

Another War for U.S. Would Be Country's Fault, U.P. Head Says

Los Angeles, May 20—(U.P.)—If the United States gets into another war "it will be our own fault because we have led some aggressor to believe we could be licked," Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press, said today in an address dedicating Founders Hall at the University of Southern California.

"We got into the last two wars that way," the news service executive said. "The Kaiser thought we wouldn't fight and that we couldn't transport an army to Europe. The Japanese thought we could be licked. Hence Pearl Harbor. Hitler also shared that delusion. Personally, I am in favor of enough publicity about our war machine so that hostile nations . . . will be afraid to attack us."

Dedicating Building
Baillie dedicated the new building at alumni day exercises on the campus of USC where he was a member of the class of 1915. At today's ceremonies the university awarded him the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Baillie said that in his judgment the chances are against a premeditated military attack on the United States as long as the Nurnberg hangings are remembered.

"I remember them very well," he said. "I know personally a number of those who were hanged. I shall never forget how they eyed me in the courtroom when they saw me in the press box—those nazis whom I had seen and talked with when they were in positions of high power in the German government and the German army."

"Another possible deterrent to war today is the fact that episodes or incidents which would have caused war in the past, no longer do so. We are more tolerant, perhaps, to a tolerant. Things like the shooting down of a navy Privateer plane in the Baltic are passed over in an exchange of notes. Now our planes have been told to remain away from the Baltic. Doubtless the statesmen know better than I do whether this is a better deterrent to war than having a parade of B-29s with plenty of fighter escort sweep the Baltic every day."

Believers in Minority
Referring to the newspaperman's role in the modern world, Baillie warned that those who believe in the basic freedoms, including freedom of speech and freedom of the press, are in a minority in the world today. He declared that the majority is growing larger with the spread of dictatorships and totalitarian governments.

"It is the responsibility of each of us who runs a news agency or a newspaper to see to it that every bit of news is weighed for trust and handled with due regard for its actual significance and importance, so that the day to day history of these events may be told accurately, completely, with no taint of bias or prejudice," Baillie said.

"The evil effects of having this clear vision obscured through any interference with a free press in this country or abroad are incalculable. Of course, in vast areas of the world the free press is gone. Two years ago I attended at Geneva the United Nations conference on freedom of information and the press, where more than 50 nations tried to agree on a treaty guaranteeing freedom of information. It turned out that various blocs of countries had their own ideas as to what freedom of information meant, with the result that little was accomplished, except that by whatever name it may be called, and abolish freedom of the press. The dictator never admits that he is killing press freedom. He explains that now the government is going to improve the press by insuring that the newspapers all print the truth and that they publish nothing that would harm their country. Of course there has to be a judge of all this, an arbiter to decide what is truth and what is not, what is good for the body politic and what is not. The judge and arbiter always is the government itself.

Press Freedom Taken
"The first move of any would-be dictator is to install a ministry of press and propaganda, by whatever name it may be called, and abolish freedom of the press. The dictator never admits that he is killing press freedom. He explains that now the government is going to improve the press by insuring that the newspapers all print the truth and that they publish nothing that would harm their country. Of course there has to be a judge of all this, an arbiter to decide what is truth and what is not, what is good for the body politic and what is not. The judge and arbiter always is the government itself.

"With this established, the government can proceed at its leisure to chloroform the critical side of men's minds. To use a psychological term, they are 'conditioned' to think what their rulers want them to think. Their judgment of the important issues of the day is no longer free. They are conditioned so that as time goes on they more and more easily accept their master's voice in the government propaganda bureau as they would the word from on high.

Action Defended
"In the countries where this happens, it is defended by saying that the press still is free, that it belongs to the people, that after all the government is the best judge of what is good for them to read."

"That is the way it always begins. There is a group of so-called experts who could improve the press, so they say, if they could just have a little authority over

Wheel Chair Veterans Slate Fishing Trips

Potters Mills, Pa.—(U.P.)—Blind and crippled war veterans will be able to enjoy fishing in one of Pennsylvania's best trout streams at a "wheel chair fisherman's paradise" near here.

