

FLEE FLOODED AREA—With only those possessions they can carry, St. Boniface evacuees crowd around the train during the clearing of the flooded Canadian city. The town's entire population of 25,000 persons was ordered to move when experts decided that there was danger the dike might not withstand rising waters of the Red River.

Salvation Army Officers to Hold Youth Services

Brigadier Frank Wilmer, young peoples' secretary for the western territory of the Salvation Army, will be in Medford tomorrow through Sunday to conduct a series of meetings at the Salvation Army hall. Friday and Saturday meetings will be devoted to a Corps Cadet council. Young people from Eugene, Roseburg, Coos Bay, Klamath Falls and Medford will join in the series of meetings. Brigadier Wilmer, whose territory includes the Pacific coast states, Alaska, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands, was born in South Africa, where his parents were missionary officers. He is a former divisional youth secretary, a past principal of the Army's training college for officers at San Francisco, and has served as a divisional commander. Senior Capt. and Mrs. Captain Anderson, divisional young peoples' secretaries for Oregon and southern Idaho will also be here this week-end, and with Brigadier Wilmer will conduct the Sunday morning service on behalf of the Girl Guards troop, Sunbeam troop and Boy scout Troop 11.

The Sunday morning services—company meeting at 9:45 a.m. and divine service at 11 a.m.—are the only meetings open to the public.

Encampment Dates Set For Oregon National Guard

Salem, Ore., May 18—(U.P.)—Maj. Gen. Thomas E. Rilea, adjutant general of Oregon, announced the dates and sites today of Oregon national guard summer encampment for both air and army units as confirmed by the national guard bureau. Oregon guardsmen will attend five camps, of which two will be located in Oregon. Camp Clatsop To Be Used About 1,400 guardsmen from both Oregon and Washington will attend camp at Camp Clatsop, Ore., which will be used for training anti-aircraft troops. Oregon units will be the 237th AAA group, the 732nd AAA gun battalion and the 722nd AAA gun battalion. These troops will receive a total of $50,394.91 in payment. An additional $19,068.34 will be spent for feeding the men and maintaining the camp. The smallest group attending camp will be the headquarters and headquarters detachment of the Oregon national guard, which will stay at the Portland army. This unit of 87 officers and men will draw $4,321.24 in pay. The largest group, Oregon's share of the famed 41st infantry division, will train at Ft. Lewis, Wash., where they will be paid a total of $308,237.35 for the two week period. Air Unit To Train Oregon's air national guard will be trained at two locations, the 142nd aircraft control and warning squadron will go Paine field, near Everett, Wash., while all other units will receive their training at Walla Walla, Wash., in conjunction with organizations of the Washington, Idaho and Montana air national guard. The 800 Oregon air guardsmen will be paid a total of $67,870. General Rilea said all units will train between June 10 and 24. All of the army units will be taken to camp by train or motor convey. The air national guard units will be airlifted to both camp locations, with their heavy equipment moved by motor convey. Sgt. Walbert Flackus of the Medford unit of the national guard said this morning that between 90 and 100 men will leave here by train at 5 p.m. on June 9 and will train at Fort Lewis.

... AROUND HOLLYWOOD

Virginia MacPherson
United Press Correspondent

Hollywood, May 18—(U.P.)—You've heard about people "dreaming up" gags? Well, here's a gent who really does it! His name's Zeno Klinker and with him it's no gag. (Neither is that name.) Klinker writes jokes for Edgar Bergen in his sleep. Has been, for 13 years now.

An done squint at Bergen's hooper-rating is enough to convince anybody those aren't nightmares Klinker goes in for. He explains it this way: "Day and night I'm thinking about keeping Bergen and Charlie and Mortimer funny. It's on my mind all the time. Even when I sleep. And when he sleeps he dreams about fantastic situations for those painted little dummies. Four or five times a night the dreams get so interesting they wake him up. "Seems like they build up some kind of a pressure in my subconscious." Klinker says mournfully. "Anyhow, there they are."

They have been, every Sunday afternoon for years and years. "I keep two dictating machines by my bed," he explained. "And every time I have a dream I wake up and yap into it. If the ideas fit into the program I'm working on, I yap into one machine. If they're just stray plots or disconnected gags, I yap into the other." Recordings Typed Comes the dawn and he lugs the recordings downstairs, where his secretary types 'em and relays 'em to Bergen. This is a very special fancy brand of dreaming—because in the past 10 years Bergen's turned over almost the whole show to Klinker's nocturnal note-taking. "Dreaming up" things is the latest rage these days, anyhow. Scientists have discovered you can even learn a foreign language while you sleep. You just snooze away while a tape recorder repeats the language over and over and—wham, when you wake up you can rattle off everything you've learned during your nap. Method Works Fine "But this is old stuff to me," Klinker says. "I got the idea 15 years ago when I discovered the navy was teaching the Morse code that way. It's worked fine with me." Klinker is an unusual guy in more ways than one. With his briefcase, his shiny, rimless spectacles, his dark, double-breasted suits, and his slow, deliberate speech, he's a far cry from the general conception of the fast-talkin', wise-crackin' Hollywood gag man. "How could I be a flip, breezy guy," he asks plaintively, "with a name like Zeno Klinker?"

St. Louis—(U.P.)—Slight confusion reigned for a time in the De Paul hospital here. Two Mrs. Mary Catherine Johnsons were receiving each other's flowers, gifts and messages of congratulations after each had given birth to a baby.

CAP Unit Inspected During Drill Period

Lt. Cmdr. Rodney Keating, USNR, Ashland, inspected members of Medford's prizewinning civil air patrol squadron last night, during the public drill demonstration held downtown in connection with National Security week. Members of Bliss Heine's drum corps furnished the marching tempo, and the Eagles drill team patrolled the area. A small crowd watched the drill. Last-minute details of the Armed Forces day parade will be discussed at a meeting of participating organization representatives to be held at the courthouse auditorium at 8 p.m. today, according to Capt. William O'Brien, project officer for the observance.

GOODBYE EVIDENCE Memphis, Tenn. (U.P.)—A suspected moonshiner found the pursuit hot and dashed inside the house with a gallon jug. Moments later police captured the suspect but couldn't find the jug. Then an explosion in the stove set fire to the house and the evidence was destroyed.
