriched the costume.

Mrs. W. A. White wore a sweeping skirt of soft grey broadcloth, with a waist of black lace and a beaded marquisette. Her parasol was adorned with row upon row of embroidery, the whole mounted on a gold headed staff. It was a costume which had graced the streets of Chicago before the fire.

The costume worn by Mrs. Carl Christensen came from Norway. It was of black and white embossed silk, with a matching cape and bag of rich black velvet which had belonged to her mother. Over all was worn a soft black silk apron with exquisite lace insertion, hand made by Christina Noss, sister of Carl Christensen. A hat of the Gibson girl era added to the grace and dignity of the costume.

Another street costume was worn by Mrs. Jim Whipple. It was an ensemble of heavy black silk worn with white accessories and the straight line coat was of finger tip length. White silk hose and high top laced shoes and a white parasol completed the costume.

A touch of humor was furnished by the costume of Mrs. Phil Strahan who wore her wedding dress as an apron with a placard reading, "The March of Time." Her dress was made of French voile, ruffled with bands of self material. It is a size 12, though she maintained she was 18 years of age when she married.

Mrs. Will Trotter's dress provided an interesting contrast to the elaborate costumes displayed. She wore a silk pongee dress of severe straight lines of a style worn in 1920.

Mrs. Grant Powell, dressed in finery borrowed from grandmother, Mrs. Joe Perry of Sams Valley, typified the well dressed pioneer mother of America. She wore a tailored black and white print dress with a white apron of cross barred mull trimmed with wide handknit lace. The apron was made in 1850. High topped lace shoes were worn with the costume.

Mrs. Lang, a special guest of the afternoon, wore a linen dress of the modern casual style, while Mrs. Kasworm, hostess, wore a black and white costume of hand tucked, lace trimmed batiste which had been given her by Una McIlvane.

The club, organized many years ago, is composed of twelve members who each have a different hobby. A new member is chosen only when a vacancy occurs. The club meets once a month.

Object Lesson For Juveniles Teaches Them About Danger

Elyria, O. (U.P.)—Gasp and white faces marked the newest approach to safety education for some 80 students of Oberlin high school near here.

Trying a "shock" treatment where lectures had failed, the students were shown the shattered wreckage of a 1941 sedan, on the jagged metal of which two persons died. Six others went to the hospital.

The crash on a dry road in good weather which caused the deaths apparently resulted from one of the newer juvenile death-trail road games. The youngsters call it playing "chicken."

Sheriff Carl Finegan and an Oberlin patrolman, Ray Warren, did not disclose all their investigation had shown. It is known, however, that one of the injured girls in the car said the pupils were playing "chicken" just before the crash.

Whatever it was they were playing, it ended in a terrific crash and split blood, broken glass and death for 17-year-old Marvin Bittner and Jean Marie Presnell, three-month-old daughter of Donald and Viola Presnell.

The pupils from Oberlin viewed the heap of metal and glass and winced when they learned their schoolmates had been playing "chicken." They knew the rules of the game.

The rules? A nifty driver turns out his lights and speeds down the highway toward an approaching car. The first person in the car who loses his nerve and demands that the car be pulled over and the lights put on is called "chicken."

It's an easy game to play. It is a hard but almost certain way to die.

2 Rogue Men Aboard Same Navy Submarine

Two southern Oregon men are serving aboard the same navy submarine a Saturday navy press release said. They are on the USS Baya, one of several undersea craft used in daily operations in southern California waters for training the navy's anti-submarine units.

The men are Clifford M. Graves, fireman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford M. Graves, Central Point, and Paul K. Schaefer, navy seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schaefer, Grants Pass.

Air and surface elements of the Pacific fleet track down the submarine during these exercises to improve their defense techniques against modern undersea vessels.

title might be "Dixie Crosby's ex-brother-in-law."

"People are always trying to scrape up a feud between Bing and me," Bob said. "I can't even wear a loud Hawaiian sports shirt without somebody giving me the 'trying-to-copy-Bing-huh?' routine."

"They did it when I cracked the entertainment business. Heck, I turned singer because it paid more'n picking cucumbers, which I had been doing."

Even With Golf

"Then when I went on the radio, I got it again. Same with movies and records. At least Bing hasn't recorded 'The Stars and Stripes Forever,' yet."

"I couldn't even take up golf without somebody accusing me of latching on to that because Bing plays it."

Now he's getting ready to make a series of comedy pictures with Crooner Frankie Laine. And he's bracing himself for the inevitable: "Huh, making like Bing and Bob Hope, huh?"

"They had 'the road' pictures," Bob shrugged. "Ours'll be 'the path' movies... we have a very limited budget."

Goes On and On

This feudin' business goes on and on, he says, and has been so long nobody can even remember now where or when it started.

"Actually, we're very good friends," Bob explained. "My position with Bing is that of a small boy who walks up to his big brother and says: 'Blow my nose for me.'"

"The big brother hands him a handkerchief and says: 'Blow it yourself.'"

"That's Bing and me. But we can't ever seem to get the idea through anybody's head."