Ramps and special streamside facilities were laid out along Potter Run by the Spring Mills Fish and Game association, with the co-operation of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The set-aside area covers one-quarter mile along the stream.

Other fishermen working their way along the stream would skirt the project and resume their casting again on the other side.

Still incomplete, the project had only one visitor on the opening day of trout season. Lowell Smith, paralyzed from the waist down and confined to a wheel chair, caught his full limit of 10 trout. All were about 12 inches.

FIVE BABIES IN YEAR
Atlanta (U.P.)—Mrs. John Gibbs gave birth to triplets and twins in the same year.

Bradley Sets 'Must' Plan for America

San Francisco, May 20—(U.P.)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley predicted today that Russia probably will have enough atomic bombs in a few years to deliver a "devastating blow" anywhere.

To meet this threat "of the atomic blackmailer," the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff set forth a four-point "must" program:

1. "Prepare our own defenses so that no attack on the United States will cripple this arsenal of the western world."
2. "Prepare, along with our friends in the North Atlantic pact, to make Europe reasonably secure from being overrun quickly on the ground."
3. "Encourage every nation outside the iron shroud of communism to be strong, to resist and to survive."
4. "Let those nations now under the heel of Soviet-inspired peoples' government know that we will welcome them when they are unchained."

one phase of it. If they could make the press print more of one kind of news and less of another, they are sure they could create better understanding and less conflict all around.

"This bit of sophistry is blind to the meaning of a free press as we know it in this country. Our free press belongs to the people and one of its most important functions is to be free to check up on and tell them what the government is doing.

"In countries where there is no free press the new generation is lost to the truth and the loss, I fear, is irreparable.

"We who believe in freedom of thought, freedom of religion, freedom of assembly, of speech and of the press, are in a minority in the world today. The majority is growing. These freedoms are our chief bulwark against the further spread of dictatorships and totalitarian governments."

1. Flat mesh steel grill holds up to six steaks. Grills hamburgers too. The grill is nickel-plated! Perfectly safe for grilling, it requires no burning-off. The flat surfaced mesh is perfect for grilling hamburgers.
2. Grill easily regulated to four heights. Clean, never-hot handles. Heat control — all important in outdoor cooking — is assured in the Ten-Way Grill. Grill can rest on top of fire box or hang securely at three heights. Easy, quick adjustment.
3. Separate aluminum griddle for frying, cooking or warming. Space saving rectangular griddle is solid aluminum, 8 1/2" x 11". For frying eggs, bacon, potatoes, griddle cakes, etc. A cooking or warming area for pots and pans.
4. Grill may be used as a serving tray. Has legs and never-hot handles. Carry grill to your guests and let them select a portion "hot off the grill." Or set tray on table for tiles and let guests help themselves. They will!
5. Two skewers may be used at three heights, stow into cart frame. Long, nickel-plated skewers with turned wooden handles may be used at three heights. (See sketch.) Skewers lock in four positions for turning meat.
6. Detachable fork for barbecuing fowl, roasts. Fits both skewers. Nickel-plated steel fork slips on either skewer, holds fowl and roasts in position for turning.
7. Grill may be used for either cooking or warming while barbecuing. Barbecue and grill or cook simultaneously. You may also use grill as a warming area (in upper position) while barbecuing on skewers.
8. For picnics and camping. Detaches from cart and folds into handy unit. Remove grill and turn it over. Release catches and fold corner rods in. Remove fire box from cart and place on grill. Hook grill handles on box ends.
9. Grill and griddle may be used over open fire. Lightweight, sturdy. If you must leave the fire box at home the grill itself can be your best friend on a camping trip. Grill design lends adaption to many arrangements.
10. Movable. Serve guests from the cart. Large utility shelf. Modern cart of polished aluminum tubing has two wheels with rubber tires, curved handle. Wheel the Ten-Way all over the lot, it's truly mobile.
